PREFACE TO THE INDEX.

THE Almanac of last year was issued without a general Alphabetical Index, and the Table of Contents having been found inconvenient for reference, the omission is now supplied. Coming, as it does, a year behind the volume to which it refers, it has been considered advisable to make it not only the means of referring to the pages, but a complete document of itself, for consultation as far as it went.

An attempt has been made to render the Index so far a glossary of terms as to afford the Native equivalents to some of our proper names as well as a translation of some of the most common Native designations into English. Most palanquin bearers would feel bewildered by being ordered to go to the Fort, the Mint, or the Dock-yard, and to a fresh arrival it may be as well to know that "Killa-mee" "Tunksal" or "Godee-mee" will enlighten them; and it may not be amiss that he should know "hamal" means servant, "puttywalla" a messenger, and "purvoo" a writer, even though some of these are not especially treated of in the Almanac.

Our object is to provide for the reader the facts desired to be known with the least possible amount of trouble to himself, not greatly heeding whether the arrangement be perfectly appropriate for an Index or not.

The Calendar

FOR

1856.

NOTICE.—It must be premised, that the time given in this Almanac is Bombay Mean Solar Time, or that that will be shewn by a well-regulated Clock.

SUN-RISE AND SUN-SET.—The Time given in this Calendar shew the instant at which the centre of the visible Sun is on the visible Horizon of Bombay. In calculating the effects of refraction and the Dip of the Horizon, the Barometer has been assumed to be 29·8 in., the Thermometer 80 ° F., and the height of the observer 15 feet above the level of the Sea.

The Time of High Water at Bombay has been calculated from Tide Tables prepared at the Observatory, and printed in the Volume Part II. of 1847, containing Meteorological and other miscellaneous Observations made at that place.

During the year 1856, there will be two Eclipses of the Sun and two of the Moon, but one only of these will be visible in Bombay ; it will be that of the Moon, on the 14th October morning.

INTRODUCTION.

The only explanation which is conceived necessary, to render the scheme of the following Calendar fully understood, is that the Christian months indicated at the top of each page, divide the Native months as they appear represented in the space below allotted to their names. January, for example, partakes of the Hindoo months, Marroo, Poush and Maugh; Guzerat Duxun and Concan, Margashirah and Poush; and Malabar, Dhanuh and Magaram;—the Parsee months Shaenshoyee, Teer and Amoordad; Kudmee, Amoordad and Sharaver; and the date of Nowroz 129 to 156; the Mahomedan months Rubee-ul-akhur and Jummadee-ul-avul, and the Jewish months Tebbett and Sabatt.

In the respective columns the 1st of January corresponds with the 9th of Poush Shood Marroo; Guzerat, Duxun and Concan; the 19th of Dhanuh, Malabar; the 8th of Teer Shaenshoyee; the 9th of Amoordad Kudmee, and the 128th day of Nowroz or Kudmee; the 22nd of Rubee-ul-akhur, Mahomedan; and the 23rd of Tebbett, Jewish; and so throughout the year.

PARSEES.—There are at present two branches of the Parsees, who differ one month in the year from each other; those that are one month forward in their year are styled Kudmees, and the rest Shaenshoyees. The present scheme embraces the Parsee Era of Yezdezerd, commonly styled Kudmee or Dureayee Nowroz, or sea-reckoning, the same being made use of in all nautical calculations among Asiatic mariners, the New Year of which always commences on the 1st day of Furverdeen. The Kudmee reckon the New Year and the Dureayee Nowroz to fall on the 26th of August, one month earlier than the commencement of the Shaenshoyee's New Year. It also embraces the Parsee Era of Yezdezerd, commonly called Shaenshoyee, the New Year of which generally begins on the 1st day of Furverdeen; the Shaenshoyee compute the New Year to commence from the 25th of September, a month later than the commencement of the Kudmee's New Year.

HINDOOS.—It may here be observed that the Hindoo Lunar Months invariably consist of 29 Tithees, or Lunar days; and the whole month is divided into two equal parts of 15 Tithees each; the one called Shookla Puksh, or Shood, the bright half or increase of the Moon, the other the Krishna Puksh, or Vud, the dark half or decrease of the Moon. The Lunar month begins on the Western side of India, and South of the Nurbudda river, with the first day of the Shookla Pukah, (Shood Prutipuda) or bright half of the Moon. At Benares, Oojein, and the countries North of the Nurbudda, the Lunar month begins with the first day of the Krishna Pukah (Vud Prutipuda) or dark half of the Moon. The first is designated the Shookladee mode of reckoning; and the latter, the Krishnadee. The Lunar Year begins with the first day of the Shookla Pukah, or bright half of the Moon in Chytr, both North and South of the Nurbudda, in every country in India; but as the dark half of the Moon precedes the other, or Shookla Pukah at Benares, the half Lunar month of Chytr is taken from the last Lunar month of the year preceding, and considered to belong to it.

It has been already stated that the Lunar month invariably consists of 30 Tithes or Lunar days, but it has been customary with all Eastern nations, in order to regulate their Feasts and Festivals, to drop certain Lunar days, and to reckon others twice to make up the deficiency; the first of these are termed by Hindoos, Kshuvu Tithes (perishable days,) and the days repeated twice are called Virbh Tithes, (additional days). The rule of these is exceedingly simple; those Lunar days on which the sun does not rise, (Sooryodayu nuheen) are struck out; those in which it rises twice are Virbh, or additional; and it is obvious that such circumstances will occur about six times in the course of the Lunar year.

MAHOMMEDANS.—The first day of the Mohurram, or the commencement of the year, is ordinarily reckoned from the first appearance of the Moon after the conjunction observed from an eminence of any sort, or even in cloudy weather from the time at which, but for these obstacles, it would be visible; and this can scarcely happen earlier than 24, or later than 48 hours after the conjunction.—After this manner, each several month is reckoned, and the lapse of 12 such months constitutes the Mahomedan year.

JEWS.—The Jews have ever marked their time by sevenths, according to the command given by God himself, for labouring during only six days of each week, and resting on the seventh, which was consequently set apart, or consecrated, to the service of their Creator:—nay, they not only hallowed the seventh day, or SABBATH, which formed a portion of their week of days, but they had, also, their weeks of years, which consisted of seven years: and their Jubilees, or rejoicing periods which were celebrated by many acts of justice, forgiveness, and restitution, at the end of every week of seven time seven years. The Hebrews, the Assyrians, Egyptians, Arabians, and Persians, all had this custom of reckoning by weeks. The origin of computation by sevenths has been vehemently contested by some authors; who say that the four quarters of intervals of the Moon (the phases, or changes, of which are about seven days distant) originally gave occasion to this mode of division. But it seems more reasonable to conclude that it arose from the traditional account of the first seven days of the world's existence.

We have also endeavoured to disoriminate the Feasts and Festivals of each nation by different sorts of Type; the Hindoo for example, we have distinguished by Roman small letters, as Poush Shood; the name of the Malabar months by Roman capitals, as MAGARAM; the Parsees by small capitals, as AMOORDAD; and the Mahomedans and Jewish by italic small letters, as Mohurram.

NATIVE FESTIVALS, FASTS, AND OBSERVANCES.

HINDOO.

MUCKUR SUNKRANT.—On this day the sun enters the sign "Muckur," or Capricorn,—Vide 12th January. The Hindu festivals are so numerous, and the observances of them are so intricate, that they often bewilder a writer when he sits down to describe them. And it is equally difficult to point out which of the festivals is the greatest. The writers of the Hindu legends have set such enormous merit on the observances of each of them, as to surpass all human comprehension; and they have ever unhesitatingly said, that those observances themselves will obtain heaven. Great rejoicings are held among the Hindus, but particularly among the Brahmins, on account of the feast of Muckur Sunkrant, when the Sun reaches the most southern sign of the Zodiac, Muckur or Capricornus. From this day till the time of his leaving the most northern and returning towards the southern sign of the Zodiac, he is called Utarayan, and his passage to the most southern sign is called Dukshanayan. The vernal and autumnal equinoxes divide the Utarayan and Dukshanayan into two equal parts. The days of Utarayan are esteemed lucky, and those of the Dukshanayan unlucky. During the days of Dukshanayan, it is said that the gates of heaven are shut, and in the Utarayan they are open. For men to die in the Utarayan is considered more blessed, because they get immediate entrance into heaven; but if the righteous die in the Dukshanayan, they shall have to wait outside of the gates till the Utarayan sets in. In the days of Utarayan, Moonj—the ceremony of investing the youths with the sacred cord,—and marriages are celebrated. The ceremonies that are solemnized at the day of Muckur Sunkrant, just at the time of the sun's entrance into the sign, are these:—The Hindus go to the sea, accompanied by a Brahmin priest, to bathe: there they rub their bodies with tillas,* and wash themselves in the manner prescribed in the Shastra. The Brahmin then repeats certain incantations suited to the occasion, and closes the ceremony by receiving due adoration, and a present of money for himself. On their return home they invite Brahmins, present them with a cup of bell-metal, filled with tillas and some money, according to the ability of the Yezaman. Some even present the Brahmins with copper pots, new dhotturs, umbrellas, &c., and the whole family receives benediction from them, which is done by the Brahmins repeating certain words, and throwing on their heads a few grains of red coloured rice. After the performance of this ceremony they go to take their meals, which consist of sweetmeats. They invite their friends and relations to dinner; and towards evening they wear new clothes, gold and other ornaments, and frequent the houses of their friends and relations, distributing tillas mixed with sugar. At the time of putting the tillas into the parties' hands, they repeat these words: "Receive these tillas mixed with sugar, and be friendly with me throughout the whole year." All the praise and prayers that are offered this day, are to the sun and to no other god. The second day of Sunkrant is named Kar, which is generally celebrated by women by making small presents among those of their own sex.

WASANT PUNCHAMEE seems to have been instituted in honour of the Spring, which season is personified under the name of Wausanti, who is fabled as attending on Kama, or the god of love.

RUHSUPTUMEE is dedicated to the worship of the Sun. This day is the beginning of the Munwuntura, or period embracing the reign of a Munoo, of which fourteen govern in succession, during the different ages of the world. The present age is under the dominion of the seventh Munoo; and at the commencement of this period a new sun is supposed to have mounted his chariot.—Vide 12th February.

SH-VAKRATRE—A fast day in honor of Sheva, during which the Linga, or Bachiophallus, is worshipped.—Vide 5th March. Vudh chuttoorasses, or the 29th of every month, is kept sacred by the votaries of Sheva; but Nagh vudh chuttoordasse has obtained its peculiar epithet, Maha Sheva Ratree, or the great night of Sheva. The Hindu legends account in the following manner for its notoriety among the rest of Sheva Ratrees:—In time immemorial an archer of wicked and licentious habits went into a forest this day, to shoot deer. He spent the whole day in the pursuit of his game, and, on a sudden, night came on, and he was left to the mercy of wild beasts. When he found himself in such a forlorn condition, he had recourse to a Bale or Bilva tree† to secure himself from their attack. Having got upon the tree, by way of relaxation, or to get a clearer view, he broke off all the branches that hung around and above his head, and flung them down : fortunately the twigs which he threw fell on the Linga of Sheva, which was near the foot of the tree. Sheva was so much pleased and satisfied by the accidental worship of his votary, that he forthwith sent a Veman, or heavenly chariot, and took the hunter into Kylas, his own abode, with acclamations of joy. To commemorate this great event of the entrance of the archer into Kylas, the Hindus observe a fast this day, and worship Sheva in hopes of obtaining like merit. Observance of Sheva Ratres :—This day the votaries of Sheva fast, and, in the night, repair to the temples of Sheva, accompanied by a Brahmin priest, who performs pooja by repeating certain incantations : first he pours some water over the Linga, and washes it, and afterwards he decorates it with choice flowers. When this is done, the priest takes his sacred book, wherein Sheva's thousand different names are written, and reads the names : and the Yajaman, the worshipper, flings a leaf of Bale over the head of the Linga each time. This kind of pooja is performed four different times during the night, and thus no sleep is obtained for the whole night. This is styled the pooja of the four Praharas, or watches. It commences at about eight P. M., and ends at five A. M. This night the pagodas of Sheva are thronged by devotees. Some persons engage twelve Brahmins, and others four, &c., to perform the Pooja, according to the abilities of the Yajaman. The Brahmins must be liberally paid for their labours.

* Tillas are said to be the favourite grain of the Sun.

† A favourite tree of Sheva's, and which is held sacred among the Hindoos.

HOLKE (Sanskrit—HOLIKA or PHALGUTSUVA).—This festival, called also Doluvatra, or the swinging festival, is supposed by Sir W. Jones to relate to the vernal equinox, and to be similar to the Persian Nowroz. It commences fifteen days before the full moon, on which the ceremonies are terminated, and is held in honour of Krishna. In the freedom with which the lower classes now behave towards their superiors, this festival resembles the Roman Saturnalia ; and in the sending people on bootless errands, it corresponds with our 1st of April. Red powders are daubed upon the image of the god, and thrown and squirted by his worshippers on each other, while females are saluted by exclamations and jests of no very chaste description. The wheaten cake which is placed on the pile lighted at the close of the festival is called pollee, and the right of first offering it in a village is considered as an honorary privilege. Neither the origin of this festival nor the manner in which it is observed, can be described. Nor is this manner of observing it confined to the lower classes of the native community—the highest apparently joining in it with the same zest as the lowest. This festival nominally continues from the new to the full moon, but only a few of the last days are practically and openly devoted to it. For two or three days no respectable women appear in the streets, so obscene and abusive is the language in almost every one's mouth, and applied to any woman that they may happen to see. It is often called Shimga, from the name of the month in which it occurs.—Vide 21st March.

THE HINDOO NEW YEAR (Shalivan, called Goody Podwa).—On the morning of this day a Hindoo first rubs oil upon his body, and then bathes himself with warm water. A pole bearing a flag, and surmounted with a brass or copper vessel, is erected in front of the house. One such pole must be erected by each family. This represents the banner of Indra, the king of the gods, which on this day is also raised in honour of him by the gods. What is done here on earth, is therefore imitation of what takes place in the heaven of Indra. The leaves of the bitter nimb tree are then to be eaten, which secures health to the body, because this tree is the offspring of the Ambrosia of the gods. The Almanac for the New Year is then to be worshipped, and its predictions, in regard to the year just commencing, are to be heard from the mouth of the Jotishees. They tell whether there is to be an abundance or a scarcity of rain, whether there will be unusual heat or cold, whether robberies, insurrections &c. are to abound, whether unusual sickness is to prevail, &c. &c. Each individual on this day also learns what he is to expect during the year ; whether health or sickness, prosperity or adversity, is to be his portion, &c. &c. All these important information is not, of course, to be obtained without some compensation. And not only are presents to be given to the Jotishees, but the poor people are taught on this day to extend their liberality also to the Goroos and Brahmins. The day is also to be celebrated by feasting. This is an auspicious day for commencing a new building, or engaging in any new undertaking.—Vide 6th April.

RAM NOWMEER.—On this day Ramchundra, the 7th incarnation of Vishnu, was born at Ayodaya, or Oude, about B. C. 1600.—Vide 13th April. Rama is supposed to be the same as the Grecian Dionysius or Bacchus, and the object of the incarnation was to effect the destruction of Ravun, the ten-headed tyrant of Lunka or Ceylon, which was at last done with the assistance of Hunooman, the chief of the monkey tribe. The

With of Rama is, strange to say, celebrated eight days previous to its occurrence, that is, from the first of Chytra Sooda to the ninth. From the first day the temples of Rama are white-washed and illuminated in the evening, and the image of Rama is adorned with costly ornaments. In the evening the Ramayana, or the sacred legendary history of Rama, is read in the temples, and in the night Kirtan is preached by the Hurridass, who describes the morality and heroic actions of Rama. Nautes are also not omitted during the nights. In some temples Brahmans are fed with a rich and substantial dinner for eight successive days; these days are denominated Rama saavastres, or nine nights of Rama. During these days, many Hindus, both males and females, go to the temples of Rama to hear the Kirtan and Pooran. The last or principal day, is Ramnavmies, when, it is said, Rama became incarnate at noon. In honour of this incarnation, the Hindus fast the whole day. They get up in the morning, wash themselves, and put on rich clothes and ornaments, and repair to the temples of Rama at about nine o'clock. Every temple of Rama is well furnished this day, and images are decorated with precious ornaments and rich brocade. A Hurridass is engaged to describe the birth and circumstances that attended this incarnation. He continues his prattling till twelve o'clock, when he brings a small image of Rama, nicely ornamented and well clad, and shows it to his audience, and tells them that it is Rama who became incarnate; and puts it into a small cradle prepared for the purpose. The assembly then throw themselves prostrate before the image and worship it. Great is the rejoicing and acclamation of the assembly on this occasion; they fling gobak, a red powder, on each other, and with great mirth about one o'clock they return home, and again go to the temples in the evening. The feast of Ramnavmies is more particularly observed by the votaries of Vishnu.

VUD SEVITREE (SAVITREE VRUTUM).—A fast observed by women at the root of the Indian Ag tree, to preserve them from widowhood.—Vide 18th June.

ASHADY EKADASHEE is the eleventh of the light half of the month Ashad, and is dedicated to Vishnu. On this day, which refers to the summer solstice, commences the night of the gods, during which the deity reposes for four months on the serpent Seshu.—Vide 13th July.

NAG PURCHAMEE is sacred to the demi-gods in the form of serpents. Ceremonies are performed on this day to ensure protection against the bites of snakes.—Vide 6th August. The serpent Kaishi, slain by Krishna, is worshipped at the festival, as was Pythun, at Delphi.

SERAWUN NARUTUL (OR NARULL POORNIMA).—On this day the rainy season is considered to be at an end, and a cocoanut is offered up to the sea to gain its favour towards those who now begin to trust themselves to its mercy.—Vide 16th August.

JUNMA AND GOKUL ASHTUMEE (JUNMA ASHTUMEE).—Instituted in commemoration of the birth of Krishna, which took place at midnight in the city of Muthoora. Krishna, who in many respects agrees with the Grecian Apollo, was the eighth incarnation of Vishnu, in which according to a large sect of Hindus, was manifested a greater portion of divinity than in any of the preceding ones. His uncle Kousu, who it was predicted would be slain by one of his own family, endeavoured to ensure the destruction of the infant god, by placing guards over his pregnant sister; but the child was preserved from this and other attempts of his relations, who subsequently gave directions for the slaughtering of all newly-born infants.—Vide 22nd August. This holiday is considered one of the greatest among the Hindus, and is therefore observed by almost all the Hindu community; there are two sects among the followers of Krishna, and they solemnize the feast on different days. Those belonging to the one keep the birth-day of Krishna on the eight day of the dark moon, and those belonging to the other, the day following, being the one on which he was removed to Gokul, to the house of Nanda, through fear of his maternal uncle, who sought his destruction; and some even keep both days. The former fast on the day of Junma Ashtumi, and the latter on the day of Gokul Ashtumi. They fast the whole day, and at night they bathe and worship an image of the infant Krishna, adorning it with salsee, a favourite plant of Vishnu's, and with other flowers, in the manner enjoined in the Shastra; and at about ten or eleven P. M. they eat their Plakar food, which consists of fruits and some kinds of grain, being prohibited from eating rice and other grains that day. A Brahmin is called in to perform the pooja, and afterwards he himself is worshipped, and sent away loaded with Dakshina and other presents. This is all done according to the rules of the Shastra. The holiday is thus observed among the people of the higher castes. On the day of Gokul Ashtumi, gouless (or keepers of cattle) keep a great jubilee among themselves, as Krishna was bred up among their race. They join themselves into a company, and frequent the houses of the people who follow their profession, holding each other's hands; dancing in the street, and repeating these words: "Goeinda, Goeinda," where they are honoured either by throwing over them curds, or presenting them a certain quantity of curds. These people are called Gopells—protectors of cows. But the most extraordinary thing relating to this festival is the following;—On the night of Jumna Ashtumi, crowds of people, generally of the lower ranks, flock into the temple of Canoba, which is commonly known by the name of Muth; there they hire native music, and continue shouting and making a great noise, so as to deafen one's ears. The Bhugat of Canoba, or the head of the temple, who is very often of the Shudra caste, and who is considered a supernatural being, at least at the time, with great solemnity and grave countenance makes his way through the assembly and stands before the shrine of Canoba, and offers prayers to the idol of Canoba, which is richly decorated on the occasion, accompanied by the playing of tom-toms, and acclamations of joy from his disciples. He is at first quite calm, but shortly after shows signs of inspiration by the god. He begins to wattle his shendi, or the tuft of hair on the crown of his head, and then slowly shakes his limbs. By degrees his whole frame quivers, and he throws his whole body into violent contortions, dancing and muttering strange, ambiguous and wild sounds, which no one can understand. He then takes his scourge, which is kept near the shrine, and scourges himself as if he were insane, and performs many other equally strange actions. No sooner does the assembly around see him in this predicament, then, believing that the spirit of the god has entered into him, they burn incense before him and fall prostrate, and pray to him to be merciful to them. When he has received divine homage, he quietly takes his seat, but does not cease quaking and trembling. His disciples, who are always near him, then commence one after another to shake themselves and dance in the same way; and the spirit of the god is believed to enter them also. This day the great Bhugat can create new disciples, and give them the power of bringing the spirit of the god into their bodies. Sick persons, persons possessed of devils, children &c., are brought to the temple to receive the benediction of the Bhugat and his disciples: he rubs a little ashes on their foreheads, passes his hand over their heads, and gives them full assurance of their speedy recovery from their sickness without taking any medicine. The poor patient, with full confidence, returns home, expecting the fulfilment of the Bhugat's promise; but probably, to his great disappointment and distress, he gets worse, or is perhaps cut off next day. It is a great wonder, notwithstanding such disappointments that the eyes of the ignorant are not opened to see the impotency and imposition of the Bhugat, for they still remain as faithful to him as ever. It is the subtlety of his speech, and the dexterity of his actions, that delude them. The Bhugat receives large presents on this occasion from the followers of his tenets, and he is held in great respect among the orthodox Hindus, and even among persons of some other tribes too. On the following morning, the Bhugat collects the circle of his disciples in front of the temple, and orders a sufficient quantity of curds to be thrown over their heads to wet their whole bodies: they all begin to dance in company, holding each other's hands, and occasionally throwing themselves on the ground and besmearing their bodies with mud, shouting as loudly as they can. The Bhugat, in the meantime, with a scourge in his hand, forces his way into the crowd with all his pretended dignity, and stands in the midst of the crowd, and looks in all directions in his feigned solemnity, and then lifts up his powerful scourge and puts it around the neck of one of his disciples as a token of his regard, and draws him towards himself; when the disciple trembles a little, and then stands firm, stretching his hands towards the sky, with his eyes closed. No sooner does the Bhugat see him in this state, than he scourges him two or three times, so adroitly that it gives him no pain, while to the eye of the spectators it appears a prodigy that he does not feel it. This is repeated till he has shown the same mark of approbation to the whole body of his disciples,—when he ceases and sweetmeats are distributed among the disciples and to all the spectators. Thus terminates the feast of Gokul Ashtumi among the people of the Shudra caste.

PITHOOREE, OR PRACHEEER AUMAWASYU.—A ceremony observed at the New moon of the month Shrawan, at which the 64 Yoginees, or female attendants of the goddess Doorga, are worshipped—particularly it is said by women, with the hope of obtaining issue.—Vide 30th August. The 30th of the month of Shrawan, or the last day of the dark half of the moon is denominated "Prachee Aumawasyu." Prachee is, it is supposed, one of the goddesses of the East. She is commonly known among the people of the Konkan and Deccan by the name of Pethoorie. Wealthy Banians and other people of Guzerat go to Walkeshwar on the previous evening with their families, to remain in the Dhurrumsalla during the night; and, on the subsequent morning, they bathe in the tank of Walkeshwar. (This tank is called by the natives Banghunga i. e., the Ganges produced by an arrow; and they give a marvellous account of its origin. They say, when Rama visited this part of the world, and found that there was no pure water to drink, he pierced the ground with an arrow from his bow and thus brought the Ganges into existence.) They also perform Shradhas on the margin of the tank, and ceremonies for procuring the deliverance of their departed ancestors from the threshold of Yama, the king of the infernal regions, if they still remain at his court or in his dominions. They afterwards repair to the temple of Wakshwar and worship his image, after which they take their meals. The remaining part of the day is spent in amusements, among which gambling is not overlooked or neglected. Booths are erected in the locality of the temple, and furnished with all kinds of the choicest articles that please the fancy or delight the taste. The Hindus on this occasion squander away hundreds of rupees in hiring vehicles, and buying toys and sweetmeats for their children. This holiday is not observed by the majority of the inhabitants of the Konkan and Deccan. It is kept up chiefly by those women who lose their children in infancy. They fast this day and worship an image of Pethooris, by adorning it with various kinds of fruits and flowers, through the medium of a Brahmin priest.

GUNESH CHROUT, OR CHUTHOORTEX.—On this day was born Gunputtee, or Gunesh, who is considered as the God of prudence, and invoked like Janus, at the commencement of all undertakings. The manner of his birth is differently told: one story relates, that as the God Kartikayus was created by Shiva without connubial assistance, in like manner Gunputtee was formed by his consort Parvuttee from the turmeric and oil scraped off from her own body while bathing. The loss of his human head, and the substitution of that of a female elephant with one tusk, is also variously explained. By some, his head is said to have been cut off by Shiva when he endeavoured to prevent the god from entering the chamber of Parvuttee when performing her ablutions as above. According to other accounts, it was reduced to ashes by a glimpse from the eyes of Shunee or Saturn, when all the gods went to look at the newly-born child, and its place supplied by that of the animal first found, which happened to be an elephant. Clay images of the deity are formed, and after having been worshipped for nine or ten days, are thrown into the water. The Chinchore or Chinchwud (properly Deo), who resides at the village of that name near Poona, is supposed to be an incarnation of this god, who granted to a holy Gossayeen, who had won his favour, that the divinity should be continued in his family for seven generations; and though the present one has exceeded that limit, the miracle is perpetuated by the Brahmins for self interest.—Vide 3rd September. It is commonly said among the Hindus, that the Shastra enjoins its followers the worship of Mritica, earth, in the following forms, three times a year:—The first of these is Nagpunchmee, on which day a snake of clay is made and worshipped; the second is Gokul Ashtumee, when a clay image of the infant Krishna is made and worshipped; and the third and the last is Gunesh Chuthoorthes, on which day a clay image of Gunesh is worshipped. This being the last day of the worship of Mritica, it is observed with greater pomp and more ceremonies, conviviality, and music, than the two others. The image worshipped on this occasion has four hands and an elephant's head. The mouse, being Gunputtee's favourite vehicle, is also placed near his image, richly saddled and bridled. Besides this, the worship of Gunesh may be traced to his origin. But different accounts are given in different Purans of that origin, and the consequent introduction of his worship, which it would be rather a difficult task to detail. The image of Gunputtee is either made in the house or purchased from an artist: it is gilt with the finest gold, and painted with superior and variegated colors; much labour and ingenuity is bestowed on it by some to render it elegant and attractive, according to the taste and pecuniary means of the worshipper. The 4th of the month of Bhadrapad is the appointed period for the celebration of this feast. On the previous day, the worshipper cleans and white-washes his house, and furnishes it with all sorts of costly furniture that can be procured. The profusion of light is the first thing that would attract one's eye. On the following morning, i. e. on the day of Gunesh Chuthoorthes, they bring the image home (if it be bought) with great splendour, accompanied by native music, and with all the honors of a god. A place where the god is to be seated is prepared, either in the form of a covered shrine or open space which is adorned with all kinds of fruits and flowers strowed round it, and the twigs of trees hung over in clusters; after which commences the business of the officiating priest, who sits near the master of the house, and begins consecrating the idol, by reciting incantations or mantras from his book, and throwing over it red coloured rice: thus, after performing many consecrative ceremonies, he brings from heaven the god-head into the image on earth. Being thus installed, the devotee places before him, Nayareda food, which consists of sweetmeats, and invokes the god to partake of the offering. Afterwards he falls before him, and prays him to be gracious to him and his family. To perform the whole Pooja, according to the rules of the Shastra, requires at least three or four hours' time. By the generality of the people Gunputtee is kept one day and a half; but by some five or ten days, according to the wealth and wish of the proprietor. A discourse is delivered in commemoration of his godly exploits by a Huridass in his presence, to which friends and relatives are invited to attend. A large party of Brahmins are entertained at a sumptuous dinner, in honor of Gunesh, and they are then dismissed with the usual Duksheena. On the last day preparations for his departure are made. Evening is the appointed time for parting, when the master of the house performs Ooterpaja through the priest, who takes away the divinity with which the image was invested by repeating certain mantras or charms; flowers, fruits and sweetmeats are offered to the idol, and artee, that is lighted wicks, are moved before him, accompanied with music and hymns; and he is invoked to bless the owner and his family, and remove any calamity that might befall them throughout the year. Afterwards the Brahmins are presented with Duksheena, and the image is seated in a palan-keen, or in an ark expressly made for the purpose, adorned with fresh flowers and carried to the sea or tank in procession, which consists of the master of the house, his children and relatives, who are richly attired on the occasion. When they reach the place, they take out the image and commit it to the water, with every devout feeling of regret for its absence till next year. On the day of Gunesh Chuttoothee the Hindus are prohibited by the Shashtra from looking at the moon, and therefore prejudiced and credulous Hindus are afraid to look at her this evening, for fear of incurring any calamities throughout the year. If the vulgar people happen to see the moon, they try to provoke their neighbours to abuse them, and comfort themselves with the idea that the calamities incurred will be all comprehended in that abuse, and removed by it.

RUSHEE PUNCHAMEE.—Observed in honor of the seven Rushees or sages, who are supposed to be the seven bright stars in the Great Bear.—Vide 4th September.

GOWREE.—One of the names of the goddess Parvatee.—Cakes are made in the shape of pebbles, and eaten at night time.—Vide 6th September.

WAMUN DWADASHEE.—Instituted in commemoration of the fifth incarnation of Vishnu, in the shape of a dwarf, to prevent Bullee from obtaining dominion over the three worlds through the effects of his religious austerities. Bullee promised the dwarf at his own request to grant him as much land as he could compass at three steps. On the ratification of this promise, the first two strides of the incarnate deity embraced the heaven and the earth: there being now no place for him to put down his foot for the third time, Bullee magnanimously told him to put it on his head, which the dwarf having done, crushed him down to Patala, the dominion of which was conceded to the ambitious monarch.—Vide 11th September.

PITRU POKSH.—The dark half of the moon Bhadrpad, and sacred to the Pitris, or progenitors of mankind, to whose heaven the souls of the deceased ascend after the celebration of funeral rites, which is particularly proper during this season.—Vide 15th September.

DUSSEERA.—This festival, called Doorga Pooja or Dorgatruva, is supposed to relate to the autumnal equinox. On this day, in commemoration of the victory of Deves, the wife of Shiva, over the monster Maheeshasoor, her images, after having been worshipped for nine days, are thrown into the water.—Vide 8th October. On this day also Rama marched against Ravana, on which account the Mahrattas seem to have selected it as a proper period for commencing their plundering excursions. This day is observed thus:—Early in the morning, the Hindus, having washed themselves, perform the Pooja of their household gods in conjunction with that of all their shastrical grunths or religious books. Marathas and Kashtrians, or those who consider themselves of the military race, worship the implements of war, and ask protection of them throughout the year, under a conception that to the propitiousness of the sword they owe every prosperity. Thereafter at noon they take dinner in the company of their relatives who may have been invited on the occasion. In the afternoon they go to the temples in procession, with friends and relatives, and children, richly attired. Moombadavee and Booleshwur are the principal scenes. Both of these places are thronged by dense masses of Hindus, bearing each in his hand flowers and a branch of a certain tree (Apta) denominated sona (gold), which is held highly sacred and indispensable in commemorating this day. On entering the temple they offer the sona and flowers to the image, accompanied with prayer; they also give sundry Duxuna to the Brahmins, and return home, visit their friends and relatives, present them with a leaf or two of this imaginary gold, and conclude with a hearty embrace, and receive similar treatment in return at the same time. The sona forms the chief article of the Dussera holiday. The vicinity or front of the above temples is surrounded by the vendors of this plant, who range themselves with baskets full of branches in bundles. At night an illumination is made. This day is considered by the Hindus most auspicious for sending their children, who are beginners, to school. The preceding days of the Dussera are called nouratree, a compound word for nine nights. During these previous nine days, the devotees of Durga keep themselves holy, engage a Brahmin to read hymns before her, in which her exploits are extolled and her rewards to her votaries are described. On the ninth day, at every temple of Durga, or Huon, a sacred fire is created and fed with rice and clarified butter, and adored by the reciting of mantras. It is customary among the Banian women to keep up a dance during these nine nights, called Gurbha, which is accompanied with religious songs. The celebration of the Dussera owes its origin to the Pandawas, the five sons of Pandoo having selected this day, after completing their exile of twelve years, as an auspicious one for making preparations for the tremendous war with their paternal cousins, the Gourawas, of which the Puranas give an account, occupying the whole volume. The Hindus decorate the horses with flowers this day, putting garlands of flowers around their necks. It is said that Parth, the most invincible of the five Pandawas, who had a peculiar fondness for horses and a pre-eminent skill in the art of chariot-fighting, and from being auxiliaries in the matters of battle, washed his favourite milk-white horses with great warlike spirit, put garlands of flowers around their necks, and tapped them, in token of fondness and approbation, with his own hand: owing to this legend, it seems, the decorating the horses with flowers this day is observed.

Dewallee—(from Depawali, Sanscrit, signifying a row of lamps)—is celebrated in honor of the goddess Kales, or Bhuvanee, who was formerly propitiated by human sacrifices, and of Vishnu's victory over the demon Tareeskee.—Vide 27th October. The festival, however, seems to be more peculiarly consecrated to Lukshmee, or the goddess of prosperity. The first day (Ushwin wudh) is termed Dhanootriyadashee, and Sowkars now count their stores and perform poofa to their wealth. On the Umawasya, or new moon, there being a fresh account, poofa is again performed before the old and new books. The festival lasts altogether five days. The Dewallee means the feast of illumination, or ranges of light. It is celebrated for the period of five days, during which houses are cleaned, white-washed, and illuminated; a quadrangular floor is made in front of the house, and painted with different coloured powders: it is called Rangolla. Gambling is the chief recreation of the feast. The Dewallee commences from the 28th day of Ashwinwudh,—this day is denominated Dhutriyodashee. This day they collect all the treasure in their houses and worship it, giving the name of Luxumee the goddess of wealth; a light is made and dedicated to Yama, the god of the infernal regions, and every preparation is made for the succeeding morning. Fire-works, crackers, spouters, &c. are displayed, and gambling shops are opened, which continue till the end of the holidays. The 29th is Nurruckustordashee. This day Vishnu killed Nurruckasoor, an invincible giant, after a desperate battle, and entered his city, early in the morning, with the plume of victory, when the people illuminated the city and received him with great joy and acclamation; and the women of the city, having adorned themselves, went before him with lighted lamps and congratulated him. The Hindus keep this day to commemorate this great conquest. This day they get up early in the morning, fill the house with lights, rub their bodies with perfumed ointment, and bathe themselves with hot water. No member of the family is left unbathed: new clothes and ornaments are put on, and children are decorated. When this is done, the mistress of the house performs a sort of ceremony called Artee—by placing wicks either in silver or brass dishes, which mean that God would remove all the difficulties and make the year happy—when each male member makes her a present of money; sweetmeats are distributed, and friends are invited to dinner. The 30th, Amawashie, last day of the moon, is the day of Saraswatee, the goddess of learning and wealth. It is vulgarly known by the name of Pedipoojya, or the worship of the shops. This day the year of Vikram Sumvut, or Vikram's era, closes; all the merchants close their accounts this evening. New journals, ledgers, and day-books are bought and worshipped through a Brahmin priest; new entries are made in the account books; writers are sent to different shops with rupees to credit in their names, on this auspicious evening. Saraswatee is invoked to render the subsequent year prosperous, and to be with them throughout the year; then the Brahmins are sufficiently paid for their labours, and servants receive a present of some money, according to their rank: this day is celebrated by all classes of people—Banians, Parsees, Mahomedans, &c. The first day of Kartick Shoodh is Ballraj, the day of king Ball. This day Ball was sent to Patal, or the lower region, by Vishnu, for his great merit. They also rise up very early in the morning, make the lights, clean the houses, wash their bodies, and fill a basket with all the rags and rubbish in the houses, put a lighted lamp over it, and throw it outside of the house, repeating these words; "Let all the misery and troubles go, and the kingdom of Ball come." After the ablution, the women make an image of Ball Rajah and worship it; presents are given to the Brahmins and other mendicants: and playing with dice is continued with greater ardour and spirit than ever. The 2nd day of Kartick Shoodh is Yama Dwitiya which is commonly known by the name of Bhavedi. This day Yama, the king of the infernal regions, went to his sister to dine, and to perpetuate the memory of this, the Hindus must go to their sisters' houses and take their meal with them, and make them a present of some money or gold ornaments, and thus please the king, who will save them from the punishment of their sins.

KARTICK EKADASHI—is the eleventh day (in some years the fourteenth) of the light half of the month Kartick, and is celebrated in honor of Vishnu. On this day the god is supposed to rise from his slumber of four months—a fable which has reference to the sun at the winter solstice—Vide 8th November.

KARTICK POORNIMA—is the full moon of the month Kartick. On the fifteenth of this month, as well as of Magh, Ashad and Vaishak, each of which day is called "Donnasya Kuru," gifts to Brahmins are considered indispensably necessary, Shiva also is said to have gained his victory at this season over the monster "Triboorasora."—Vide 12th November. Kartick Shoodh Poornima, the full moon in the month of Kartick, is called the Tree Poora Soora, master of the three cities. This demon is said to have become so powerful that he defeated almost all the gods and drove them out of their habitations; when they formed a levee, and went to Kylas, the abode of Shiva, and represented to him their grievances; who after lending an ear to their pitiful supplication, comforted them by the assurance that the evil should be soon removed, and sent them back to their respective homes. He accordingly made a car of the earth, the wheels of which were the sun and the moon. Brahma was chosen his charioteer, the mountain Himalaya formed his bow, and Wasookey, the king serpent, his bowstring. Viabnu himself became his quiver. Thus equipped, Shiva rode himself in it, and destroyed the mighty gaint after a struggle. To perpetuate the memory of this great event, the women of the Hindus get up very early in the morning this day, at about two o'clock, and wash themselves in cold water, and repair to the temple of Shiva, and worship his image. Afterwards they return home, and present a Brahmin with a lighted lamp, made either of silver, copper, or brass, according to their ability, along with some fruits and Dukshena, a present in hard cash; this is called Deepdan, or present of a lamp. In the evening an illumination is made in the temples of Shiva, and a pillar of stones built in front of all of them for this special occasion. A grand fair is also celebrated this day in honor of Walkeshwar, an image of Shiva at Malabar Hill. It is kept for three days, when booths are erected, and shops are adorned with all kinds of articles by the people of all denominations. The Hindus, both the rich and poor, Brahmins and Shoodras, go there and worship the image of Shiva and buy sweetmeats and toys for their children. Some of the wealthy Hindus remain there with their families for three or four days in the Dhurumsalla, or Inns built by them, but the poor return the same evening. During these days hundreds of rupees are spent in hiring conveyances, and purchasing sweetmeats and toys. Among the many other entertainments, gambling is not overlooked.

BIRTH CEREMONIES.

Different ceremonies are prescribed by the Shasters to be observed at the period of conception, and the different stages of pregnancy. "Jatkurm" is to be performed at the birth of the infant, and consists in giving it a drop of honey out of a golden spoon before dividing the naval string. Other rites are to be observed on naming the child twelve days after birth—on bringing him outside the house when three months old—on feeding him with the hand at six months—and, if a male, on shaving his head at the age of three years.

MARRIAGE CEREMONIES.

Among Brahmins the male may be married at any time after the "Moony," or investiture with the sacred thread, which is done within the age of eight years, and among other castes at any age. The female should not be ten years old, and her age must be less than that of her husband; and she should be married before the appearance of the signs of puberty. The Shasters mention eight kinds of marriage, but only one is observed by the "higher castes," named Bruhma, when the charges are severally incurred by the fathers of the parties. The principal marriage ceremonies among Brahmins are the "Lugunputricka," or writing by the Joshee or Astrologer of the names of the parties, and the day and hour at which the wedding is to take place; the "Suptapudee," or walking round a fire three times, at each time seven steps, and tying together the sarments of the parties, and the home or burnt offering; after which the contract is indissoluble. The girl is given away by her father in his own house, in which it is usual for her to remain till the appearance of the signs of puberty, after which she proceeds to the residence of her father-in-law, where her husband also resides, or to that of the latter, should it be otherwise. Particular months and junctions of the planets are prescribed for the celebration of marriages in different castes; as also the same castes in different countries have their peculiar ceremonies, which are too various to be described here. The "Phatshobum," is the performance of certain ceremonies on the occurrence of the first menstuous symptoms.

DEATH CEREMONIES.

On the death of a man, the performance of his funeral obsequies (Kriyasc.) and of the monthly and annual purificatory ceremonies, devolves on his heir. The principal times for performing "Shradh" are eleven days after death; secondly, every month; and thirdly, on the anniversary of death. Brahmins are unclean for ten days after the death of a relation,—the military class for twelve,—the mercantile for fifteen,—and Shoodras for thirty. Among the Hindus, generally, the body of the deceased is burnt, but that of an infant under two years of age is buried. The "Shradh" consists in the offering of rice, flowers, water, &c., to the deceased and to his manes, in order to enable his soul to ascend to the heaven of the Pitris, or great progenitors of the human race.

MAHOMEDAN FESTIVALS;

RAMZAN.—This Mahomedan fast commences each day throughout the month of this name, when the first streak of light borders the eastern horizon, and continues until the stars are clearly discerned in the heavens. During the whole period not the slightest particle of food, not one single drop of water, nor any other liquid, passes the lips from the dawn till the appearance of the stars in the evening. Each day during the fast is passed in occasional prayer, besides the usual namaz, and in reading the Koran or the lives of the prophets.—Vide 6th May. The fast is first broken by a cooling draught called Dundhis, the same which is used in fevers. It is composed of the seeds of lettuce, cucumber, and melon, with coriander, all well pounded, and afterwards diluted with cold water; rose-water, sugar, syrup of pomegranate, and kurat, are also added; the whole preparation is made in the zenana and then drunk by basins full by all true Rosedhairs. Plain boiled rice, with dhile (sour curd,) and sugar forms the first morning's repast of the Eed; dried dates are eaten with it in remembrance of the prophet's family, whose greatest luxury was supposed to be the dates of Arabia. The conclusion of the month Ramzan is celebrated as an Eed or festival, and is hailed with great rejoicing and merriment, as a sort of reward for their severe abstinence. In every house the same dainties are provided, every amusement that can be thought of is indulged in; the nautch-women in the apartments of the gentlemen, and the dominoes in those of the ladies are in great request, the zenanas ring with festive songs; and all is life, joy, cheerfulness, and cordiality, on this last day of the Ramzan, when the lady of the mansion sits in state to receive nuzzurs from inferiors, and to grant favours to others.

EED.—The followers of Mahommed claim to be the descendants of Abraham through his son Ishmael, who, they aver, was chosen as the offering to the Almighty, and not Isaac,—thus differing from the belief of the Jews and Christians, and supporting their assertions by traditions which they deem conclusive evidence on the subject, in opposition to the authority of the Bible. The offering thus made to heaven is annually commemorated by the sacrifice of particular animals, such as camels, sheep, goats, kids, or lambs, according to each person's means, and answers the double purpose of honouring the memory of Abraham and Ishmael, and also assisting to a meal in a time of great need. The followers of Mahommed believe that the entrance to Paradise is guarded by a bridge made of a scythe, or some such equally sharp instrument, affording a precarious and unstable footing. To enable them, therefore, to pass without danger, they believe that the number of animals they have sacrificed at the feast of Eed will be present to lend their aid to help them over in safety.

EED KORBAN.—In commemoration of Abraham offering up Isaac, but in Mahomedan estimation Ishmael; and this is the day on which they annually perform the Haj at Mecca.—Vide 12th August.

MOHURRUM.—A celebrated mourning festival, held annually in remembrance of the first martyr of the Mussulmans—Hasseln and Hooseln—the two sons of Fatima and Ali, from whom the whole race of the Syuds have generated. Hasseln was poisoned by an emissary of the usurping Calipha, and Hooseln, the last victim of the descendants of the prophet's family, to the king Yuzed's fury, suffered a cruel death, after the most severe trials, on the plain of Karbulla, on the tenth day of the Arabian month Mohurrum, the anniversary of which catastrophe is solemnized with the most devoted zeal. Hasseln and Hooseln were, as above stated, the two sons of Ali, by his cousin Fatima, the daughter of Mahommed; and after the murder of their father by the contrivances of the Calipha, they with their families removed from Shawn, the capital, to Medina. After residing there for several years, the people of Shawn, being tired of king Yuseed's tyrannical rule, invited Hoosein to return to the capital and take up his lawful right as Emaum (Leader of the Faithful.) Before accepting this invitation, Hoosein sent Moslem, his cousin, as a messenger, to report the true state of affairs to him; but on his arrival with his two sons at Shawn, he was seized by order of King Yuseed, and cast from a precipice, and his two innocent sons were barbarously murdered, for the sake of the reward offered for their heads. This forms the subject of the ten days' bewailing during the Mohurrum. The Mahomedans are divided into distinct sects, called the Sheas and the Soonies. The former believe Ali and his descendants to be the lawful leaders after Mahommed, and the latter are persuaded that the Caliphas, as Aboubuker, Omar, &c., are the only leaders to be accredited—hence quarrels, animosities, and dislikes are hoarded up, to be avenged during the Mohurrum. The festival begins on the first day of the moon (Mohurrum). Tazias, (a term signifying grief, and applied to a representation of the mausoleum erected over the remains of Amam Hoosein at Kurbulla, made of ivory, ebony, sandal-wood, cedar, and some wrought in silver filigree, and indeed of every variety of material from pure silver to bamboo and paper, according to the rank and wealth of the party, are exhibited in every direction, and conveyed in procession through the streets. Mourning assemblies are held morning and evening, in the Emaum Barrahs, during the Mohurrum, and the head priest or preacher recites a subject for each day's service, from the various books composed on the subject, descriptive of the life and sufferings of Hasein and Hoosein. The Murseeah, a poetical composition of great merit, and embracing all the subjects they meet to commemorate, is chaunted with great effect: the names of their lawful leaders are recounted with blessings, and that of their usurpers, the Caliphas, with curses. Then comes the processions of Dhul Dhull, the name of Hoosein's horse killed at Kurbulla, beautifully caparisoned; and finally the Tazias are deposited with funeral rites in the public burial grounds, when the Mohurrum ceases until the return of another year. The Taboot is a slight framework of bamboo, in the shape of a mausoleum, covered and ornamented with coloured paper and tinsel, and is designed to represent the mausoleum built over the remains of the slaughtered Hoosein. They vary considerably in size and appearance, according to the taste and ability of those who build them. In some of them are the representation of the Tomb of Hasein and Hoosein. Before these Taboots incense is burned, and various other rites are also performed. The Taboots, it is said, are peculiar to India. They, of course, are not mentioned in the Koran, and they are not built either by the inhabitants of Persia or Arabia. Many Mahomedans regard them with strong disapprobation. In Bombay the larger portion of the Mahomedans unite in building the Taboots. These are taken out, and, accompanied with music, carried in procession through the Bhendy Bazar, from midnight of the ninth until three o'clock of the morning of the tenth day, and from two to six o'clock on the afternoon of the same day, on their way to the beach in Back Bay, where the greater part of the Taboots, after being stripped of whatever was possessed of value, are cast into the sea. The practice of building Taboots seems to be losing ground in Bombay, a portion of those who formerly united in this having adopted the views of those opposed to those things. The Indian Mahomedans, who do not unite in building the Taboots, are accustomed to go on this occasion to the mosques for five successive evenings, to listen to the account of the death of Hoosein. Their demonstrations of grief, however, are not equal to those of the Moguls and Persians, who, while listening to the recital, weep aloud, and smite violently upon their breasts. These are accustomed to meet at the Masjid, a little to the east of the American Mission Chapel, near the Baboolah Tank, in Mirza Mahomed Ali Khan Street. In Bombay there is, strictly speaking, no representation of the battle which was fought previous to the death of Hoosein. Some two or three horsemen, bearing flags, enter the large yard adjoining the Emaum Barrah, with loud wallings, and are followed by two horses caparisoned, to represent those which were for the use of the fallen Hoosein. One person on horseback, with a long sword apparently run through the head, and covered with blood, joins in the wallings. A female infant in deep mourning, sitting at the door of a small mausoleum, which is carried on the shoulders of men, constantly casts ashes or cut-straw upon her head, in token of grief. These pass round in a circle, accompanied or followed by a company on foot, who beat upon their breasts, crying, "Hai Hasein, Hai Hoosein." Sometimes a person represented in a dying state, his body covered with wounds and blood, and darts and daggers run into it, is carried about in procession. The whole is indeed, a strange exhibition, fitted to excite in the mind of the enlightened spectator mingled feelings of pity, wonder, and grief. We are not sufficiently informed to give an accurate account of all that occurs on this occasion. It would seem that this festival is now celebrated with less effort and effect than formerly. It is apparently becoming more and more a farce. The grief is doubtless for the most part feigned. The decline of the peculiar zeal of the Mahomedans must necessarily lead them to enter into these with less spirit.—Vide 2nd September.

PARSIS.

THE Parsis of India are divided into two Sects,—the “Shaenshoyees” or “Rashmis,” and the “Kadmee” or “Churigars,” the former of whom constitute the larger portion of the nation. This division originated only about a hundred and fifty years ago, when a learned Persian priest, named Jamasp, arrived in India and found that his co-religionists differed with their brethren of Iran in their calculation of time by full one month, and in other minor points relating to their “liturgy.” Serious disputes arose in consequence, which ended in the formation of the two sects, the Shaenshoyees adhering to their own views, and the Kadmeees adopting the opinions imported by Jamasp, thus agreeing with their Persian brethren. Notwithstanding this division, no estrangement exists between each other in their social intercourse. The difference only lies in their computation of time, and in some slight variations in the forms of prayers. Intermarriage is allowed, as well as admission to each other’s places of worship.

The Festivals of the Parsis, unlike the Hindus and Mahomedans, are celebrated with little or no outward pomp. Their holidays are mostly occupied in prayers in the morning, and festivities and rejoicings during the rest of the day. Some of their religious institutions can be traced to a very ancient period. The festival of the Nowroz dates upwards of three thousand years before Christ, and is kept to this day by most of the nations of Western Asia, notwithstanding their difference of creed. In a paper by the late Col. Vans Kennedy, published in the second volume of the “Transactions of the Bombay Literary Society,” we are informed that the Emperor Akbar adopted the “Nowroz,” and fourteen other festivals of the Parsis, for the observance of those who were attached to his favourite doctrines of the “Alahi faith,” or the “Religion of God,” which he fruitlessly endeavoured to introduce among his people.

PAPPATI, OR NEW YEAR’S DAY.—Among the festivals observed by the Parsis, the first and universally kept is the Pappati, or new year’s day. This day is celebrated in honor of Yazdezerd, the last king of the Sassanide dynasty, who was dethroned by Khalif Omar about A. D. 640. The ancient Persians reckoned a new era from the accession of each successive monarch, and as Yazdezerd had no successor, the date of his accession to the throne has been brought down to the present time, thus making their current year 1225. In their calculations of the year only 365 days are allowed; the leap year is unknown to them, though there are records which prove that in every 120 years one month was added to the period, to correspond with the solar year. The year is divided into twelve months of thirty days each, and five days, or “Gathas,” as they are called, are added at the end to make up the deficiency. On this day the Parsis rise early, and dress themselves in new suits of clothes, and those plausibly disposed say their prayers in their private residences, or attend the fire-temples, where a large congregation is gathered. After prayers the Parsis visit their friends and relations, when the “Hamma-i-Jour,” or “joining of hands,” is performed. This ceremony is a sort of greeting, corresponding to the European fashion of wishing each other a happy new year. Their friends and relations are invited to breakfast. The morning being thus occupied they spend the rest of the day in their country houses or clubs, where feasting, rejoicing, and nautch-parties are kept up till a late hour. Alms are also given to the poor in the course of the day, and new suits of clothes are presented to their servants and dependants.

KHORDAD-SAL.—The second of the Parsi festivals is the “Khordad-Sal” day, or the anniversary of the birth of their prophet Zoroaster, who was born in the city of Rehe in the north of Persia in the reign of Darius Hystaspis, about 520 years before Christ, according to Greek writers. Heeren places the birth of this celebrated personage about 1200 years anterior to that ascribed by the Greek chronologists. The Parsis themselves differ as to the exact time of the birth of their prophet; a part of them fix the period at B. C. 389; others at B. C. 633. Religious ceremonies are performed in the morning by the women of the family and the priests, the men as usual on such occasions limiting themselves to private prayers.

AMAROD-SAL.—This holiday, which falls on the day immediately after the preceding festival, appears to have no origin in the books of the Parsis. It is merely kept up as the continuation of the “Khordad-Sal”; no religious ceremonies are required, and the day is always spent in the enjoyment of epicurean pleasures.

FURROHABDI JASAN.—This day is set apart for the performance of ceremonies for the dead, Furroher meaning soul or spirit. On this day the superstitious portion of the people in Bombay attend on the hills near Chowpatty where their “dockhmas” or “towers of silence” are situated, and there perform prayers for the dead, as if they had a better chance of being heard at that place on behalf of their deceased relations than any other place of worship. This holiday is kept with some slight variations in other parts of India. The Parsis are enjoined by their religion to preserve the memory of their dead by annual religious ceremonies performed in the home; but such of their friends who die on long voyages or in unknown places, and the date of whose death cannot be positively ascertained, are, according to the forms of their religion, honored by sacred rites on this day. This ceremony consists in a man or woman preparing small round pieces of baked bread, called Darouns, which are put in a tray or other copper vessel, along with some fruits and flowers, over which the priest performs the prayers of the Baj, or Vaj as it is called by M. Anquetil du Perron in his work, the "Zend Avasta." According to the translation published by this learned Frenchman, the Baj is an invocation of the manes of the departed, and of such of the Angels who have a direct control over the souls of the dead after their departure from this world. Prayers of this sort are still performed among the Hindus and many sects of the Mahomedans, and are not unknown, we believe, in some of the Roman Catholic countries of Europe.

ARDISEHST JASAN.—This festival, as its name implies, is maintained in honor of Ardisehst Amsaspund, the controlling angel over the sacred fire, that element being one of the symbols of worship. The Fire temples are crowded this day, and prayers offered to the Supreme Deity.

THE NOWROZ.—The fifth on our list is the celebrated Nowroz, called by some as the Nowroz-i-Jamshid or the Nowroz-i-Sultan, the King's day. This celebrated festival falls generally on the 21st day of March, and is co-eval with our Vernal Equinox, and the Mukhr Saccarant of the Hindus. This day is observed by the Modern Persians, the Arabs, the Turks, and several other Asiatic nations, for the computation of the solar year, and for state purposes, such as the collection of revenue, and the arrangements for the agricultural operations of the year. Eastern writers date the origin of this festival from the time of Jamshid, the third king of the Peshdadian dynasty of Persia, and our own Western writers are not disposed to doubt this statement. Jamshid is supposed to have flourished, according to Bailey, 3,209 years before Christ; the Shah Nameh celebrates him as the first prince of his race who introduced civilization among mankind, and established the computation of time. If we are to believe the host of Persian writers, the exquisite Bas-reliefs at the ruins of Persepolis,—still visible in all their pristine beauty after a lapse of two thousand years,—are representations of the Court of Jamshid, more specially on the festival of the Nowroz. The sculptures at this remarkable place, indeed, contain representations of the Courts of Ancient Persia with their long train of attendants bringing in offerings to the feet of the Monarchs; and as the Nowroz is a sort of "revenue settlement" day, when the chiefs of different provinces lay their annual contributions before the throne, and are allowed audience with the monarch, the idea of a part of the Persepolitan bas-reliefs being a picture of some ancient King of Persia holding his Court on the day of the Nowroz, does not appear to be without a good foundation. In Persia this festival is kept for several days with unusual pomp by all the inhabitants, whether Mahomedans or Persia. In India it is simply a day of rejoicing.

AVA ARDUI SUR JASAN.—Ava, in the Zend text, is the name of the Angel who presides over the sea, and this "Jasan" or festival is held in his honor. The Parsis are simply required on this day to approach the seashore, or any stream of water, and chant the prayers which are written in Zend; but, owing to their long residence in this country, they have borrowed many Hindu rites in the observance of this holiday, and offerings of sugar, cocoanut, flowers, &c. to the sea, on this day, are not uncommon. The better informed portion of the community, however, do not join with their brethren in these superstitious acts. In Bombay a Fair is held on the Esplanade in honor of this festival.

ADDAR JASAN.—Addar, another synonyme for fire, is the name by which the ninth month of the Parsi year is called. This is the most religious of the twelve months, and the ninth day of that month is held in great respect and sanctity. On this day the Fire temples are very much crowded, and offerings of sandalwood are made to the sacred flame, and money distributed among the priests.

Besides the above the Festival of the Parsis are the Meher Jasan, the Boman Jasan, and a few others of less importance, all of which are partially observed.

THE MOOKTADS is the name of a ceremony which is performed at the end of the Parsi year. It consists of a pile of brass or silver vessels filled with water and raised above the ground on iron stools. Flowers and fruits are placed there, and religious ceremonies in honor of the dead are performed before the Mooktads. A society for religious reform, which has been lately established among the Parsis, has denounced this ceremony in no respectful terms. According to the tracts published by these reformers, the Parsi Scriptures only require that the last ten days of the year should be spent in deeds of charity, prayers, and freedom from worldly pursuits; they add further, that the ceremony of the brass and silver vessels &c. is borrowed entirely from the Hindu.

PREFACE TO THE CHRONOLOGY.

It has not been deemed expedient this season to reprint the entire Chronology, as it appeared in last year's Almanack. The following table begins with the year 1840 : it has been revised, and greatly enlarged and altered, while no effort has been spared to render it as accurate as possible.

- January 27. Sir C. Napier reaches Bombay, and on stepping on shore addressed the 78th Highlanders, drawn up as a guard of honor to receive him, denouncing as falsehoods the perfectly well established facts in reference to the sickness and mortality in that corps in 1844-45 in Sind, when marched at the sickly season, affirming that the fever first made its appearance at Sukkur in hospital in November, whereas the regimental returns shewed that it broke out early in October at Hyderabad.
- January 28. The ex-peshwa Bajee Row dies : he was deposed in 1819, and his dominions in the Deccan, with its capital Poona, annexed to the British empire. For 32 years he enjoyed a pension from government of £80,000 a year, or £256,000 sterling.
- February 2. Colonel Pew, of the Bengal artillery, dies on his way to Australia, a bankrupt. He was one of the greatest commercial speculators in India : five years before his death he was worth a quarter of a million sterling.
- An earthquake felt in Sind, at Poolajee, and near Sewan. An earthquake felt in the Punjaub, at Lahore and Wuzeerabad.
- Cholera rages at Bombay : the mortality in the past month for the island of Bombay reaches close upon 3,000. The Oriental Bank at Bombay robbed of £9,550 by some of its native employees. A Parsee and Hindu afterwards convicted and banished for fourteen years.
- February 4. The fortress of Daroor, in the Nizam's dominions, is besieged, by brigadier Beatson, and the Rohilla prisoners surrender at discretion.
- February 7. A severe shock of earthquake at Chittagong—twenty people killed by the falling of a mass of rock ; the mud of the tanks and pools around said to have been thrown up to the surface of the water.
- February 10. The ship Rosalind bound for Aden, laden with coal for the P. and O. Company, and the ship St. Clare, also coal laden, bound for Bombay, were both destroyed by fire,—the coals having in both cases spontaneously ignited ; the former vessel was burnt on the 18th and the latter on the 10th February.
- February 14th. Framjee Cowasjee dies at Bombay, aged 82 : for half a century this gentleman was one of the most enlightened, liberal minded, and energetic native improvers, and upright and honorable merchants in Western India.
- February 16. Conspiracy in Nepaul by the maharaja's brothers, general Buddia Sing and Mahila Sahib, and general Jaie Bahadoor, to assassinate Jung Bahadoor, the chief who had recently before visited England as the representative of his sovereign—the first high-caste Hindoo ever permitted to resume his position or caste on returning from foreign parts. The conspiracy was detected and defeated, and the conspirators punished.
- February 17. Frauds in the collection of the Bombay wheel-tax detected to the extent of nearly £4,000 : a commission, consisting of Messrs. Rose and Frere, C. S., and Major Jacob, appointed to investigate them.

1851 —New steamer Lowjee Family launched at Bombay for the Surat trade, being the twelfth steamer brought into existence within ten years by private parties for coasting purposes.

February 21. Major-general Sir Dudley St Leger Hill, in command of the Sirhind division, dies at Umballa.

February 28. A party of six gentlemen who proceeded from Aden to visit Lahedge on a sporting expedition, were attacked by robbers in their beds at night, and captain G. J. D. Milne, of the 24th regiment Bombay N. I., deputy assistant commissary general, was murdered, Lieut. McPherson of the 78th Highlanders, and Mr. Laidley, brother-in-law of captain Haines, being at the same time severely wounded.

—Captain J. D. Cunningham, Bengal Engineers, author of "History of the Seikhs," dies at Umballa. He was a distinguished antiquary, philologist, and oriental scholar. He was deprived of his appointment by the court of directors in consequence of the disclosures made in his history, and had just been taken into employment by the governor-general when he was cut off. He was a son of Allen Cunningham. Two distinguished brothers survive him in the service, captain A., Bengal Engineers, being a man of like pursuits with himself.

March 3. The Buckinghamshire, Indiaman, belonging to the late Framjee Cowasjee, of Bombay, burnt at Calcutta, by incendiaries, just below Diamond Harbour, in the river Hooghly; damage upwards of £120,000.

March 4. The public accounts of the year show for the first time since 1841 a surplus of income over expenditure in India, amounting to nearly a quarter of a million sterling; for ten years past with a gross income of close on 28 millions, we have been borrowing from half a million to two millions annually. The charges of Sind have exceeded its income by a quarter to half a million a year. The Punjab provinces return from this time from half to three-quarters of a million. From 1845 to 1846 a quarter of a million annually on an average has been spent in public works,—about 1 per cent. in direct return. A return published in the Calcutta Review for September shows that this is precisely the sum annually thrown away on useless boards: three and half millions are expended yearly on civil charges, or at the rate of £1,450 per man, while £300,000 is divided amongst 8,007 officers, or at an any average of £414 each, equally competent to perform civil service work.

March 15. The Affredies made a dash at the baggage of the 2nd Punjab cavalry while on its march from Nurree to Bunnoo, but were gallantly repulsed. Captain Grantham, of H. M.'s 98th foot, was severely wounded by the Affredies whilst out riding near Peshawur; one of his hands had to be amputated at the wrist, and he afterwards died of his wounds.

March 17. The governor-general of India reached Peshawur on his tour through the Punjab. Robberies very rife around, and the city extremely unsafe. Disturbances are threatened along the whole line of the Derajat.

—A boat's crew belonging to the H. C. surveying brig Palinurus drowned on the Malabar Coast, near Quilon.

March 21. Major General W. Staveland, c. b., lately appointed to the Bombay Staff, arrives from China by the Malta steamer, and proceeds to Ahmedabad to take charge of the northern division.

March 21. An earthquake felt in Kattywar, accompanied by a storm of rain with vivid lightning and thunder. A house in the town of Jooria in which a large quantity of gunpowder was stored, was struck by the electric fluid: the powder exploded with such violence as to destroy a large portion of the town, and to kill a great number of the inhabitants.

- 1851 March 31. The Bombay wheel-tax commissioners, Messrs. W. E. Frere, C. S., I. N. Rose, C. S., and Major LeGrand Jacob, commence their sittings with open doors. Great efforts made to provide Bombay with an abundant supply of water.
- April 4. The country ship Kurramany, of Calcutta, bound to the Mauritius with emigrants, is burnt in the Hooghly—many lives lost—believed to be the work of incendiaries.
- April 8. Lalla Jotee Pursaud, the great commissariat contractor in Bengal, acquitted of the charges of fraud brought against him by government. His counsel, Mr. Lang, is said to have received £10,000 as a fee:—a paragraph interpolated by him in the published report of his speech which was never uttered in court, gave rise to a criminal action in the supreme court of Calcutta, in which he was cast, and punished by fine and imprisonment.
- April 9. The construction of the electric telegraph completed to Diamond harbour :—the old semaphore, established in 1825, abolished. The telegraph to be carried to Kedgerie, the first point where vessels communicate with the shore, a further distance of fifty-two miles.—Friend of India 9th October 1851, and July 22, 1852.
- April 10.—The clipper Ardaseer, of Bombay, destroyed by fire, near Singapore on her way to Calcutta.—Bombay Times, May 5.
- April 11. Hail fell at Secunderabad. Second hailstorm on the 2nd May at the same place.
- April 14. The five per cent. loan closed, the state requiring no further assistance from without at present.
- April 19. Three severe shocks of earthquake felt at Gwalior and Meckran, at 5 P. M. Several houses destroyed. A succession of meteors, about forty in number, observed betwixt half past eight and ten over Bombay.
- April 20. Remarkable showers of meteors seen in the air at Bombay, Poona, Kolapore, Shikarpore, and Cawnpore, over an expanse of above 10,000 miles E. and W.
- April 22. Hailstorm of terrific violence occurred at Rungpore near Calcutta: hundreds of houses, thousands of trees, and nearly all the fruits in the district were destroyed by it: the hail as large as Pigeons' eggs.—Earthquake at Oothul, Beila, and Beeloochistan.
- Lieut. Johnstone, adjutant of the 5th Madras cavalry, at Jaulnah, shot through the body by an assassin while sitting at dinner with his family :—no trace found of the murderer, notwithstanding a large reward was offered and every effort made to discover him.
- April 27. Ship Ariel burnt at Calcutta, being the seventh vessel destroyed at Calcutta by incendiaries,—the estimated loss £280,000. The loss of the eight vessels burnt at Bombay betwixt 1842 and 1849 estimated at £300,000: the property destroyed at the two ports by lascar incendiaries within ten years above half a million sterling.
- Act against Bombay gambling comes into operation.
- A slight shock of earthquake felt at Mount Abou, near Deesa. A violent storm swept over Meerut—hail stones fell of the size of pigeons' eggs.
- May 1. A furious hurricane raged off Ceylon; a second prevailed at Madras on the 6th, sweeping across the peninsula, and sending up a tremendous swell towards Sind. The ship Charles Forbes, of Bombay, lost in the Straits of Malacca.
- May 4. The London mail of the 7th April reaches Bombay, bringing replies to letters of 3rd March by return of post. Within the past ten months four mails have arrived from London under 28 days: that of 8th May 1850 reached in 27 days 16 hours; that of 23rd July in 25 days 17

- 1851 hours; that of 4th April 1851 in 27 days 12 hours, and that of 7th May in 26 days 11 hours.
- May 5. A hurricane experienced at Madras surpassing in violence any thing that had occurred for eighteen years.
- May 6. The fine new iron steamer Falkland, which had cost government £20,000, foundered. She was intended to ply on the Indus between Mooltan and Sukkur; broke her back and sunk off the coast of Kattywar, in the swell caused by the Madras hurricane in which two other vessels perished off the Coromandel Coast.
- May 8. The Bombay government resolves on the establishment of dispensaries up and down the country, to be placed under the charge of the native graduates of the Grant medical college.
- May 15. The Dholera Tramway opened: the works were commenced on the 5th December 1850, and were completed in six months. The tramway is seven miles in length, and was constructed almost entirely by native capitalists. It was suggested, planned and carried out by Major Fulljames, of the Guzerat irregular horse, who enjoys, almost undivided, the merit of the work. Tramways of a few hundred yards in length had before existed at Bandoop and Poway, in Salsette: this is the first of any considerable magnitude in India.
- May 22. Tremendous fall of hail near Bangalore—pieces of the size of oranges and jack fruit, one block $4\frac{1}{2}$ feet by $1\frac{1}{2}$ or 20 cubic feet.
- June 11. A native vessel, the Atiet Rohoman, from Mecca, with 300 pilgrims, wrecked off the island of Kenery at the entrance to the harbour of Bombay. One hundred persons, chiefly passengers, were drowned.—On the same day the English ship Charlotte was wrecked on the coast twenty miles to the southward of Bombay, with the loss of two or three of the crew.
- July. A return is published of the actions and civil suits brought before the supreme court, Bombay, since 1841: the average on the five years ending 1845 shows 35 in equity, 249 common law plaints, and 672 small causes;—in November 1846 the jurisdiction in small causes was raised from Rs. 350 to Rs. 600, and the expenses of litigation began from this date to decrease, and the number of suits to rise in proportion—the average on the last five years has been 52 in equity, 361 common law plaints, and 1,127 small causes.
- July 4. Lord Ellenborough, in the house of lords, moved for papers connected with the case of Lalla Jotee Persaud: these were promised by Lord Broughton.—The parliamentary committee on steam communication with Australia made their report in favor of the route by the Cape of Good Hope.
- July 9. A return is published of the emoluments of the sheriff of Bombay for the past ten years. The money in all handed over by the governors for the time, as gifts to their private friends, amount to £12,826. The most fortunate of the sheriffs was Mr. Rivett, who obtained the appointment a few years after his arrival in India, held the office four times, and received close on £4,000. Since A. D. 1800 about £100,000 have thus been gifted away. The office is a pure sinecure, and was never professed to be given on any consideration of qualification, merit, or position. It was simply a present of so much to the friends of the Governor.—Since 1800 there have been 56 sheriffs, of whom there were merchants 14; barristers, 12; editors, 5; retired officers, 8; clerk to chief justice, 1; civil servants, 2; uncovenanted magistrates and assistants in government employ, 12; unknown, 1; naval officers, 1.

1851 July 21. The P. and O. Company's steam-Ship Pasha run down by the P. and O. Company's steamer Erin in the Straits of Malacca in 25 fathoms water : nineteen persons were drowned. The ship and cargo were worth £120,000, of which £50,000 was treasure.

August 8. Dr. Charles Gutzlaff, the missionary, dies at Hongkong, aged 48. He was by far the most learned Chinese scholar of his age. He was appointed interpreter to the British embassy in 1824, and was afterwards secretary to the government of Hongkong.

August 11. Dewan Moolraj, ex-nazim of Mooltan, died at Parbutpore, forty miles from Buxar. He was tried at Lahore after his surrender in January 1849, and condemned to transportation to Singapore,—afterwards commuted to perpetual imprisonment in India for having instigated the murder of Messrs. Vans Agnew and Anderson, at Mooltan, in April 1848. He was one of the bravest and most obstinate of the enemies who ever withstood our arms in India ; his life might have been illustrious but for the treachery through which Agnew and Anderson were murdered.

August 12. Seventeen Moplahs, an eminently fanatical mahomedan tribe of about 50,000 residing in Malabar, run a muck, kill the head man of the nearest village, and commit other outrages, take possession of a place near Kolatoor, forty miles from Calicut, and bid defiance to all comers. Part of a detachment of the 39th regiment Madras N. I., first sent against them threw away their arms and fled before them. A reinforcement of H. M.'s 94th foot having taken the field, the whole of the moplah fanatics were slain. This is the second outbreak which has taken place of the same tribe within these two years.—[See September 1855.]

August 16. The honorable Mr. Drinkwater Bethune, law member of council, and president of the board of education, dies at Calcutta. Arrived in India 11th April 1848. He was a man of large and varied accomplishments, and great uprightness and benevolence. One of the most devoted and enthusiastic promoters of native education, he was the father and promoter of native girls' schools, having just before his last illness bestowed on them £5 000.—Provisionally succeeded by Mr. Jackson, Advocate General Calcutta.

—Low-caste pupils expelled from the Madras university.

—A gang of conspirators discovered at Bombay who extorted money by maiming and wounding themselves, and then threatening to swear that they had been assaulted and injured by those whom they wished to swindle.—Bombay Times, August 11.

August 28. The Friend of India publishes an abstract from the extract of that published record of the report on the Nuddia rivers, from which it appears that £370, 000 of net profit have been realized since 1824 on the river tolls, and that this, which rightly belonged to a purely local fund, established for specific improvements, has been appropriated by the public treasury. When the court of directors stated to parliament that in the course of the past ten years £500,000, or £25,000 annually—from revenue of close on £10,000,000 a year—had been expended on private works, they forgot to mention that three-fourths of this sum (£370,000) arose from a direct local source, and was not taken from the public purse at all.

September 10. The lieutenant governor of the N. W. Provinces re-issues the order forbidding civil and military servants of the government from taking any share in the management of joint stock companies ; this was first issued on the 15th February 1837, reiterated 5th April, and re-published in India 24th July 1839.

- 1851 —The ship Lascar lost off Saugor bank, in the bay of Bengal, at the entrance of the Hoogly.
- September 24. Instructions are received from Leadenhall street, that two magnificent steamers of 650 horse power, and 1800 tons each, are to be built for the Indian navy—one at Bombay and the other at Home. They will cost about £120,000 each, and afford a large amount of patronage. It was expected that the Indian navy, which costs the country £333,411 annually beyond receipts, would have been abolished, it being superfluous for a war or transport service and not required for survey duty—the P. and O. Company having offered to perform the packet service cheaper by about £70,000 a year.
- September 25. A violent storm occurred at Bombay, during which a great fire-ball was seen to rush with a loud sound through the air. It plunged into the sea somewhere to the south of the light-house. It was distinctly heard, and the sound and appearance seemed the same for the space of three miles in a direction at right angles to its path. Two inches of rain fell in little more than an hour.
- September 26. Six miles of railway, consisting of large wooden joists, with a flat bar of iron on the upper edge, constructed at the gun carriage manufactory at Bombay, for service in the Punjaub, with flanged wheels, axles, and other iron work for the carriages. It is meant for the transport of the materials of some of the old Sikh forts to a place where they may be made serviceable.
- September 28. Lieutenant General Sir Richard Armstrong, etat. 69, the new commander-in-chief of Madras, arrived in room of Sir George Berkeley resigned—died on his way home March 1854.
- October 17. The Mahomedan riots began. A biographical notice of Mahomed, prefaced by a very ill-executed lithographic portrait of the Arabian prophet, in which, by the blunder of the lithographer and the badness of the printing, he is represented as having only one eye and an otherwise very sinister countenance, was published in an illustrated Goozerattee newspaper edited by a Parsee named Byramjee Cursetjee. The portrait was posted upon the door of a mosque by some unknown and evil disposed person, the Mahomedans took fire at the supposed insult; some thousands of them assembled in the principal mosque of the city, and when service was over rushed out to attack the Parsees, and a great tumult ensued. The disturbances continued for more than a month.
- October 18. Death of Mr. E. F. Danvers, junior magistrate of police, at Alexandria.
- The hurricane visited Calcutta and its neighbourhood on the 22nd and 23rd October did great damage to the shipping off Diamond Harbour and below Saugor. Two vessels—the Bengalee, outward, and the Scourfield, inward bound—were wrecked; the former on Saugor island, and the latter near Point Palmyras—crews of both saved. The Precursor and Powerful with five sailing vessels, driven ashore.
- The entire Mooltan field force directed to be prepared for moving at a moment's notice along the line of the frontier and the Derajat.
- October 25. A force of 2,500 men, under Brigadier Sir Colin Campbell, march from Peshawur to chastise a refractory tribe of Momunds to the north west of that station. The force was at first employed in the explosion of Rehim Dad Khan's fort of Mitchnie, and the villages surrounding. Heaps of corn that lay in store in the houses of these Momunds were fired, and their goods and chattle thrown into the river. The Momunds themselves fired at our troops from a distance, but their shot did us no mischief.

- 1851 October 27. The Oriental bank is incorporated by royal charter, and from the 1st January 1852 styled "THE ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION."
- October 28. The report of the Calcutta committee on ship burning published.
- November 4. Great scandal, in reference to "Khut-put" (corrupt negotiation) at Baroda. Colonel Outram intercepts translations of papers addressed to natives about the durbars which turn out to be minutes of the governor of Bombay and his council, relating to Baroda matters, which had not yet been acted on. These were obtained by corrupt means from the secretariat:—an investigation is commenced in the secret department which ends in the dismissal of a Mr. Marston, one of the junior assistants in that department, suspected of having been concerned in obtaining copies of these documents for an improper purpose.
- Our relations with the Burmese assume an unsatisfactory aspect: Commodore Lambert, R. N., proposes to visit Rangoon with a naval squadron for the purpose of demanding redress for wrongs inflicted on British subjects there, and for securing better treatment for them in future.
 - The commander-in-chief of India (Sir William Gomm) leaves Simla on a tour of inspection extending over the Punjab.
- November 13. The barque Union wrecked in Madras roads.
- November 19. A naval expedition to enforce apology and reparation left Calcutta, consisting of H. M. S. For, 42; H. M. S. Serpent, 12; with the honorable company's warsteamers Tenasserim and Proserpine,—the whole under the command of Commodore Lambert, R. N.
- November 22. A severe storm passed over Goozerat, Cutch and Lower Sind, in which the steamer Surat, betwixt Bombay and Kurrachee, is believed to have gone down—every soul on board, to the extent of 120, perished. Nothing ever more was heard of her, and no vestige of her remains ever appeared. The steamer left Bombay on the 19th.
- Muggumbhoy Kurrumchund, a native gentleman of Ahmedabad, contributes Rs. 20,000 (£2,000) to the establishment of the schools for the education of females in that city, he receives the thanks of government, a gold medal, and the title of rao bahadur is conferred on him.
- November 27. The naval expedition of Rangoon reached on the 27th. The demands of the British government on the Burmese have been forwarded to the court of Ava, and thirty-five days given to the Rangoon authorities to obtain a reply, after which decisive steps will at once be taken to obtain immediate reparation for the insults and injuries complained of.
- December 2. An extensive fire broke out in the storehouse of the P. and O. Steam Navigation Company in the Dockyard at Mazagon, by which stores belonging to the company to the value of from £15,000 to £20,000 were destroyed. The cause of the fire has not been ascertained. The goods consumed by the fire were only partially insured: the buildings in which they were stored were completely destroyed. These latter are valued at £7,500, and belonged to Mirza Mahomed Ali Khan, the owner of the Dockyard, from whom they were rented by the P. and O. Company.
- December 5. The Calcutta semaphore ordered to be pulled down as useless, the duty being now performed by the electric telegraph, of the perfect correctness of which no doubt is any longer entertained.
- December 10. It is determined to send a force against Meer Ali Moorad of Khyrpoor, who has proved himself an arch traitor, having ever since the conquest of Sind by us in 1843 held possession of a large portion of territory by means of fraud and treachery.

- 1851 December 13. An earthquake experienced at Shapore, in Cutchee, and so along the base of the Murree hills.
- December 13. A number of the Mahomedans engaged in the riots at Bombay are convicted at the criminal sessions and sentenced to various terms of imprisonment. Two of the most prominent, who were convicted of felony, were sentenced to transportation for ten years to Penang.
- The murder of two revenue officers in the salt department, in the territories of a Momund chief named Jehan Dad Khan, in the Hazareh district. The unfortunate victims of treachery, Mr. Carne, and his assistant Mr. Tapp, had gone beyond our boundaries in the excess of their zeal for the public service.
- December 14. A slight shock of earthquake experienced in Ooch, Upper Sind.
- December 22. The Futteh Salam, which left Bombay on the 3rd of December, with 230 coolies, emigrants for the Mauritius, lost.
- A slight shock of earthquake felt at Shahpoore and Ooch in Upper Sind.
1852. January 2. Steamers Amazon and Birkenhead leave Southampton—former burnt on the 4th, with the loss of 250—the latter wrecked at the Cape on the 25th February, and 450 persons drowned, strengthening the sailors' prejudice against leaving port on Friday.
- January 6. Commodore Lambert having in consequence of the insolence of the governor of Rangoon, removed British vessels and subjects, and taken along with him a ship belonging to the king of Burmah. H. M.'s ship Fox was fired upon from the shore, and returned the fire by a broadside. The port and river are declared in a state of blockade. The king's professions of peace a delusion.
- The governor of Rangoon causes the old town close by the river to be destroyed; the whole population retiring to the new town a mile and a half off.
- January 18. Ship Hilton Grove, on her way from Newcastle with coal for Aden, burnt at sea 500 miles from the Mauritius, long. 53° E., lat. 30° S. The crew were picked up after four days' tossing about at sea, and carried to the Cape.
- January 22. Proclamation under the authority of the supreme government issued by the commissioner of Sind, intimating that Ali Moorad has been convicted of forging the document on which his interest had been defined, at the time of conquest, by which means he secured a much larger share of territory than belonged to him—his possessions would be reduced to those he had inherited, and be deprived of the title of rais. It was this that gave occasion to the conquest of Sind—such were then our associates, such our policy.
- Sir Charles Napier's Sind camel corps abolished, after costing the state, during the six years of its existence, Rs. 14,87,855, (£148,765) or one hundred and thirty thousand pounds sterling more than would have met the charges of a similar amount of carriage in the ordinary way.
- January 24. An earthquake, extending from the borders of Upper Sind into the Murree country. Overthrew the fort of Khaun, and destroyed many villages and houses in the neighbourhood.—Bombay Times, March, —Geographical Transactions, vol. x.
- Ship Kelso destroyed by fire at Calcutta.
- An act passed, authorising the government of Bombay to entrust the collection of customs to a commissioner or commissioners, by which it is supposed the Bombay and Tanua collectorships will be conjoined, the commissioner being supreme over the whole department throughout the presidency, local custom houses being placed in charge of subordinates.

M.'s steamer Rattler, and despatches the Proserpine to Rangoon to see whether there be any answer from the king of Ava, the time allowed him for consideration having elapsed. She is fired on from the stockades, replies to the fire, and destroys the works—no answer.
- The draft of an act for the appointment of permanent Sheriff for the three presidencies, published. The duties are no longer to be performed vicariously, and the sinecures, which have amongst them cost above £300,000 bestowed within the last half century on gentlemen in favour in high places, will thus become extinguished. The Sheriff is hereafter to be chosen by Government for life or good conduct, from a list of three to be sent up by the Supreme Court. He must be a barrister or solicitor of the court, and not in the exercise of any other profession: he acts at once as Sheriff, Superintendent of Jails and Bridewells, and Coroner.

- May 1. Dr. O'Shaughnessy, assay master Calcutta mint, proceeds to England to make arrangements for the extension of the electric telegraph, having received a donation of £2,000 from government as a reward for his services in planning and constructing that from Calcutta to Diamond Harbour, which has now for thirteen months been worked with such singular advantage and success. Is temporarily succeeded in the mint by Dr. George Shaw, Bombay Medical Service.
- May 3. A severe shock of earthquake experienced at Pillibherat, long. $79^{\circ} 44' 9''$, about 8-28 P. M. Was preceded by a rumbling rushing sound, as of an approaching storm. A thunderstorm had preceded it. At this date there were severe thunder and hailstorms over almost every part of India.
- May 6. The rajah of Coorg, who has, since his deposition in 1827, been residing at Benares as a pensioner on £12,000 a year, arrived at Southampton with his daughter and attendants. The rajah had given up his caste before leaving India. His daughter soon afterwards professed herself a convert to christianity.
- A severe shock of earthquake felt at Darjeeling and the Sikkim Himalayas.
- May 12. The ship John Line experiences a severe squall off Pondicherry, lat. $12^{\circ} 6'$, long. $80^{\circ} 45'$, at 6 P. M.
- May 12. The Ship Centaure, from Calcutta to Muscat, lost off the Arabian coast—wreck plundered by the natives, ship and cargo worth from £50,000 to £100,000.

- 1852 May 14. A terrific hurricane burst over Calcutta—barometer 29.362—more severe than any that had been experienced since 3rd June 1842, when the barometer sunk to 28.278, the lowest ever known in Calcutta, and almost every vessel in the river, and dwelling house on shore, was more or less injured. During the gale there were destroyed in Calcutta 2,657 thatched and 526 tiled houses, with 40 substantial buildings—eleven persons were killed, and two wounded. On the 8th August 1842 the barometer at Calcutta fell during a hurricane to 28.800.
- May 17. A severe gale experienced at the Cape—barometer fell to 29.42 (T. 60), the lowest known since 21st April 1848, when without any change in the weather being experienced, it sunk to 29.38, the lowest on record at Cape Town.
- May 19. A strong force from Rangoon ascends the Bassein river, and attacks and captures the town—three men killed, and 36 wounded—stockades defended by 4,000 Burmese, of whom 500 are said to have been killed and wounded. A force of 500 troops left to garrison the place under the protection of the Sesostri steamer.
- May 26. Martaban attacked by the Burmese—enemy repulsed with loss.
- May 30. A detachment of 230 men sent on board the Phlegethon steamer, and a fleet of boats, to attack Pegue. After some smart skirmishing, drove the enemy before them, and occupied the town, which they immediately afterwards abandoned, and returned to Rangoon on the 5th June.
- June 2. The Barque Ayrshire, in passing Barren Island, observed the volcano in a state of great activity, vomiting forth flame, stones and ashes, while lava poured in torrents down the sides of the peak.
- First squall of the monsoon.
- East India Company's accounts to April 1851 produced; they showed a total surplus in India of Rs. 2,01,33,006: this is diminished by a home debt of Rs. 2,71,71,000, being a deficit of seventy lakhs. In 1849-50, there was a surplus of thirty-five lakhs. Mr. Melvill stated at the Lords committee, that the governor general had eleven crores of rupees at his disposal in November 1851—Friend of India, September 9.
- June 8. A very violent but transient storm experienced at Cuttack, Bengal.
- June 10. A slight shock of earthquake experienced at Mount Abou and Deessa.
- June 22. The ship Christian wrecked on the island of Kenery,—six of her crew drowned. A subscription of rupees 2,500 raised for the remaining ten.
- June 29. Beacon on Kenery, supposed to have misled the Christian and several other vessels, blown up. It was originally intended to have been an obelisk 50 feet high, surmounted by a spar 50 feet, and with a ball at the summit. The spar and ball were pulled down in June 1851, and the obelisk raised to 60 feet. The commanders of the port petition for its restoration to its original form.
- July 9. Prome occupied by the British troops. Twenty-two guns, many of large calibre, taken from the enemy by the steam flotilla in the Irrawaddy under the command of Captain Tarlton, R. N. Flotilla attacked on the 7th by a strong force of the enemy at Konongee. Silenced enemy's fire in an hour, and the steamers proceeded. On the 10th fell in with the rear of General Bundola's army, and after an exchange of shots the enemy fled in great confusion, leaving the general's state barge, standard, 2 gold umbrellas, several large war canoes, and 20 prisoners in our possession. Casualties: Lieutenant I. Elliott, R. A.; Mr. I. Morgan, assistant surgeon H. M. S. Fox; Mr. Hunter, I. N., wounded severely; Mr. Brayer, mate I. N., slightly; 28 guns were taken.

- 1852 July 13. The Ajdaha which left Bombay with the mails on the 25th June, returns, having run short of coal on the 7th, when about 200 miles from Aden, after she had been thirteen days at sea. (See July 6th, 1853.)
- July 14. A severe gale occurred off Ceylon, the brig Hebe wrecked.
- July 15. A smart shock of earthquake experienced at Deesa about 1 p. m. : it appeared to travel from N. to S.
- Dr. O'Shaughnessy's report on the construction of the electric telegraph published by government. From this it appears that since March last 82 miles of telegraph have been in use: Calcutta, to Diamond Harbour, 30 miles south; Bushlopoore to Moyapore, east to west, meeting the previous line half way, 11 miles; Kookroohattee to Kedgerree, crossing the Hulda river, 4,200 feet broad, 25 miles; Diamond Harbour to Kholakhali, 3½ miles; Tarapooka extension line on Kedgerree side, 10 miles; Hooghly river, 1½ miles. The total cost amounting to Rupees 32,000. The returns obtained on this, at Rs. 200 a month, already exceeded 600, or twenty per cent. on the outlay.—(Friend of India July 22, 1852.) The court of directors and board of control are said to have sanctioned lines between Bombay, Calcutta, Lahore and Peshawur. The Friend of India, (July 22) shows that for a quarter of a million sterling 3,800 miles of telegraph, connecting all the principal towns in India, could be constructed, and that the payments of the public for the transmission of intelligence would meet all charges.
- August 4. Captain Elliott, Madras engineers, dies at Masulipatam. From 1841 to 1845 he was in charge of the meteorological and magnetical observatory at Singapore, when the establishment, like most others in India, was broken up, and he was employed for some years on a magnetical survey in the Eastern seas.
- August 7. A furious storm of thunder, wind, and rain, visited Peshawur: Captain Hicks, 15th irregular cavalry, killed by lightning.
- August 8—12. Heavy rain at Kurrachee; from the 8th to the 12th 4·65 inches fell; nearly 3 inches fell on the night of the 10th.

- The barque Madeira, of Glasgow, from Maulmein, wrecked on the Andamans, on a small cone of rock not laid down on the charts.
- August 24. The governor-general and governor of Madras publish the order of brigading the army of Ava, Arracan, and the Tenasserim Provinces. H. M. 18th and the 40th and 67th B. N. I. are under brigadier Reynolds; H. M. 80th, the 10th N. I. and the 4th Sikh locals, under brigadier Dickinson; the 1st Bengal Europeans, the 37th N. I. and the regiment of Loodhiana, under brigadier Huish. Sir John Cheape is to command the Bengal division. Brigadier Foord, Madras army, the artillery. The Madras division is commanded by brigadier general Steele. The infantry brigades are—H. M. 51st L. I., the 9th and 35th N. I., under brigadier Elliot; the 1st Fusiliers, the 5th and 19th N. I., under brigadier Malcolm McNeill. There will thus be under command of general Godwin by the middle of September a force of five regiments of Europeans, or close on 5,000 men, and ten of native infantry, mustering probably 10,000, with sappers and artillery say 1,000, or in all 16,000 men—with a highly effective marine force disposable for fighting purposes of no fewer than 3,000, - or probably 20,000 in all. The magnificent steam flotilla comes in the place of a somewhat short supply of artillery—one troop of horse and three companies of foot: the nature of the country precluded the use of cavalry. With the Irrawaddy in flood, 4,000 or 5,000 of these can be moved by steam from fifteen to eighty miles a day with all their baggage and supplies, with a magnificent reserve of

- 1852 12,000, occupying every post of strength or importance in the rear. The governor general has directed a permanent steam flotilla to be got ready for the Irrawaddy, leaving no doubt as to the fact of purposed annexation : the area to be annexed may be still subject of consideration.
- August 31. The boats of the steam-frigate Zenobia proceeded about 28 miles above Martaban to reconnoitre, and are fired on by the enemy from a stockade 300 yards in length, 10 feet high, and 3 feet thick. The men land, capture and burn the stockade, and destroy an immense quantity of ammunition stored behind it.
- A severe gale in lower Bengal—the tug steamer Lion, with most of her crew, lost at the mouth of the Ganges. H. M. steamer Rattler very narrowly escaped destruction.
- September 16. Severe shock of earthquake experienced in China, Luzon, and at Manilla, in the province of Kansuh, it was felt for 15 successive days. Upwards of 20,000 houses are said to have been destroyed, 300 of the inhabitants perished and 400 others were seriously hurt. The Emperor, in noticing the event, desired a remission of the land tax, and forwarded a supply of money and grain to the distressed.—Stroits Times.
- Base line of verification for the Grand Trigonometrical Survey ordered to be laid down near Kurrachee. The survey commenced in 1804, and up to 1850 had extended over an area of 167,827 square miles, at a cost of £312,389, or Rupees 725 per mile. Our Empire comprises 800,758 miles. Natives states in Hindoostan 508,442, total area of survey when completed 1,309,200 square miles, with a boundary line of 11,260 —Colonel Waugh, Blue Book 1850, Calcutta Review, 1851. The extent of Europe is about 2,793,000 geographical miles, the population 227,700,000. If we deduct the wastes of Russia, Sweden, and Norway, Europe consists of 1,035,800 geographical miles, with a population of 167,182,000.
- September 18—22. The first division of the troops for Prome left Rangoon, consisting of the 18th Royal Irish, H. M. 80th, the 35th M. N. I., and a field battery, with two 8 inch howitzers, and details of sappers and miners.

—The intelligence which left Bombay at 6 p. m. on the 2nd of October, reached London by the Electric Telegraph on the morning of the 26th, or adding five hours for difference of longitude, in less than twenty-four days. The regular mail arrived on the 28th, or in twenty-six days. Although we have had repeated arrivals of greater celerity than this from home, this forms the fastest we recollect of in England from India.

November 1. A gunpowder magazine blown up by accident at Rangoon.

November 3. A petition sent home by the natives of Bombay in favor of various alterations in the India Bill, subscribed by about 3,000, besides 200 from Tannah and 200 from Poona.

—Results of the educational efforts of the Free Church of Scotland Missions, Calcutta branch—2,759 boys and 175 girls at school; Madras 1705 boys and 868 girls—Poona 412 boys and 116 girls—Nagpore 290 boys and 26 girls—in all 7,225 pupils.

November 6. Heavy rains and stormy weather at Bushire, and all over the Persian Gulf.

November 9. Forged cheques for 75,000 rupees, presented by a native and cashed by the Bank of Bengal. The notes immediately afterwards taken to the treasury and exchanged for gold. All traces of the robbers supposed to have been lost.

November 12. Four hundred men of the 18th and 80th and the 51st Madras regiment were embarked from Promé at daylight in the Lord William Bentinck, Damoodah, and Mahanuddy. As the vessels crossed over, and when at a short distance from the bank, a fire was opened from the enemy's stockade. Taking the hint the Sesostris, which had an eligible position for the purpose, commenced "shelling out" in a most vindictive spirit. The Bentinck in the meantime went near in to the shore, and under cover of a fire which she opened, began to land the troops. The firing from the steamers had pretty nearly silenced the battery at the stockade, and no sooner had the enemy observed our men landing than he made preparations for bolting. This meditated run-away manœuvre was seen, whereupon the troops by a smart advance so managed it as to hem in the luckless defenders of the stockade with fixed bayonets, and brought the fellows to bay. Forty of them were made prisoners, among whom was a Burmese chief.

November 14. A violent conflagration occurs at Calcutta.

November 15. Mr. Herries proposes the following committee on Indian affairs, the names in italics were not in the previous committee. (See April 19.) Mr. Herries, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Lord J. Russell, Mr. Baring, Sir Charles Wood, Mr. Bailie, Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Newdegate, Mr. Labouchere, Sir James Graham, Mr. Alderman Thompson, Sir William Molesworth, Sir Robert Henry Inglis, Viscount Jocelyn,

- 1852 Mr. Cobden, Mr. Hardinge, Mr. Milner Gibson, Mr. Mangles, Sir James Hogg, Mr. Hume, Mr. Bankes, Mr. Vernon Smith, Mr. Robert Hildyard, Mr. James Wilson, Mr. Spooner, Mr. Keogh, Mr. Macaulay, Lord Stanley, Mr. Robert Clive, Mr. Edward Ellice, and Viscount Palmerston.
- Twenty-six boats despatched for Kurrachee with the 6th Native Infantry, about 1,400 people on board, fifteen reach Kurrachee together after being seventeen days at sea, four after being twenty-five days, four were driven back to Bombay, and three to Rutnagherry and Hurnee, after being twenty-seven days at sea. An expedition starts from Rangoon for the town of Pegu, on board the steamers Bentinck, Nurbudda, Damoodah and Mahanuddy, with a barge, a pinnacle, two cutters, and a paddle box boat of the Royal Navy—under the command of General Godwin, consisting of 300 Madras and 300 Bengal Fusiliers, 350 Madras 5th N. I., thirty artillery, men and sixty sappers with two 24-pound howitzers. Pegu was captured on the 30th of May, by a detachment of 230 men from on board the Thetagon steamer with some boats.—(See 30th May.)
- Captain Gardiner, with fifty men of the 40th N. I., land from the Enterprise steamer, having been instructed to visit Akoktoun hill near Prome, once a day; on attempting to examine a hill adjoining they became entangled in a jungle filled with the enemy and were compelled to retire. Captain Gardiner and the Havildar who headed the party having been shot dead.
- November 21. Pegu taken; ten men killed and forty wounded, three officers wounded, none killed. The Burmese fired one volley, and fled.
- November 22. The Chamber of Commerce Report just published states that the export duties ordered six years since to be extinguished remain, with the exception of wool, as before; the Macaulay Code has now been seventeen years under consideration, the recommendation of the Jail committee of 1837 remains unattended to, so do the promise of the Court of Directors of 1837 to prosecute tidal and hurricane researches, so far as Western India is concerned—the Chamber on being applied to to furnish extracts of Logs to the United States observatory which had offered 1,500 dollars to the Bombay Chart Fund, and afterwards six dollars a day for abstracts from Logs, requested Government to allow an officer of the Indian Navy to construct the charts—taking no notice of the exertions of America.
- November 24. Lord Frederick FitzClarence arrives in Bombay, and is Gazetted Commander in chief and Member of Council—General Stavelay resumes charge of the Northern Division. Obit. 29th October, 1854.
- November 26. Three small steamers start for Prome, taking detachments of H. M. 51st Bengal Artillery, and Ramghur Irregular Cavalry, with

The number of Directors to be reduced from 24 to 18; 12 to be chosen as at present by the Proprietors, the other six to be named by the Crown. They must in either case have served ten years in India, either under the Company or the Crown. On the 2nd Wednesday of March 1854, the present directors have to meet and appoint 15 from their own number, of whom 6 shall have been 10 years in India, 5 for 2, 5 for 4, and 5 for 6 years, the Crown before then to have appointed three for similar periods. Natural lapses to be filled up by the Crown and Court respectively. The first three casual vacancies to be filled up by the Crown to make the number complete. The Chairman and Vice Chairman to receive each £1000 in place of £500 as formerly, the other Directors £500 in place of £300. The Civil and Medical appointments to be assigned by examination. The double Government and all arrangements in India to remain as at present. A new Legislative Council to be created at Calcutta, and the Furlough Regulations to be amended.
- August 20. Lieut. General Sir Charles Napier dies at Portsmouth in the 71st year of his age and 59th of his servitude. He entered the army in 1794; and served through the Peninsular war. Went to India in October 1841; took charge of the Sind army in November 1842; left India in August 1847; became Commander-in-chief in May 1849; and resigned December 1850. He was one of the most gallant and successful generals of his time, and no British officer, perhaps save his brother William, ever published so many statements opposed to those of official authority, or in conflict with those he himself had previously made.
- The measures of our Government in relation to possession of the districts ceded by the Nizam completed. They not only no longer belong to his Highness, but are under the administration of British officers of his army. Three principal portions of country have been taken;—1st, the Doab of Rachore, a tract between the Krishna and Tumboodra; 2nd, the whole of Berar, from the Ajunta Ghat to the Wurdah, along the north of the line of hills; and a portion south of that for some distance, including the cantonment of Hingolee and the Circar of Bassein, &c. south of the Pague Gungah river. The third portion of ceded territory lies to the west, bordering upon the British collectorates of Sholapoor and Ahmednuggur. From the latter place the river Seena is the nominal boundary, but the real frontier is greatly checkered by alternate possessions of the Company and the Nizam in small detached portions within, or to the eastward of that river. To the north, from its source to its junction with the Therna, the Manjera forms an excel-

- 1853 lat boundary as far as the town and district of Nelingah ; thence a line is drawn as far as Afzulpoor, on the Bheema : all within this boundary is nominally ceded, but the districts lying between Nelingah and Afzulpoor have been retained by the Nizam, as far as the revenue management is concerned ; and the rest has taken possession of, with the judicial and police jurisdiction over what his Highness the Nizam has been allowed to keep. The value of these cessations, on a rough estimate, is as follows, that is, the present value :—Rachore Dooab, $1\frac{1}{2}$ to 11 lacs : Northern Berar, 20 lacs ; Southern, with Bassein, $7\frac{1}{2}$ to 8 lacs : Western portion, Puranidah and Nuldroog &c., south of the Manjera, 11 lacs, if the four reserved districts are estimated, if not, about $7\frac{1}{2}$ lacs. This gives a total of about $45\frac{1}{2}$ lacs of rupees net revenue as present. The Rachore Dooab has been divided into two equal portions—the Sircars of Rachore and Moodgul, or Eastern and Western Dooab. The first is held by Brigadier Hampton—the second by Captain Balmain. The western districts are held by Captain Taylor, employed hitherto at Shorapoor, the Northern Berar is managed by Captain Bullock, and the southern portion by Brigadier Johnson. All these officers, except Captain Balmain, was before in the service of the Nizam as local officers, as they are termed—that is in the military service of the Nizam, without commissions in the Company's army. Captain Balmain, was also in the contingent as an Artillery officer, but belongs to the Madras army.

April. Louis Napoleon and the Empress spend a fortnight in England.

April 9. The bombardment resumed, and continued with more or less continuity to the 25th.

May 1st. The Allies capture the whole of the Russian rifle pits, eight large mortars, and 200 prisoners.

May 3. The expedition to Kertch recalled.

—General Canrobert resigns the command of the French army, and is succeeded by General Pelissier.

May 20. A fleet with 11,000 troops, under Admiral Lyons, dispatched towards the Sea of Azof.

May 22. The French took the rifle pits between the Quarantine and Central Bastions, after a fearful struggle and a heavy cannonade.

May 23. The fight in the same rifle pits was resumed with still greater slaughter. The French had 1,600 killed and wounded, and the Russians (whose losses were mostly caused by the French field pieces) were supposed to have lost 6000.

May 24. The expedition to Kertch sailed again. The Russian garrison in the place fled at the approach of the squadron, first blowing up the magazines and destroying the stores. The allies proceeded to Yemkale, which was garrisoned. The war-shippers captured and destroyed some 250 vessels, laden with grain, supposed to be supplies of the Sebastopol garrison. Arabat and Genith were similarly visited, and immense quantities of Russian stores destroyed. At Arabat a magazine was blown up. The whole Sea of Azof was scoured, and the corn supplies intended for Sebastopol cut off.

May. During this month, the Sardinian contingent of 10,000 men arrived.

May 25. 20,000 French, the whole of the Sardinian force, and 20,000 Turks marched to the Tchernaya heights, which were evacuated by the Russians, and occupied the position. By this process the area of the allied army position was nearly doubled.

June 1. Admiral Bruce in the Barracouta, the French Frigate Alceste enter Peterpolowski in Russian Kamschatka, but find the enemy fled. Every preparation had been made by them for defence, when orders reached from Petersburg for the abandonment of the place.

1855 June 6 The fire on Sebastopol was renewed. The next day the fire from the Mamelon was sensibly diminished, one gun after another being silenced by our heavy firing. That night the French attack on the Mamelon took place, simultaneously with the English attack on the Quarries. After a short and decisive fire, the French soldiers swarmed up the heights, attacked the Russians at the embrasures, and in a few minutes had full possession of the much-coveted Mamelon. In order to hold the English attack on the Quarries, the French advanced from the Mamelon towards the Malakoff itself. They, however, shortly retired from this advanced position on the Mamelon, and were followed by large bodies of the Russians, and although once obliged to abandon it, they ultimately entrenches themselves in it. Some of our men, this evening, penetrated into the Redan, which they found empty, its defenders having evidently gone to assist the defenders of the Malakoff. The English made good their footing in the Quarries.

June 8 to 17. On the capture of the Mamelon and the Quarries, the trenches of the besiegers were pushed out towards the Malakoff and the Redan. Zouaves ran in every direction in front of the Redan.

June 13. Mr. Corfield, Chief Magistrate of Police, Bombay, makes affidavit that he never received any one of four writs or notices sent him by the Sheriff of the Supreme Court; five parties contradict this statement on affidavit. Mr. Corfield is afterwards fully and honorably acquitted by Government from the charge of perjury.—Bombay Times, 1st and 3rd August.

June 13. The ship St Abbs, from London 4th March, for Bombay, wrecked on St Juan de Nova lat. $10^{\circ} 10'$ S, long $51^{\circ} 2'$ E, in consequence of bad charts settling down the Island at $52^{\circ} 20'$ E.; 20 hands, ship and cargo lost, 5 saved.—Bombay Times. October 1 and 3.

June 17.—The bombardment of Sebastopol again resumed. For three hours the fire was warmly returned by the Russians, when it entirely ceased.

June 18.—This day was made the disastrous attack on the Malakoff and the Redan. The attempt was made in the first instance by the French troops to storm the Malakoff Tower and surrounding works, and by the English to carry the Redan, and both fell, with heavy loss to the besiegers. Amongst the English officers killed, were General Sir J. Campbell, Lieut. Col. Yea, of the 7th Fusiliers, and Lieut. Col. Thomas Shadforth, of the 57th Foot. The total English loss on that occasion were about 2,000 killed and wounded. The error of the attack seemed to be in engaging the enemy at only two points, and this the strongest and best defended.

June 25. Mr. Corfield, Chief Magistrate of Police, Bombay, found guilty of trespass, in giving judgment without evidence—afterwards dismissed by Government.

June 28. Lord Raglan dies of cholera at Sebastopol. Widow receives a Pension of £1,000. Succeeded by General Simpson.

- August 16.—The battle of the Tchernaya.—The Russians attacked in large force—estimated at 5,000—the allied force on the Tchernaya heights, with a view evidently of driving them back from their position, and so relieving the Malakoff and the Redan, felt to be in great danger. The Russian force crossed the river at several points, but it was attacked from all sides by an unerring fire from the English, French, and Sardinians, and hurled back to their former position, but not until they had suffered a terrible loss. They abandoned in their flight all the means of throwing up entrenchments which they had brought with them. The Russian loss on this occasion is estimated at 5,000 or 6,000 killed and wounded. Prince Gortschakoff has been very severely blamed for his tactics in this battle—pushing on his army to certain destruction. The prince again lays the blame of the defeat to the precipitancy of General Read, who was killed leading on his division.
- After the battle of the Tchernaya the Russians were seen constructing semicircular lines behind the Malakoff to strengthen it. At the same time General Simpson strengthened the allied extreme right by sending the Highlanders to that quarter, in close proximity to the Sardinians.
- Sept 1. Great British Embassy reaches Ava, and is cordially received.
- Sept. 1. Omar Pacha dispatched with troops against the Russians into Asia Minor.

Sept. 6. Orders received from home to build a fifty-gun steam-frigate, of 2000 tons burden, as recommended by Sir H. Leake. She will cost £125,000 by the time she is ready for sea, her current charges amounting to £50,000 annually. Other three screw steamers, said to be on the way from home, with large augmentations in all departments of the Indian Navy. The whole, including interest on the money sunk in the Dock-yard since 1840, will bring the cost of the Indian Navy up to close on a million sterling annually—one fourth of the nett revenue of the Presidency.

September 8 and 9. The South side of Sebastopol evacuated by the Russians, in consequence of the deadly fire of the allies, and the successful attack and capture by the French of the Malakoff Tower. In leaving the place the Russians burned all the buildings, blew up all the magazines, and destroyed all the remaining ships of the Black Sea fleet in Sebastopol harbour. The siege of the south side of Sebastopol has thus lasted exactly 316 days, reckoning from the time the fire was first opened on 17th October, 1854.

—Among the different articles found at Sebastopol are the following :—Shot, 40,314 ; shell, 101,755 ; packages of grape, 24,080 ; gunpowder 262,482 kilogrammes ; ball cartridges 470,000, in good condition, and 160,000 damaged ; 52,000 kilos of old sheet copper ; 50,000 kilos old rope ; 25,000 kilos new ditto, of different sizes ; 730,000 kilos of bar iron and steel ; 60,000 kilos of copper, and 20,000 of brass ; a very large quantity of deal timber masts, yards, &c. ; 50,000 kilos of old copper, and 80,000 of old iron ; 2000 tons of small coal for the use of the forges ; and a great number of machines of different kinds &c. Of provisions there were found 500 tons of bread, 150 of flour, nine of barley, 117 of black wheat, 18 of oats, 20 of wheat, $\frac{1}{2}$ of peas, and 60 tons of salt meat.

- Oct. 8. A Spinning Mill started at Broach—the first of the kind in Western India. The whole erection had only occupied ten months.
- The large frontier town of Herat said to have been captured by the Persians.
- Oct. 14. The Allied fleet bombarded and capture Kiburn near Odessa, in the bay betwixt the Bug and Dnieper, and remain in the neighbourhood till the 1st of November. The English force consisted of the Royal Albert, 131 guns (bearing the flag of Rear-Admiral Lyons); Hannibal, 91 (bearing the flag of Rear-Admiral Stewart); Agamemnon, 91; Algiers, 91; St Jean d'Acre, 101; Princess Royal, 91; Sidon (steam frigate), 22; Dauntless, 33; Terrible, 21; Leopard, 18; Furious, 16; Curacao, 30; Tribune, 31; Spitfire, 6; Piteful, 6; Valorous, 16; Sphinx, 6; Firebrand, 6; Stromboli, 6; Vulcan, 6. Gunboats:—Lynx, Beagle, Viper, Arrow, Snake, Wrangler. Small Gunboats:—Clinker, Fancy, Cracker, Boxer, Grinder. Mortar boats:—Terror, Mustiff, and Sully; and Moslem and Brenda tenders. The French fleet was composed of the flag-ship of Admiral Brault, and three other screw line-of-battle ships, several steam frigates and gunboats, and three floating batteries. The whole allied fleet thus numbering of all sizes, from three deckers to rocket-boats about 90 vessels. Of the land troops the English supplied five regiments, the 17th, 20th, 21st, 57th, and 63rd, forming the first brigade of the Fourth Division with one battery of field artillery, and 1200 marines—800 of them from Balaklava and the rest from the fleet—besides an adequate proportion of land transport for the whole. Brigadier Spencer was in command of this force. To this the French contributed an additional force of about 8000 men, under General Bazaine, who had the command-in-chief.
- Oct. 23. One of the leaders of the Santhals insurrection surrenders.
- Great disturbances in the Kingdom of Oude.
- Oct. 27. General D'Allanville, with twenty-four battalions, 38 squadrons, and fifty six guns, advances along the road from Eupatoria towards Simpheropol, and compels the Russians to retire.
- Oct. 27. Active operations conducted with great success in the White Sea where about 150,000 tons of commerce had been extinguished in the course of the blockade.
- Oct. 27. A violent squall in the Arabian Sea, off the Gulf of Aden.
- November 1. Colonel Malcolm, Resident at Baroda, dies, and is succeeded by Major Davidson, Assistant Resident at Hyderabad. Col. Malcolm had held the appointment of Assistant Resident at Hyderabad and of Political Agent at Joulpore and Gwalior.
- Martial law proclaimed against the Santhals, and General Lloyd with a strong force takes the field.
- November 1. The fleet withdraws from the Baltic on the approach of winter.
- November 1. Sir W. Codrington appointed to command the army in the Crimea, General Simpson having returned home.
- November 3. General D'Allanville defeats the Russian Cavalry eight leagues north of Eupatoria, and capture vast supplies of sheep and oxen.

- 1855 November 4. The Governor General leaves the Neilgherries for Madras, proceeding via Bangalore, reaches Madras on the 10th, having travelled the last fifty miles by rail.
- The Rajah of Tanjore dies without heirs, and his property and territories lapse to the British Government.
- November 5. Government publish letters from Mr. Secretary Anderson, containing the Advocate General's reply to a reference made to a charge against Mr. Corfield of misconduct in connection with his trial in June. The Advocate General admits that papers were brought to him by Mr. Corfield, containing evidence a set of disreputable scoundrels had offered to give against the prosecutor, though this was evidently false, and as it appeared afterwards obtained by the most corrupt means, Mr. Corfield was suffered to place it in the archives of Government, duplicates being forwarded to the Board of Control and Court of Directors, though it had no bearing on the case. Mr. Corfield threatens to prosecute the Bombay Times which has exposed the matter, but abandons his purpose.
- November 5. Omar Pacha forded the Ingour at the head of 20,000 men, defeated 10,000 Russians entrenched, killed 400, captured 69 and 3 guns—lost 300. Crossed the Anakara and entered Georgia on the 7th, dispersing 16,000 Russians at the point of the bayonet, killing 400 and capturing 40 with 5 guns—lost 70.
- November 6. A proclamation issued by the Governor General on the arrival of the final intelligence of the fall of Sebastopol. The intelligence received a fortnight before though perfectly correct, was not official, and was not credited on its arrival in India.
- November 8. The Allies push northward from Eupatoria, and defeat the Russians.
- November 8. The Czar returns from Nicolaïff to St. Petersburg, not having visited Warsaw as proposed.
- November 10. King of Oude's troops proceed against the insurgents, disperse them, and kill their leader Ameer Ali.
- November 15. Tremendous explosion of gunpowder shells and cartridges in the French lines near Inkermann.
- November 15. Governor General leaves Madras for Rangoon, where he arrives on the 29th, and Calcutta on the 29th.
- Violent explosion at the Powder-works, at Mazagon.
- Dec. 1. Lord Canning leaves Marseilles for India, reaches Alexandria on the 7th, and quits Cairo on New Year's day, embarking on board the Feroze for Bombay.
- Dec. 1. Misunderstandings betwixt the Rana and Chiefs of Oodepore endeavoured to be adjusted by the Political Agent.—Bengal Hurkaru, Dec. 3; Bombay Gazette, Dec. 13.
- Dec. 2. Lord Elphinstone proceeds on a tour to Goozerat, the first genuine tour of inspection made by any Bombay Governor since 1833, when Lord Clare proceeded on an interview with the Governor General in Rajpootana.
- Dec. 2. A large concourse of the Parsees at Bombay met in the Town Hall on the occasion of the Thanksgiving for our success in the Crimea, when after a lecture, giving a history of the war, delivered by Dossabhoj Framjee, the proceedings concluded with the following prayers:—"O Almighty God, let Thy shadow always fall wherever the 1855 British rule exist.—Grant it, O God, success in all its undertakings—vanquish by the aid of Thy powerful hands all its enemies—and grant that its greatness may still rise, and its moral effects be spread over a still greater portion of the world. Receive our humble acknowledgements, O Lord, for having placed us under such a beneficent rule, and we pray to Thee to preserve us under it. Grant, O Heaven, that the Government over our head, be actuated in ruling over us, with still greater kindness, and its effects be spread still wider. O Almighty Protector, preserve for ever, secure our lives and properties, as they now are—and grant that the security may be still more strengthened. Bestow, O Lord, still more merciful heart to the Queen who reigns over us. We pray to Thee, O Almighty God, to bless her armies with success in the great war in which they are now engaged and bring to a speedy end the great strife, by granting victory to those who have gone to shed their blood in the right cause. Grant, O Gracious God, that we may continue to live as we now do, with perfect security to ourselves under the Government in which we now are, and that we may ever be impressed with a grateful sense of the advantages which we enjoy under this benign reign—Amen.”

December 8 The king of Sardinia visits England, and is received with immense applause.

December 8. General Anson, Commander-in-Chief of the Madras Army, appointed Commander-in-Chief of India in room of Sir W. Gomm.

—Great apprehensions entertained at Bombay of scarcity of water.

December 20. Maneekjee Cursetjee become Sheriff of Bombay, one of the most contemptible members of the Parsee community—and the first native who ever occupied the office.—Bombay Gazette, 16th, 20th, 21st, and 22nd October 1852; Oriental News, 21st and 27th March 1853; Bombay Times, December 31, 1855.

December 30. Santhal insurrection entirely extinguished. Heavy bodies of troops moving on the frontiers of Oude.

December 31. The Government Central Museum, Bombay, open for the reception of specimens.

INTERCOURSE BY MEANS OF STEAM BETWEEN THE EASTERN AND WESTERN WORLDS.

IN 1830 Captain, afterwards Lieutenant-Colonel, Chesney, while travelling in Mesopotamia, had descended the Euphrates on a raft through a distance of very nearly a thousand miles : his descent had commenced at El Kaim. The following year he examined the river 300 miles higher up, from Bir to Sawosat.* India had at this time been blessed with three years of peace, and was recovering from the effects of the Burmese war : it was difficult to discover where the next war-loving Governor-General could find an enemy to assail, or a pretence for attempting or provoking attack. The world had not dreamt of the madness of throwing away twenty millions of treasure and thousands of human lives, and, more precious than both, a vast instalment of character and credit by marching into the wilds of Central Asia,—not for the sake of extending or consolidating empire, but—for the purpose of meddling with the private affairs of one of the most warlike nations in the East, and replacing and maintaining on the throne a wretched imbecile who had been twice already expelled from his kingdom. The Charter Act had just passed, and the new brooms must not appear incapable of performing the duties proverbially assigned to them. With these things the power or the influence, the importance and the expediency, of the establishment of a communication with India by the Mediterranean, was brought under the notice of the House of Commons in 1834, when the Committee recommended that an expenditure of about £20,000 should be permitted to be incurred for the purpose of testing the probability of the scheme. And here, before proceeding to the consideration of the Red Sea portion of the question, agitated in India from the year 1824 onwards, we may give at once, as a quotation from the Edinburgh Review, the details of the experiment performed by Colonel Chesney :—

“ In November, 1834, Capt. Chesney had the honour to be appointed, with the rank of Colonel, to the command of the expedition. The assent of the Turkish Government having been obtained, Colonel Chesney, on his arrival at the mouth of the Orontes, in April, 1835, was prepared to expect the support and assistance of Ibrahim Pasha. From the 14th of April, however, till the 9th of July, the local authorities opposed various impediments to his procuring the necessary means of transport. The framework and machinery of two river-steamers, one of fifty and the other of twenty horse-power, had been brought out. To move the boilers of their engines and the other heavy material, proved an undertaking of considerable difficulty. The Orontes was navigable, however, for a part of the distance ; so that the Tigris, the smaller of the two steamers, being put together and launched within the bar, transported the machinery and armament of the larger vessel to Murad Pasha, some miles in the interior. Here the transport was again taken to pieces, and, with her cargo, disposed on trucks to be drawn by bullocks across the table-land which intervenes between Murad Pasha and the valley of the Euphrates, at Bir. But the promised bullocks were not forthcoming: the water of the river, in the valley of which the heavy goods were waiting the means of carriage, rose and submerged the boilers and the diving-bell. Meantime, the more portable material of the expedition had been forwarded by camels and horses, and even carried on the backs of the men; but the boilers and diving-bell remained immovable. At length, after nine weeks of thwarting opposition, Ibrahim Pasha permitted the owners of the necessary number of cattle to supply them. The boilers and diving-bell were fished up and dragged to their destination. Unfortunately, the anxiety, exposure, and fatigue of these operations, threw Colonel Chesney into a fever: indeed, none of the party escaped at least one attack of illness. Notwithstanding all obstacles, the depot on the Euphrates, a few miles below Bir, had been in the interval prepared by an active officer, Lieutenant Lynch: and here the task of framing and fitting up the steamers was carried on by workmen from the builders' yards at Liverpool. While the steamers were in progress on the stocks, the officers made good use of their leisure in a quasi-scientific recognisance of the upper valley of the river; where the discovery of a mine of plumbago on the Taurus, near Marash, and the identification of certain classical sites, rewarded the excursion. Colonel Chesney, who had been so ill on setting out that he had to be lifted to his horse, returned with restored health; and, the steamers having been completed and launched, the expedition set forth, on the 16th March, 1836, in high spirits, and full of splendid anticipations. The course of observation was as follows:—

“ A boat was dispatched ahead usually for a distance of twenty or twenty-five miles, sounding and taking bearings, which being placed on paper, when the officer returned he became pilot to the vessel for the distance examined, and a second set of bearings with a double set of soundings were taken from the steamer's deck. Simultaneously with the water operations thus carried on by Lieutenant Cleveland and Messrs. Eden, Charlewood, Fitzjames, and Hector, there were two other sets on land viz. a chain of ground trigonometrical angles along the principal heights based on astronomical points by Lieutenant Murphy, R. E., and a small one with a succession of short base lines from bend to bend by Captain Estcourt.”

“ We make this extract from a statement of the labours of the expedition (Despatches, p. 78.), drawn up by Mr. Ainsworth, their surgeon and geologist, who at this period appears to have been their chief penman. Mr. Ainsworth is an eminently unsatisfactory writer; and we cannot but ascribe a good deal of the difficulty, which Colonel Chesney appears to have experienced in making the country aware of the value of his services, to the repulsiveness of Mr. Ainsworth's infelicitous method of composition. How far any knowledge acquired by the expedition on the nature of either the river, or the country, or the population, is likely to affect our communication with the East, for the present at least, is another question. The facts speak for themselves: and on this the public will pass judgment, if it has not already passed it.

“ But the expedition was now to experience a greater misfortune than that of having a tedious and perplexing penman for its chronicler. After descending 509 miles through a channel somewhat more intricate than was expected, but still with complete success, the steamers on the 21st of May had reached a place called Werdi, about twenty miles above El Kaim, when a hurricane suddenly arose, in which the Tigris foundered. The hurricane was accompanied by thick darkness; and so powerful was the wind that it needed all the force of the engines of the Euphrates going at full speed, backed by three cables from the bank, to keep her from being driven from the berth, where Lieutenant Cleveland had had the good fortune to make her fast on observing the first approach of the danger. Two officers Messrs. R. B. Lynch and Cockburn, and twenty men, went down in the Tigris in five fathom water. She sank within eight or ten yards of the left bank; to which Colonel Chesney and the survivors managed to make their way, or were rather blown and washed by the force of the hurricane. They were, in fact, carried with the surf over the bank a considerable distance into a field of Indian corn. The loss of the Tigris was a severe blow. Drawing considerably less water than the Euphrates, she had hitherto led in the descent; and in her engine-room the experiments had been conducted on the comparative heating powers of wood, coal and the native lignite and bitumen, which were supplied by the Arabs on the banks. A vessel of her small dimensions would have been of infinite use in the subsequent part of the survey, on passing through the narrow and tortuous channels of the Lamum marshes. The loss, however, was irreparable, and the expedition proceeded. Colonel Chesney was now upon the waters he had formerly navigated on his raft: and repeated, in safety and at leisure, the observations which, in 1831, he had snatched furtively from behind his bulwark of sacks and portmanteaus. The whole descent to Bussorah was effected by the 19th of June. The Euphrates by this time stood in need of repairs, which, having been completed at Bushire, at the head of the Persian Gulf, Colonel Chesney resumed his exploration of the rivers which join the united stream of the Tigris and Euphrates near its mouth; after which he ascended the Tigris to Bagdat, for the purpose of obtaining a series of levels from that city to Felujah. Returning from Bagdat to Kurna, at the junction of the two rivers, the steamer took, in the Indian mail, with the view of reascending the Euphrates with it. This would have been the grand feat of the expedition, if it had been accomplished. But the Euphrates was too large a boat, and drew too much water for the passage of the Lamum marshes at that season—before they had ascended more than half way to Hillah, one of the engines became useless,—and the party, in deep disappointment, had to put about and return to Kurna. From Kurna Colonel Chesney proceeded to Bombay, leaving the command with Major Estcourt, who after another ascent of the Tigris, and an extended examination of the delta of the united rivers, finally, in obedience to orders from the Foreign Office, broke up the expedition towards the end of January, 1837.

“The main object had been to test the navigability of the Euphrates. This was done. It has been established, in point of fact, that at the lowest period of the river it might be descended and ascended by river steamers of suitable dimensions; that abundance of fuel could be had all along the banks; and that the bordering tribes were eager to deal for articles of British produce and manufacture. And all this has been effected at a cost, including the value of the lost Tigris, of less than £30,000.”

The Court of Directors, loaded with the expense and responsibility of all such things as these, and with the blame in addition should anything go amiss, and relieved only of the direction and control, were in 1834 informed by the India Board of what had been done in Parliament. They were told, moreover, that the Admiralty were prepared to dispatch thenceforth a steamer monthly from Falmouth to Alexandria, and they were requested to make arrangements on the other side for a monthly communication with Bombay. It was suggested that the Court, without waiting for the further arrangements they might deem requisite, or instructions they might think it expedient to issue, should make provisional arrangements at once; and the Hugh Lindsay, which had been built in 1828, was desired to be dispatched for Suez as an experiment. The intention to this effect, forwarded to the Court in August, appears to have been under consideration till March 1835, when it was represented that the charges of steam communication betwixt Bombay and Suez for two thirds of the year had been estimated at £80,000, and that the entire outlay could scarcely fall under £120,000 a year. The Court did not deem themselves authorized in laying so heavy a burden on the revenues of India without a specific pledge of the recommendation of the Committee of 1834 being given—that H. M.’s Government should bear one half the charges.

The Court at the same time recommended that, for the sake of occasional communication, two steamers, of at least 500 tons and 200 horse-power, should be provided for the general service of the Indian Navy—the cost of these was estimated at £60,000; and they requested leave that the revenue and judicial committee should be authorized by the Board of Control, to construct ships accordingly. The Board of Control ready enough to issue orders for the opening up of the Red Sea communication, seemed startled at the expense the first step in the matter was likely to incur: and before proceeding further they required to be informed whether the steamers in question were to be provided by public competition or private contract—whether they were to be fitted with copper or with iron boilers, and whether they were to be constructed exclusively for a packet service or for the purposes of war as well as this. The Board were of opinion that vessels of 450 tons were sufficient, and to this size they were disposed to restrict them, unless it should appear, on the authority of naval officers of experience, that the addition of 150 tons, and a corresponding horse-power, would add materially to their efficiency as vessels of war in the Eastern Seas. The Court replied, in reference to the refusal of the Board to grant permission to incur the charges specified until information on various points had been given, that the same course was now desired to be adopted as had been pursued when iron boats were provided for the navigation of the Ganges: by this means much time and many references were saved, and there was no reason to suppose the results otherwise than advantageous to the public service. Vessels were to be purchased by public tenders, invitations to offer for the contract being however restricted to builders and engineers of known and established name: it had beforehand been explained that copper boilers were to be employed, and that they were not intended to be built mainly, much less exclusively, for the packet service, as it depended on the terms conceded by H. M.'s Government whether the Red Sea line should be formally opened up or not. The steamers were to be built so as to answer the great purposes of the war service of the Indian Navy, acting as packets when required. The views of the Court on the subject of the most suitable size of vessels to be employed, are so sound and so well expressed, that we must give them entire: Leadenhall Street shows so immensurably above Cannon Row in the discussion, as to have it all pretty nearly its own way:—

“Fifthly. With respect to the opinion of the Board in favour of smaller vessels than those proposed by the Court, the Court consider the examples of the “Enterprize,” the “Forbes,” the “Ganges,” and the “Irrawady,” practically conclusive against that opinion. The “Hugh Lindsay” is a vessel of inadequate tonnage for the fuel of a long voyage; but having great proportional power, she is able to do what no other vessel in India can do, to go and return within a moderate time between Suez and Bombay. Large vessels have this recommendation for long voyages, that double power propels more than double the bulk, and there is, of course, greater proportional stowage for fuel, and greater space for general accommodation, and great power has this recommendation, that though it consumes less in equal times, it consumes less in equal distances, especially against head winds.”

The letter bears date 25th July 1835. A twelve-month seems to have been expended in making this very moderate advance with the business,—the correspondents on both sides being equally leisurely in their movements. The matter seemed at length to have come to a stand-still altogether until July 1836, when the Court once more reported their adhesion to the resolution recorded a year before—that they did not deem themselves warranted in saddling India with £120,000 a year for steam communication, unless Her Majesty's Government chose to attend to the recommendation of the Committee of 1834, and bear a half of the expense. Mr. C. Grant had now given place to Sir J. C. Hobhouse as President of the India Board, and on the 10th April 1836 he represented to the Court that though the Committee of the House of Commons had in 1833 recommended that half the Bombay steam charges should fall on the treasury of the Crown, no step had as yet been taken by the Ministry in consequence of this recommendation,—that 28,000 had been expended by the Crown on the Euphrates expedition,—that heavy charges were being incurred annually in forwarding the mails,—and that such was the demand for regular communication overland, that some other means would be sought out for the purpose of securing it should the Court decline to co-operate. What was here meant by co-operation, when the Court were desired to perform the whole task and incur the entire charges, does not appear: nor is the nature of the assistance Government contemplated resorting to, mentioned. None assuredly could have been looked for for which payment would not be required from the Crown. Few things would in all likelihood have appeared more desirable to the Court than to find themselves set aside altogether, and steam communication instituted independently of them and without their aid. Immediately subsequent to this, Sir J. C. Hobhouse appears to have referred the whole matter to a committee then sitting for the promotion of steam communication with India,—the body the India Board had probably had in view as a last resort, failing the Court of Directors. The committee state that the company to which they appear to have belonged proposed starting a steamer betwixt Bombay and Alexandria, and another betwixt Bombay and Suez. The report referred to is without date—the letter of Sir J. C. Hobhouse to which they reply is withheld: all we know of it is, that this last was dated 27th August. The committee talk of the company's share-list having been opened on the 13th ultimo. Assuming this as meaning Augt. the subscription list was just opened two days after the despatch of Sir J. C. Hobhouse's letter to the Court of Directors threatening them with a rival. One might almost imagine, indeed, that the company was organized in terrorem. The results were not however very terrible, even had the India House been disposed to take the alarm at having to pay £25,000 only in place of £120,000 for the establishment of steam communication. The company estimated their primary outlay at £250,000, with an annual expenditure of £150,000,—each of the items being at least one half too low. They proposed that they should receive all the sea-postages: they were to convey letters and official despatches free of charge: H. M.'s Government were to contribute £4,000, and the East India Company, £25,000, a year; and the company were to enjoy the contract for a term of years—of what extent is not specified. The report referred to was forwarded from the India Board to the India House on the 7th December, and was replied to on the 1st February. As already stated, the Court estimated the expense of steam communication with Suez at £120,000 a year—the actual charge is set down at the end of the blue book as £100,000. On what grounds it was assumed that £150,000 would cover the annual outlay all through, does not appear. The Court, in their reply, stated that they felt that mail conveyance should not be entrusted to the hands of private individuals, but that it ought to rest with the Queen's and Company's Governments; and they repeated their willingness to close with the terms suggested by the Committee of the House of Commons four years before,—that is, that the outlay should be divided betwixt them; that on these they were now as formerly ready to act without loss of time. The reply was forwarded to the Lords of the Treasury on the 3rd February, for once without delay; and their lordships replied on the 9th March, that they concurred in the view of the Court that the mail should be in the hands of the two Governments, and that the people themselves ought to meet a fair share of the expense. Why three years should have been permitted by the Board to elapse before a reference so simple as this, which settle the whole question, was made, does not appear. Their lordships stated that Parliament must be appealed to before a public grant could be secured: they said that they assumed that steam navigation with the three presidencies was intended—why, is not explained, as the Court's estimate referred to Bombay alone, for which £120,000 was deemed requisite, and they directed that information on the subject of the cost of mail conveyance through Egypt and Syria should be procured. In forwarding this to the Court of Directors Sir J. C. Hobhouse expressed his concurrence in the views of the Treasury Lords as to the necessity of including the three presidencies in the scheme: how this was to be managed by the use of a couple of steamers 450 tons each, with the Hugh Lindsay, all he had at first been disposed to concede, is not explained. The Court, in reference to this, very wisely suggested that the consideration of steam communication direct from Suez with Madras had better be deferred till it was ascertained how that from Bombay exclusively answered: they stated that the dawk routes of communication betwixt the presidencies were being improved, and that this might meanwhile suffice; and expressed their cordial gratification that arrangements were at last being made for the completion of the overland passage.

Matters being thus far closed, an attempt was next made to saddle the Court of Directors with any extra charges that might occur betwixt Malta and Alexandria—a regular packet line had before been established betwixt England and Malta, so here there was no additional outlay,—and with the expense of the transmission through France, estimated at £3000 a year, with which the Foreign Office declined to be charged. On both these points the Court were firm, even though opposed by the Chairman of the Board of Control, always anxious to throw as much as possible on the revenues of India could the national treasury thereby be relieved: they were willing to perform at once what they had promised at the outset—meet the charges from Bombay to the Mediterranean: on the European side of Syria or Egypt they would pay nothing.

It having been made known throughout India that a mail overland was to be dispatched from Bombay, Colonel Chesney left our shores in the steamer Hugh Lindsay on the 28th April 1837, with a packet of 3,463 letters under his charge. Stormy weather was experienced in the passage to and up the Gulf, and the steamer occupied five days more than had been calculated on. Colonel Chesney pushed on as speedily as possible: he traversed the great desert between the Persian Gulf and Damascus, a distance of 915 miles, in seventeen days. From the loss of time occasioned by the delay of the Hugh Lindsay and the change in the dispatch of the packet from Beyrout, he was compelled to proceed to Alexandria, where he found a French steamer, in which he embarked for Malta. On reaching Syra he was delayed five days waiting for the French steamer Dante. On reaching Malta he found that the prevalence of the cholera had caused the whole British fleet to be sent to sea, and there was no steamer at his disposal. At the recommendation of Sir H. Bouverie he embarked once more in the Dante, and arrived at Marseilles on the 5th July. They anchored some eight miles off the shore at 5 A. M., and it was three in the afternoon before boats arrived to take them to the lazaretto, which they reached at 5 P. M. It here appeared that the fumigation of the letters could not be suffered to take place till next day. This operation over, Colonel Chesney was informed that a courier direct could not be sent off—the letters must all in the first place be forwarded to the post-office, and thence they might be received by the British Consul. The Consul was instructed to make a formal demand for the public despatches at all events, but the postmaster had left for his residence in the country, and the answer reached next morning—it was to the effect, that as there were no means of distinguishing letters from despatches, both must remain in charge : in reality the despatches had been carefully made up separately, and so marked by Colonel Chesney on forwarding them from the lazaretto, with a request that they should be sent to the Consul for transmission. The Marseilles authorities seem not to have been blessed with good memories, though obviously of the class of persons for which these are proverbially deemed requisite. They first said that they could not distinguish the letters from the despatches, while they were in reality forwarded to them in separate parcels distinctly marked ; then added that they had been sent on promiscuously to Paris ; and having apparently forgotten all this, they afterwards explained that they had been kept separate, the despatches having been transmitted by themselves. There seemed almost a combination to mar the project at the outset : five days were lost betwixt Bombay and Bushire ; two or three more betwixt Beyrout and shipment at Alexandria ; five at Syra waiting for a steamer ; two at Malta coaling, and three at Marseilles for no particular reason,—or eighteen days in all—the time now generally taken betwixt Alexandria and Bombay. The despatches at length arrived in London on the 11th July, having been sixty-four days on the route.

It will, from what has been stated, appear how innocent were the Court of Directors of the blame so often thrown upon them of being averse to, or desiring to retard, direct communication. The delay of four years which had up to the close of the arrangements just detailed, occurred, is due entirely and exclusively to the Board of Control. We shall not at present compare or contrast the soundness of the views of, or accuracy of the information brought to bear on the subject by, the two. The establishment of steamers, of 1500 tons in 1847 is sufficient commentary on the opinion that vessels of 450 were enough.

We have not been able to lay our hands on the plan of Captain Johnstone—we find it ridiculed by a correspondent of the Asiatic Journal in 1823, who spoke of it as having been for some time familiar to the community, and we gather from his letter that it was intended by Captain Johnstone to pursue the present line from Bombay to Suez. This gentleman, then, seems to have had the merit, if merit there was, of being the first to suggest the Red Sea line of communication, and navigation by steam betwixt Bombay and Suez. It does not appear from the documents before us, that anything was done in the matter till long afterwards, and the attention of the community seems at this time to have been directed to steam communication by the Cape. On the 12th July 1824 the steamer Diana, the first that ever floated in Oriental waters, was launched at Calcutta. She was a vessel of inconsiderable size, but we find no account of her dimensions. A few weeks afterwards a meeting was called at Calcutta of those anxious for the promotion of the cause of steam navigation, and in the course of next year a lac of rupees was subscribed amongst the merchants, and offered as a prize to any one making a successful steam trip to India by the Cape. The money was contributed by Calcutta alone, the other presidencies having subscribed nothing: it was invested in Government securities, and competitors for the prize were not slow in making their appearance. Early in 1824 the steamer Enterprize, of 500 tons, was laid down, and by the end of the year was nearly ready: a supply of coals was forwarded to the Cape for her use, and she was expected to reach Calcutta in sixty days. She had two engines of sixty horse-power each, and was for her size greatly under-powered,—one hundred and seventy horse-power being about the usual proportion to this tonnage: her boilers were of copper: her machinery was made by Maudsley. Much time had been lost in her completion, and she was not able to leave Falmouth till the 15th August 1825. She experienced a heavy storm on the way, and various misadventures delayed her passage, so that it was the end of October before she arrived. The Enterprize on her arrival was purchased by Government, and proved of the utmost service as a transport during the Burmese war. The voyage of the Enterprize was considered to have established the fact that steam by the Cape was out of the question: the cost of it was double or treble that of the ordinary mode of transport, while the celerity it presented was too dear at the price. A meeting of the subscribers to the steam fund was held at Calcutta on the 17th January 1827, at which it was resolved that one-half the funds subscribed for the promotion of steam navigation should be bestowed on Captain Johnstone, who had brought out the Enterprize, as a mark of respect and gratitude on their part for the public spirit, perseverance and intrepidity, displayed by him. The balance of the funds was to be retained in the hands of the committee, for the remuneration of any attempt which might within this period be successful in carrying out the objects the meeting assembled in December 1823 had in view. We were up to the time of the purchase of the Enterprize by Government, indebted to private speculation for all we possessed in the shape of steamers in India. In May 1827 Calcutta boasted, and with reason, that the Diana was in the Rangoon river,—while the Comet, a small-sized vessel of twenty-four horse power and some seventy tons burthen, with a consort of like dimensions, plied on the Ganges as packets, and were found most convenient for passengers. In the early part of 1826 some sound and sensible remarks appeared in the Bombay Courier on the subject of steam communication betwixt Bombay and Cosseir,—and shortly afterwards on that with Suez direct. At this time a valuable coal-field was believed to have been discovered by Captain (now Lieutenant-Colonel) Grant, in Cutch, and the idea that we could supply ourselves with fuel from the neighbourhood, stimulated expectation as to a speedy and successful issue to the project in view.

The Court of Directors seem, at the juncture just referred to, to have been affected with a sort of tertian, when the cold fit of economy and warm one of extravagance succeeded each other in rapid succession. In 1821 they had given instructions that the Indian Navy should be reduced to its peace establishment, in so far as consistent with the security of British interests, and that it should consist from thenceforth of two vessels of eighteen guns for service in the Persian Gulf, one of ten guns under repair or for service at Bombay, and one steamer for general duty. At the close of the Burmese war the Hastings frigate, that outrage on naval architecture which had been built on purpose, was sent back to the presidency and dismantled,—a state in which she remained until wrecked in November 1854, and the Bengal Government were directed to make over to them the steamer Enterprise. In October 1827, just at the conclusion of the Burmese war, when the exhaustion of the treasury was extreme, the Court desired the Bombay Government to keep the Indian Navy on the following footing for the present :* at the former of these periods its total charge amounted to eleven and a half, at the latter to seventeen and a quarter lacs of rupees :—one frigate, the Hastings, thirty guns ; three sloops, twenty-four guns ; four ditto, sixteen guns ; two ditto, ten guns ; and two steamers, of five guns. In a subsequent despatch of December 1829, and before the instructions of the preceding had been fully complied with, the Court stated that, in consequence of the present embarrassed state of the finances of the country, they did not feel themselves at liberty to authorise the construction of the twenty-four gun vessels, and that every expenditure that could be avoided or postponed without great detriment to the service, should be abstained from. Sir Charles Malcolm, Superintendent of the Indian Navy, had given it as his opinion, that the smallest number of vessels that could be done with was, one for the Persian Gulf, one for the Red Sea, one Surat and the Gulf of Cambay and Cutch, one for the Malabar Coast, and two for the presidency,—one to be kept in readiness in case of accidents : or ten in all, counting steamers. War was proclaimed against Burmah in March 1824, and the Court of Directors, impressed with the importance of the services of steamers as transports and on the river, desired two vessels of 500 tons each to be laid down at Calcutta. The lines were prepared by Sir R. Seppings, surveyor to the royal navy : the engines were procured ready made from the Admiralty, to save time. The two vessels were of the same size—they were called by the names of the Irrawaddy and Ganges. The former was launched on new-year's day, the latter on the 12th February, 1827,—six months after the war for the service of which they were constructed was brought to a close. In the end of 1828 the Ganges was sent round to Bombay : she was the first steamer that had ever been seen from our shores, and amongst a community long distinguished as ship-builders and alive to all improvements in naval architecture, the astonishment she excited was extreme. It was about this time that a plan was first laid before Government for the establishment of steam-tugs on the Hoogly, by which an enormous saving in time to vessels in their arrival and departure was expected : the loss for want of them incurred by Indiamen alone during the two preceding years, was estimated at Rs. 22,450.

In 1827 the building of the Hugh Lindsay, a stout little steamer of 450 tons, was commenced : in May 1829 her engines arrived—they were of eighty horse-power each, by Maudsley. She was launched shortly afterwards.

On the 30th of July 1823 Mr. Waghorn's scheme of steam communication was first laid before the Committee of the Subscribers to the Steam Fund Calcutta. This gentleman belonged to the Bengal Pilot Service : he was a man of unbounded activity and enterprise, but so fickle in his plans, and so

* A large number of these facts are taken from the MS. papers of Sir Charles and of the late Sir John Malcolm, the report of the finance committee, and other documents, which have not, that we are aware of, ever been published : they have now been eight years in our possession.

confused and unmethodical in his arrangements, that the excellence of his projects was generally marred in process of execution. or the fruits of the seeds he had sown reaped by other hands. He undertook to bring mails from England to Calcutta by the Cape in seventy days—the average being 120, the minimum about eighty. His steamers were to be of 280 tons, and some eighty horse-power : they were to be constructed after the plan of the Norway packets Monarch and Sovereign; their masts to be like those of row-boats,—short, and capable of being struck at pleasure, with square yards, and canvas as light as could be made—spread of sail being secured by stunsail-booms. The vessel was to be fitted up as a mail-boat exclusively : letters were to be charged 4s. each—parcels a like sum per ounce. She was to carry no passengers : her hull was to be filled as full as possible of coal, and a small cabin on deck was to serve for the accommodation of both officers and men until room for the latter could be found below as fuel was expended. Forty tons of coal were to be stowed in tanks, to be afterwards filled with water, to maintain the trim of the vessel, as her fuel became expended. She was to start from Falmouth, and stop at three or four coaling stations on the way : she was to call at Madras during the S. W. Monsoon ; throughout the rest of the year she was to proceed direct up the Bay of Bengal. The whole was to be effected on Mr. Waghorn's responsibility : he was to receive the postages and freights ; and with this, with what assistance in the procurement of a vessel or recompense in the event of success, the public might think fit to accord, he professed himself ready to proceed. The Calcutta Committee agreed that Mr. Waghorn should receive the balance in their hands, to assist him in carrying out his plans, should no more promising project than that detailed by him make its appearance before the middle of January 1829, and Government sanctioned the carrying out of the projects proposed by him. We have already noticed the views of the Bombay Courier on the subject of the establishment of steam communication with Cosseir and Suez so far back as 1826 : about the time the project of Mr. Waghorn for steam communication by the Cape was being laid before the Calcutta community, the Bombay Government were making preparations for the working of the Red Sea route, and we have been unable to lay our hands on any document tending to make good the claims of the gentleman already named, so often spoken of as the father or founder of over-land communication.

On the 28th February 1829 the cruiser Thetis left Bombay as convoy to one of the Delhi Princes on his way to Mecca on pilgrimage : she carried with her 600 tons of coal, to be left in parcels at Aden, Juddah, Cosseir, and Suez, preparatory to the experiment resolved to be commenced on the 15th November ; and she was followed by the brig Owen Glendower with a similar cargo ; while Lieutenant Moresby was dispatched on a preliminary survey to trace out the proper path for a steamer to Suez. Corresponding arrangements were now being made on the Mediterranean side, and by the month of August the Bombay Government considered themselves authorized to intimate the dispatch of the packet, and terms of postages and fares. Letters, if not more than one rupee in weight, were to pay four rupees,—this sum being chargeable for each additional rupee in weight : passengers were to be charged Rs. 1200 to Suez. At length the Hugh Lindsay started on her first trip on the 16th November : she drew two feet more water than was estimated,—sufficient allowance for the difference betwixt the weight of teak and oak not having been made in her lines,—and was so deeply loaded at starting, and so light when her coals become nearly exhausted, that no proper estimate of her performances could be made. She occupied seventy days on her going and returning voyage,—having in this time traversed 5,923 miles : she was in reality only forty-one days under steam,—a very fair performance under the circumstances, seeing how often thirty-six days have within these few years been taken.

Mr. Waghorn, on receiving the assistance at Calcutta already referred to, proceeded with his usual energy to canvas for supporters, and having beaten about everywhere, reached England in the following April, sanguine of success. He expected by the month of June to have received the assistance promised him from Calcutta, no project save his own having from the time of his departure been tabled. June, July, and August, passed away, and no letter came, and it then became known that the Bombay Government proposed to start a steamer, the Enterprize as was imagined, for Suez, about the close of the season. Assistance had been previously offered him by the East India Company, and by many London Merchants, in the prosecution of his scheme, but he resolved that this should stand still until funds were received from the East, or until he had himself ascertained the cause of their non-appearance. The Court of Directors chanced at this time to have despatches of importance prepared for transmission, and they were entrusted to Mr. Waghorn, who had determined on proceeding to Bombay through Egypt, in hopes of meeting the Bombay steamer. He left London on the 28th October, and proceeded by Dover, Boulogne, Paris, Milan, and Trieste. A sailing vessel was there procured for Alexandria, which was reached in twenty-six days, from London. The journey from this to Suez occupied seven days : there he arrived on the 8th December, but could learn nothing of the steamer. He now embarked in a native buggalow, and sailed down the Red Sea, in hopes of meeting her : at Judda he learnt that she was not expected for some time to come. Here he was detained for eighteen days, when he again embarked in a buggalow for Bombay, but was taken on board by the Thetis the day he sailed. He reached Bombay in the end of March, having occupied nearly five months on the way. His exertions, so far as speed was concerned, were fruitless, but he had seen with his own eyes the difficulties on the way, and became satisfied at once that these were far from insurmountable. When the Calcutta Committee voted a reward to Captain Johnstone of the Enterprize, in January 1827, the motion was made, but not carried, that a portion of the fund should be bestowed on Mr Taylor, a gentleman represented as having sustained heavy losses in his efforts to establish steam communication betwixt Great Britain and India. On the 21st March 1830, a week before the arrival of Mr Waghorn, Mr Taylor made his appearance at Bombay, having travelled through Egypt and by the route of the Red Sea : unfortunately we are unable to lay our hands on any account of his journey, so as to compare his performances with those of his rival, who throughout seems to have been scarcely less active in pursuing his plans than in making the world aware through the newspapers of his exertions. Mr Taylor is said to have been supported in his views by several of the most influential proprietors of steamers in England : his plan was to communicate with India by Egypt, and to start a steamer every fortnight from each end of the line. The terms he desired were the same as those contemplated by Mr Waghorn for his Cape steam route—a monopoly of the postages, the fares, and such aid as Government and the public might think fit. It is almost unaccountable that the difficulties and expense of an enterprise so arduous and important should have been so loosely estimated by the two gentlemen just named : three years after this the Court of Directors calculated the charges betwixt Bombay and Suez at £120,000 a year—the Queen's government were required to contribute £50,000 as their share for half the line, and to take the other half on their own shoulders altogether.

Mr. Waghorn proceeded to Calcutta, to ascertain in person why the money, to which he considered himself entitled, had not been remitted him as he expected to England, to enable him to construct a steamer for the Cape route. A new Steam Committee, of which Mr Greenlaw was Secretary, had meanwhile been formed at Calcutta, for the purpose of collecting a much larger fund, and entering on a wider field of operations, than that originally contemplated ; and to this the funds realized in 1824 were added. A doubt had, it would appear, sprung up in reference to the true intent of subscribers as to the disposal of these ; and a notification was in August 1830 published, requesting the views of the community on the subject. It had been resolved by the promoters of the new fund, that a sum should be bestowed on Mr Waghorn, whose merits were warmly acknowledged, to compensate him for the non-remittance of the sums expected by him : the balance of the fund was proposed to be transmitted to the house of Messrs Rickards, McIntosh & Co., with the injunction to see it devoted to the construction of a steam vessel such as that desired—Mr Waghorn to give his personal security for a refund of half the amount advanced him should he fail to accomplish the voyage betwixt England and Calcutta by the Cape in seventy days. The Red Sea route had not as yet been taken up at Calcutta. Mr Waghorn had now become sick : he is stated to have expended £2000 of his own funds in endeavouring to establish steam communication—he was now compelled to borrow money from a friend to pay his passage home. Though no change in his plans was formally intimated, Mr Waghorn is said to have given out that his recent trip overland had convinced him that there were no obstacles or impediments in the Red Sea route which might not be easily overcome.

While the best known of the promoters of steam communication was thus labouring at Calcutta, whither he had gone soon after his arrival at Bombay, and was induced apparently to alter his views as to the route to be pursued, Mr. Taylor, who, as already stated, had come overland about the same time, and arrived in Bombay a month before him, was endeavouring to stir up the people in Ceylon, and enlist them in his views of opening up the Suez route. On the 8th June 1830 a numerous meeting of the inhabitants of Colombo took place at King's House, for the purpose of taking into consideration the plan of Mr Taylor for opening a communication betwixt India and London by way of the Mediterranean and Red Seas, and also between Ceylon and the various ports of India, at which the Judges of the Supreme Court, Sir Hudson Low, Her Majesty's Commissioners of Enquiry, &c., were present. The Governor did not think it expedient to attend, but wrote a letter to the meeting, warmly approving of the scheme, and commending the zeal of Mr Taylor.

The Meeting subscribed its formal approbation of the plan, and pronounced the remuneration claimed by Mr Taylor—the postages of the letters—reasonable. Vessels of 265 tons, and 80 horse-power, still appear to have been considered by all parties size enough for the task proposed to be performed. Mr Taylor now proceeded homeward by the Persian Gulf and Mossul ; and just as Mr Waghorn was beginning to come round to the Red Sea route, its original projector abandoned it, intimating his preference of the Mesopotamian route to that through Egypt. On the 30th May 1831 a meeting of the merchants of Liverpool was held in the Underwriters' Committee-room, at which it was resolved to petition for the abolition of the bill which prevented heavier postage than two-pence to be charged for India letters, and they declared the opening up of intercourse with India by steam to be of the utmost importance to British commerce. They gave no opinion on the question of route. A similar meeting, followed by similar results, was about the same time held at Manchester, where Mr Waghorn was present, and received a vote of thanks. From this time the prospects of steam navigation betwixt Europe and India seem to have become clouded for a season: all the schemes proposed were approved of, and all that was desired by their projectors promised them, but here the matter stood still; it is hardly to be imagined that either Mr Waghorn or Mr Taylor could have hoped that the means at their disposal were such as to enable them to take a single step in advance in the chimerical schemes that had been proposed by them; and certain it is, that so soon as these were placed in the hands of practical men, vessels of the insignificant tonnage and power contemplated would have been pronounced utterly inadequate for the tasks proposed to be imposed on them.

About this time it was notified by Government that a steamer would leave Bombay on a second trip to Suez on the 1st January 1832, and that she would again leave Suez on the 10th February: the Court of Directors were duly informed on the subject, but so little thought was bestowed on it at home, even now that the question had been taken up by the public, that the steamer returned bringing with her some dozen or two of letters, the European community never, it would appear, having been apprised of the opportunity presenting itself to communicate overland with India. The idea of the home newspapers noticing an intimation of this sort given by those in India, was, we presume, at the period referred to out of the question—or else there was time enough for the matter by this means being made known. We are not informed as to the details of the second attempt at mail conveyance overland made by the Bombay Government—who it will be perceived were the real openers of the Suez route, and who showed what could be done while others talked about it,—and from this it is to be presumed that everything went well. In the latter part of 1833 the sleep into which the interests of steam communication had fallen began to be awakened from, and a general stir all at once made its appearance all over the country.

By the end of 1832 Mr. Waghorn appears to have abandoned the project of Steam Communication by the Cape for which the Calcutta grant had been originally voted him, and to have become convinced that the conveyance of the mails, which it was now on all hands allowed must be by the Red Sea, was an enterprize of too great magnitude for his resources. In January 1833 he announced his intention of taking up his residence in Egypt, with the view of assisting in the transmission of parcels and passengers, and taking charge of such despatches or letters as might be entrusted to him,—rightly deeming that good service might in this way be done in smoothing the difficulties and surmounting the delays incident at the outset to the employment of a new route, and which ten years' experience proved scarcely sufficient to obviate,—and he once more started from England for India overland. Fifty-seven days were occupied by him in reaching Juddah, and here he was detained for three weeks, in consequence of the war then raging around: he reached Bombay on the 15th January, having been nearly five months on the way. On his arrival in Calcutta he was requested to return to England overland, to make arrangements on the Mediterranean side for forwarding the mails about to be dispatched from Bombay towards the close of the year or commencement of the next : he received Rs. 4,000 from the steam fund, in the name of expenses and passage-money. He left in October, touching at Madras on his way to Bombay, from which a cruizer was to be dispatched for Suez in November. In the course of the year 1833 a warm correspondence was carried on betwixt the Steam Fund Committees of Calcutta and Bombay. The services of the Hugh Lindsay had been requested from Government, the charges being proposed to be defrayed by the steam funds jointly ; when it was found that it would be impossible to make four voyages a year with a single vessel, as contemplated by the subscribers. The Bombay subscribers stated their anxiety to continue their cordial co-operation with their brethren elsewhere : they contemplated the construction of a vessel for their own use, but saw no reason why the point of dispatch should be altered from that originally fixed upon, in consequence of any change in other arrangements that might be determined on. The Bengal Steam Fund Committee considered this a virtual rejection of their proposals and dissolution of the alliance, and determined to endeavour to make arrangements for a Calcutta dispatch. The Governor-General-in-Council now offered to contribute Rs. 30,000 towards the charges of the Forbes steamer, which was to be hired for the occasion, and to perform three voyages from Calcutta to Suez direct, on condition of receiving the postages ; and it was computed that Rs. 1,10,000 from the Bengal Steam Fund would meet the other charges of the voyage. Depots of coals were to be established at Point de Galle and Socotra, and Captain Ross was dispatched, by order of Government, to survey the island and determine its capabilities for the uses to which it was proposed to be put. It was, besides, proposed that a vessel with from eighty to ninety tons of coal should be taken in tow as a charger from Galle,—the cargo to be transhipped on the voyage without loss of speed or inconvenience to the steamer ! The Bombay Government was to dispatch a cruizer for Cosseir with the view of forwarding despatches through Egypt to secure arrangements in the Mediterranean,—duplicates of these being sent by the Cape.

These arrangements having been made known at Bombay, the Bombay Government intimated their intention to dispatch one of their cruizers towards the close of the year from Suez entirely at the public charge. The Bombay Steam Fund Committee stated that nothing was further from their purposes than to reject the overtures from Bengal, but that having been assured that three voyages in eighteen months was as much as the Hugh Lindsay could perform, they were prepared to meet the charges of this, and to have the steamer dispatched six-monthly until other arrangements could be made. The Forbes was at length advertised for dispatch on the 15th April 1834. She burnt her boilers on the way, and on her arrival at Madras was pronounced unseaworthy and altogether unfit for the voyage, and accordingly returned to Calcutta. The accident appears to have been the result of the grossest mismanagement—the arrangements for blowing off the brine were so imperfect that several tons of salt encrustation surrounded the flues, interrupting the transmission of heat and production of steam, and causing the burning of the boilers.

On the 3rd February 1834 the Hugh Lindsay once more left Bombay, and though struggling for more than a thousand miles against a heavy gale and sea ahead, compassed a voyage of 3,242 miles in thirty-one days including stoppages,—or at the rate of $6\frac{1}{2}$ miles an hour. She on this occasion carried thirteen passengers, one of whom, Dr. James Burnes, performed the task of historiographer for the voyage and journey. They crossed the desert on camels, occupying four days on the way. This voyage had been performed by order of the Court of Directors. Due publicity appears to have been given to it at home : arrangements were made by the Admiralty for carrying the mails by steam on the Mediterranean side, and the Hugh Lindsay was directed to remain at Suez till the arrival of the mails dispatched from London on the 3rd March.

Early in the course of the summer 1834 a circular from the Committee of the Bengal Fund was addressed to capitalists in England, containing a project for the establishment of steam communication with the East. A capital of Twelve Lacs of Rupees (£120,000) was to be embarked in the construction of four steamers of 200 horse-power each : one of these was to run betwixt England and Alexandria,—the other three to be employed in the Indian seas—one betwixt Bombay and Suez, touching at Socotra both ways, and taking up and setting down Calcutta passengers and despatches ; the others to ply betwixt Calcutta and Socotra, calling at Madras and Ceylon. So crude were the notions of steam communication entertained at Calcutta at the very time that at home the annual expenditure of steamers betwixt Suez and Bombay was estimated at the entire amount of capital supposed to be sufficient for the charges of the communication from England throughout to both presidencies.

The question of steam communication with India had now taken a firm hold of the public mind as a matter demanding enquiry, and in June 1834 a select committee of the House of Commons was appointed on the subject : their report is subjoined :—

“ 1. That a regular and expeditious communication with India by means of steam-vessels is an object of great importance both to Great Britain and to India.

“ 2. That steam-navigation between Bombay and Suez having, in five successive seasons, been brought to the test of experiment (the expense of which has been born by the Indian Government exclusively), the practicability of an expeditious communication by that line during the north-east monsoon has been established.

“ 3. That the experiment has not been tried during the south-west monsoon ; but that it appears from the evidence before the committee, that the communication may be carried on during eight months of the year, June, July, August, and September being excepted, or left for the results of further experience.

“ 4. That experiments which have been made have been attended with very great expense ; but that, from the evidence before the committee, it appears that by proper arrangements the expense may be materially reduced ; and, under that impression, it is expedient that measures should be immediately taken for the regular establishment of steam communication with India by the Red Sea.

“ 5. That it be left to His Majesty's Government, in conjunction with the East India Company, to consider whether the communication should be in the first instance from Bombay or from Calcutta, or according to the combined plan suggested by the Bengal Steam Committee.

“ 6. That by whatever line the communication be established, the net charge of the establishment should be divided equally between His Majesty's Government and the East India Company, including in that charge the expense of the land conveyance from the Euphrates on the one hand, and the Red Sea on the other, to the Mediterranean.

"7. That the steam-navigation of the Persian Gulf has not been brought to the test of experiment ; but that it appears from the evidence before the committee, that it would be practicable between Bombay and Bussorah during every month of the year.

"8. That the extension of the line of the Persian Gulf, by steam-navigation on the river Euphrates, has not been brought to the test of experiment ; but that it appears from the evidence before the committee, that from the Persian Gulf to the town of Bir, which is nearer to the Mediterranean port of Scanderoon than Suez is to Alexandria, there would be no physical obstacles to the steam-navigation of that river during at least eight months of the year ; November, December, January, and February being not absolutely excepted, but reserved for the results of further experience.

"9. That there appear to be difficulties on the line of the Euphrates from the present state of the countries on that river, and particularly from the wandering Arab tribes, but that those difficulties do not appear to be by any means such as cannot be surmounted, especially by negotiations with the Porte, Mehemet Ali, and the chiefs of the principal fixed tribes ; and that this route besides having the prospect of being less expensive, presents so many other advantages, physical, commercial, and political, that it is eminently desirable that it should be brought to the test of a decisive experiment.

"10. That the physical difficulties on the line of the Red Sea appearing to be confined to the months of June, July, August, and Sept., and those of the river Euphrates to the months of November, December, January, and February, the effective trial of both lines would open a certain communication with the Mediterranean in every month of the year, changing the line of the steam-vessels on both sides according to the seasons.

"11. That it be recommended to His Majesty's Government to extend the line of Malta packets to such ports in Egypt and Syria as will complete the communication between England and India.

"12. That the expense of this experiment by the Euphrates has been, by an estimate which the committee has subjected to the examination of competent persons, stated at £20,000, which includes a liberal allowance for contingencies ; and the committee recommend that a grant of £20,000 be made by Parliament for trying that experiment with the least possible delay."

The Pacha of Egypt, unsurpassed by any man of his time in the art of clap-net, intimated his purpose of having a railway from Cairo to Suez constructed without delay for the advantage of the Overland transit : English engineers were to be employed, and a few tons of rails were actually ordered out and deposited on the banks of the Nile at Boulac, where we believe they still remain. His Highness having made his purposes known, and secured the approbation of the world, appears to have given no more thought to the matter. In 1833 and 1834 Colonel Chesney was employed in the investigation of the Euphrates route, the results of which have already been laid before the reader. In January 1835 Lord Ellenborough, the Chairman of the India Board during the short administration of Sir R. Peel, addressed an official letter to Mr Waghorn on the subject of steam communication with the East, by the route of the Red Sea. His Lordship was of opinion that the matter would be best managed by a private company, who should be reimbursed by the postages of letters and payments of passengers : beyond some modifications in the post-office regulations, nothing more was to be looked for from the King's Government, notwithstanding the recommendation of the parliamentary committee of the preceding summer,—but the Court of Directors were to be recommended to encourage the concern by a liberal grant of money for the first four years.

On the 5th of July 1835, a meeting of the subscribers to the new Bengal Steam Fund was held at Calcutta : out of 1,700 persons whose names had been set down, of whom probably some five hundred were at Calcutta, twenty-five only were present. It was stated that out of Rs. 1,56,493 that had been realized, Rs. 1,11,309 had already been expended, leaving a balance of Rs. 45,180. The expenditure seems large, considering that it had been productive of no result whatever : Rs. 44,500 had been however paid away for coal sent on to Point de Galle, Socotra, Babelmandeb, and Juddah ; and Rs. 4000 had been given to Mr. Waghorn. This as well as the fitting up of the Forbes steamer, costing Rs. 18,000, was meant to be distributed over three voyages,—the first of which already attempted had proved unsuccessful, a second was now announced. The total amount of postages for the first trip was about Rs. 11,000. The Forbes started on her second trip on the 3rd September, and reached Suez on the 16th Nov., having occupied no less than sixty-nine days on the way. She returned to Calcutta on the 28th Jan. Her maximum speed throughout the voyage ranged about 111 miles—her average about 70—a day, or about three an hour. The voyage was very generally regarded as a failure, and the vessel looked upon as wholly unfit for such a task as that imposed on her.

In 1835 the Court of Directors concurred with the Board of Control in the expediency of having two steamers constructed for the general service of the Indian Navy, of 200 horse-power and from 500 to 600 tons, at an estimated expense of £60,000. Here the matter was suffered to rest till July 1836, when the India House reminded the India Board of the resolution they had come to so far back as March 1835, when it had been represented by competent authority that the charges of steam monthly for eight months every year betwixt Bombay and Suez would amount to £80,000, or to nearly £120,000 were the communication kept up throughout the year ; and intimating that this should be shared betwixt the treasuries of India and England, as recommended by the Parliamentary Committee. Sir John Cam Hobhouse declined, as his predecessor Lord Ellenborough had done a few months before, to entertain the idea that any of the charges east of Suez should be borne by the royal treasury, and there the matter, so far as the home authorities were concerned, was for the time permitted to drop. It was not till March 1837 that the views of the Court were laid before the Lords of the Treasury, and at once concurred in by their lordships. The Bengal steam committee were still dreaming of steam by the Cape, and resolved to reserve till 1836 the funds then in hand to reward any one who should perform a voyage by steam in this way within seventy days, and fancying that two lacs of rupees would suffice, with the postages, to maintain permanent communication overland betwixt the Hooghly and the Thames—while Mr Waghorn does not seem to have abandoned the notion that passengers and postages, with his genius and enthusiasm, and the help of a few friends would suffice for all that was desired. The proposition sent home from Calcutta, as already mentioned, for the establishment of a joint stock company deemed £120,000, the sum estimated, and as it proved, pretty correctly by the Court, requisite to meet the charges of a single year, sufficient as a permanent sunk capital ! We have already given particulars of Colonel Chesney's expedition to the Euphrates in September 1837, which, placed against that of the Hugh Lin'say by the Red Sea, was conclusive in favour of the latter.

In July 1836 a petition was forwarded from Calcutta, subscribed by nearly 4000 persons, including the Commander-in-Chief, the Judges of the Supreme Court, and Members of Council, praying that some step might be taken to carry into effect the recommendations of the preliminary committee, of June 1834, which for three years remained a dead letter:—petitions to the same effect, cordially concurred in by the Governments of both presidencies, were about the same time forwarded from Madras and Bombay. In November 1836, at a meeting of a Court of Proprietors, the idea of the whole expense of steam communication descending on India was loudly denounced by Sir C. Forbes and those who usually voted along with him.

In March 1837 the French Government began to make arrangements for running steamers regularly betwixt Marseilles and Alexandria, on the 1st, 11th, and 22nd, of every month. In October 1837 a meeting of the subscribers to the steam fund took place in Bombay, at which it was proposed to repay the subscription: this was stoutly, and in the long run successfully, opposed, it having been agreed that though not required for the specific purpose for which it was contributed, some great public object might be advanced by it:—the sum in hand amounted to Rs. 100,000: it was ultimately expended in the constructions of station houses in the Desert, and the facilitation of intercourse betwixt Suez and Cairo. No time had been lost by the Court of Directors in giving orders for the construction of steamers so soon as the sanction of the Board of Control was secured. The Atalanta and Berenice were the first laid down: the former of these left England on the 27th December, 1836, and after a run of 105 days, arrived at Bombay on the 13th April 1837, just in time to be employed on the instant as a transport for troops to Mangalore, where a serious insurrection had occurred; the Berenice, a vessel of 756 tons and 220 horse-power, left on the 16th March, and arrived on the 13th June, after a voyage of 88 days or 18 short of that of the Atalanta, under command of Captain Lowe. The Atalanta is still a good serviceable frigate—the Berenice has been, nearly rebuilt, and now turned into a troop-ship. A transit of remarkable celerity was about this time made betwixt England and India, considering that the mails were brought all the way from Suez to Bombay in a sailing vessel: the time on the way was forty-four days. Communication out to Calcutta and back again had been completed within four months and twenty-six days. The Bengal Steam Fund now made a second grant of Rs. 4000 to Mr Waghorn, in testimony of their estimation of the zeal he had displayed in the cause, and as a reward to him for having brought down the July mails from Suez to Mocha in a sailing vessel, by which the fate of India was benefitted.

From 1840 the Postal Communication betwixt Western India and Europe, via Egypt, might be considered to have been fully organized. There had been indeed from the beginning of the previous year at Bombay the following steamers intended for the Packet service.

The Hugh Lindsay of 450 tons and 160 horse power.

The last of these vessels was disabled her first season, having run ashore and broke her back on the Kattiawar Coast in February 1839. She was followed soon after by the Zenobia and Cleopatra from England, while the Victoria, built at Bombay, was ready for sea in March 1840, giving four efficient packets after the Hugh Lindsay had been allowed to be unserviceable from her size. Little alteration after this took place in the state of our packet arrangements at Bombay until 1845, when the fortnightly communication was established.

Arrangements were meanwhile being made with the P. & O. Steam Navigation Company for communication direct with Calcutta. The correspondence commenced in the end of 1840, when it was proposed that this body should enter into an engagement for five years to carry the mails in steamers of at least 1600 tons burden, and 520 horse power, on receipt of £20,000 a year from the East India Company. On further consideration it was proposed that no more than six trips should be required during the twelve month, as it was found that £7000 would be expended on each voyage on fuel alone. In September 1842 the Ship Hindustan, 1800 tons, was dispatched for service to Calcutta, she being the only vessel of proper size then available. She arrived on the 14th of December. The Precursor built in contemplation of the enterprize being carried on by private parties at Calcutta, was shortly afterwards purchased. Her first trip direct from Suez to Calcutta was performed by the Hindustan, which left the former port on the 25th of February 1843, a day after the Atalanta Bombay Packet, and took the Mails to Calcutta one day before those by Bombay arrived. In August 1843 the P. & O. Company made a tender to the Court of Directors to carry the Mails to Bombay as well as to Calcutta in a much shorter time than formerly, guaranteeing a communication from Bombay by Marseilles to London in twenty-eight days, with a saving of thirty thousand a year to the Government of India—very unaccountably the offer was declined. By a memorandum at this time published, it appeared that the vessels employed in the Bombay packet service had cost in all about £300,000, the interest on this set down at four per cent, the insurance at six, and the tare and maintenance of the vessel at fifteen, or twenty-five per cent in all on ship charges alone. Wages, provisions, and fuel were estimated at £71,000, giving a total of £146,000 after deducting all returns. Of this £50,000 a year was defrayed from the Imperial Treasury, £96,000 fell on the revenues of India. In 1844 it was proposed that a second line of communication should be established, with branch steamers from Ceylon to Singapore, and from thence to Hongkong and Australia. With this was to be connected a short line from Bombay to Aden, to meet the Calcutta Steamers, and give a communication betwixt Western India and Europe once a fortnight. For this new arrangement the P. & O. Company were to receive £115,000 annually for the Suez and Calcutta line; £45,000 for that from Ceylon to Hongkong—or £160,000 in all—of this £90,000 was to be paid from the revenues of India, £70,000 from those of England. A second memorandum now sent in by the Company shewed that both the Bombay and Calcutta lines might be undertaken by them with a saving of £60,000 a-year to the Treasury in money, and from two to three days in time in the transmission of the Mails. A second time the proposal was declined—the declination during the next ten years for which it was persisted in, occasioning a sacrifice in all of close upon a million sterling, this much being thrown away for no purpose that human imagination can conceive, save the preservation of a pitiable piece of patronage, the privilege of peddling in stores and appointments which the Government of a great country ought to have spurned as beneath them, even if unaccompanied by pecuniary sacrifice. In a letter to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Charles Woods, who had pointed out the extreme inexpediency of Government persisting in the conveyance of the Mails,* dated 6th of May 1850, the Court state that close on a million sterling in addition to the sum we have named, had during the preceding seven years been expended in the formation of a steam factory, foundry, and on building steam vessels. At the present date the Packet Service, for the preservation of which so much was sacrificed, has been abandoned, and the Head Quarters of the Indian Navy are proposed to be carried round to Bengal after the enormous sacrifices referred to have been incurred. The pretence was the maintenance of the Indian Navy in the two incompatible conditions of a Packet and War Service—the obvious dilemma being overlooked, that if it was no more than sufficient for both in time of peace, the first section of its duties must be neglected in War; if sufficient for both during hostilities, its charges must be excessive and extravagant in periods of tranquillity. The result of the effort to reconcile incompatibilities was as usual—both alternatives were bungled. During the Chinese war of 1841, and Burmese war of 1852, our Mail establishment was utterly disabled, and during the intervals betwixt these periods we had more men-of-war than we wanted, or than we could officer.

In 1845 the whole arrangement was completed, and at the close of that year fortnightly steam communication from Bombay commenced. In 1847 arrangements were made for a line of monthly steam communication betwixt Bombay and China direct, in concert with the Suez and Calcutta line, and this brought an important agency into Bombay. Serviceable docks, workshops, and store-rooms, were secured at Mazagon—a couple of first class steamers were generally kept on the station, and from thenceforth the community had the means of watching the quiet, orderly, decorous and economical management of a private Company contrasted with the constant court martial, the incessant complaints of insubordination or neglect of duty in general orders, frequent dismissals of officers for drunkenness, and in the store departments the waste, confusion and inefficiency, of a so called War Navy. The frauds in coal alone brought to the notice of the Supreme Court in July 1847, amounting up to that date to from seven to ten thousand tons annually, exceeds probably the total amount of fuel the P. & O. Company could write off as unaccounted for, during the entire term of its existence. In 1852 the P. & O. Company resolved to start a branch steamer on their own account direct from Bombay to Suez, simultaneously or nearly so with the regular packet, conceiving, and as it proved correctly, that the superior speed and accommodation of their ships would secure a monopoly of the passengers and a preference for a portion of the mails. The system was commenced in April, the merchant vessel starting twelve hours after the man-of-war, and on the return voyage occasionally arriving this much before her. The system incurred so heavy an outlay that it was not long persevered in. The Indian Navy packets now became so inefficient from the best of their ships being in Burmah, that murmurs were heard on every side, and the Chamber of Commerce resolved to memorialize the Home Authorities on the subject. Their complaint would in all likelihood have been disregarded, but for a couple of accidents occurring in succession, which brought matters to a crisis. In 1845 when the point had been severely pressed by the P. & O. Company, and the Packet Service had been all but lost to the Indian Navy, it was resolved to add to it three vessels of much larger power than any before belonging to it, two to be employed as Frigates, the other as a Packet—this, together with the Achar and Semiramis, the latter a teak ship, built at Bombay, and using the engines of a pig boat of the same name, sent out and stranded in 1839—the former a strong oak vessel employed in the China war in 1841, bringing up the establishment to four tolerably sized and efficient ships. The three new vessels were to be 1500 tons and 500 horse power each. The Moozuffer was lost on a mud bank of the Irrawaddy in 1853, and the Ajdaka, her London built consort, was found to have been so disgracefully ill put together, that her planks and timbers were insufficient, and the bulk of her copper bolts undersized and not driven through. In attempting to make a monsoon passage in 1852 this ship had been compelled to return when within a short distance of the entrance to the Gulf of Aden; and though then standing greatly in need of repair, and with the strongest entreaties to get her into dock at the beginning of the year, she was not taken in hand by the carpenters till so late in the season, that she was barely able to make a trial trip before starting with the packets. She left Bombay on the 22nd of June 1853, in the worst possible condition, and having encountered a somewhat more severe storm than was expected even at this stormy season, the engines twice gave way, the rigging partly too new, partly rotten from age, sometimes stretched to the infinite danger of the masts, and sometimes broke. On two several occasions the tillerropes snapped through, an ill-repaired plank gave rise to a huge leak when the pumps were found unserviceable, finally the coal was done, a fortnight's supply being all that was on board—the voyage occupying eighteen days. When the vessel in which the lives of two hundred people had been for a fortnight thus imperilled, reached her destination, her rudder was so rotten that she was found unable a month afterwards to accomplish the return voyage. Some misarrangement having occurred, the English Mail of the 24th June leaving Aden shortly after the accident of the Ajdaha was placed on board a native ship, and lost, with some eighty people, the second day out. This was the last straw to break the back of the most patient steed, and accordingly in the end of the year the Packet Service was transferred from the Indian Navy to the P and O Company, who commenced operations the following season, not only reducing by from thirty to forty hours the time of transit, but securing us a regularity of arrival altogether new to us. Under previous arrangements the Post Office was closed at 5 P. M., and the ship despatched from two to three hours afterwards; as if Government could never put their hand to any thing without mismanaging it—the Admiralty under whose control the Packet Service is placed, have decreed that while the Mails shall be on board as formerly, the ship shall not quit her anchors until dawn next morning, so that with an almost unlimited amount of money paid to secure expedition, twelve hours are sacrificed at the starting point in the indulgence of an irrational caprice. With the increased celerity of transmission and the certainty of this being accomplished in from twenty-five to twenty eight-days from both ends of the line for nine months in the year, we have reached a point where return of post is attainable both ways with a few trifling alterations of the date of dispatch.

During the past summer a very important alteration has been made in the steamer routes during the rainy season. In the months of June, July, and part of August the South West Monsoon blows furiously from the African Coast, near the line, right into Bombay harbour. To avoid the violence of this, which only vessels of the greatest power can face, and they to their own great risk and injury, the custom was to steer south-westerly to the sixth or eight Northern parallel, where a comparatively tranquil reign of the sea prevails, and then cross over to the African shore; thus making a detour of six or eight hundred miles, on a distance of sixteen hundred. In place of this, and in consequence of the recent publication of the charts of the Arabian shore, steamers now stretch northward towards the mouth of the Persian Gulf, and then hug the land till close to Aden, with a saving of from twenty to forty hours of time.

In 1852 the Governor General proposed that the Indian Navy and Bengal Marine should be amalgamated. The latter of these was an anomalous service, which had come into existence piecemeal and at haphazard, chiefly since the Burmese War of 1827, as the exigencies of the State required.*

* Blue Book. Mr. Melvill's evidence, 7th March 1853.

The officers have no commissions and no recognized rank, the ships have been chiefly employed in the suppression of piracy, or in the survey or pilot service—they amount in number to nine sea-going steamers, maintained at a charge of about £83,000 a year, to which requires to be added the total pilot and river steamer charges amounting between them to £150,000—grand total being close on a quarter of a million.* The intent of combining the two Marine Services, though not explained in the official papers, is sufficiently obvious. Along the shores of Western India or on the Arabian Sea, a War Navy has long been a superfluity, beyond perhaps a brig or two in the Persian Gulf and another in the Red Sea: for the transport of troops or treasure we have already a dozen of merchant steamers, while any additional number that could be desired would make their appearance on the prospect of profitable occupation, and the fate of the Packet Service was sealed in 1850. The expediency of maintaining an independent War Navy in India at all remains to be made out, when the tasks to be undertaken by it could be so much better and more economically accomplished by the Royal Navy of England. If a play-thing so expensive is to be maintained, it certainly ought to be so under the eye of the Government of India rather than that of the smallest of our local Governments, and as far as possible exempt from the jobbery of Leadenhall Street. It is to the Eastward of the Meridian of Calcutta or to the Westward of that of the Cape alone, that men-of-war will require hereafter to be maintained for the benefit of our possessions in the East; India herself needs none of their assistance or protection. With all these things fully before them, the resolution came to by the Court of Directors in 1852 to build the two stupendous steamers already referred to, at Bombay, seems only one whit more inexplicable than the determination arrived at in 1855 to construct a fifty gun frigate of 2000 tons, the three costing some half million sterling, considerably more than double the price at which they might have been built any time these past twenty years in British Burmah. When the change arrives the million mentioned by the Court as having been spent in the Bombay Dockyard betwixt 1845 and 1850, in addition to the cost of the maintenance of our ships, will be found to have been so much money thrown away.

The Assaye and Punjab, the steamers referred to, were laid down early in 1852, and launched in 1854—the hulls were reckoned magnificent specimens of Naval architecture, but the vessels themselves seem well nigh fated. Just as screws were becoming universal, paddles were adhered to, and the engines made of such an antiquated form as to occupy nearly one third of the ship. Reefing-float-boards having been found so cumbrous by the P. & O. Steam Navigation Company as to shake their ships to pieces, were retained by the Government vessels, thus loaded with wheels of 70 tons weight, dashing round at the rate of 20 miles an hour. On her first trip the Assaye cracked one of her cylinders from the malformation or mismanagement of the escape valves, and as this was found incapable of being repaired or replaced from the Dock-yard Factory, one of the engines of the Punjab was drawn upon. It was now found that her boilers and steam chests were too small, and these were to a considerable extent reconstructed. When about to be employed as transport for troops to Suez, the hay for the service of the horses took fire on deck, and very nearly burned the ship in Bombay harbour—finally when a short distance from Aden her engines were disabled by her brasses having cracked. Through some mismanagement at home the Punjab required to wait some months for her engines after being ready to receive them—when they arrived as just stated, one of them was taken possession of by the Assaye, the other becoming useless until provided with a consort. The required additions were sent from England by the St. Abbs, a vessel lost on St. Juan de Novo in June, the island having been misplaced by about 200 miles on her charts. Each of the two vessels under consideration was in this way kept for more than a twelve month unserviceable after, but for the want of their engines, they would have been fit for employment, and if we estimate the prime cost of the pair at a quarter of a million, and include wages in the 25 per cent set down for insurance, wear and tare, and interest, the sacrifice will amount to £50,000 during the past eighteen months. We may probably reckon ourselves fortunate that this is all—had they been kept plying about, carrying great men on pleasure trips, the only work that seems destined for them, the cost would probably have been doubled. The charges of the new frigate now being laid down in Bombay have been estimated at about £50,000 a year, and the three marine play-things will amongst them cost more annually than the entire amount hitherto expended on the education of the whole of India, amongst a population of one hundred and fifty millions. Those to whom these things may seem incredible may be referred on the mismanagement of our marine affairs to the exposure of the coal frauds in the Supreme Court already referred to, and to the Blue Books of 1852-53. From the Court's financial letter of June 1852, page 212, it will be seen that the average net cost of the Indian Navy has for the past ten years amounted to close on a third of a million sterling. During that period stores to the value of about £90,000 a year have been sent out for the use of the Dock-yard from England, whilst stores amounting to about one third of this or £30,000 a year have been sold at a little more than half of what they actually cost. Heavy complaints are made on this subject by the Court—in the Blue Book the matter is left a mystery, the explanation usually given of it is, that stores which are not wanted are purchased at home for the sake of obliging friends, and disposed at Bombay when found to be an incumbrance. These remarks, with the Tables which follow, strictly speaking belong to the Chapter on the Indian Navy, and not to that on Overland Communication, but they will serve equally in either place.

THE BOMBAY MARINE.—THE INDIAN NAVY.

THE Bombay Marine is one of the oldest divisions of the Company's Service in Western India, having been organized and established shortly after the cession of the island of Bombay in 1661. We are not informed as to the amount of its strength or nature of its constitution at the earlier stages of its history: the duties imposed on it were declared to have been, 1, to protect the trade of the port; 2, to defend the Company's trade and possessions; 3, to transport troops; 4, to make nautical discoveries; 5, the conveying of packets.* Up to the close of last century the service seems to have had reason to complain of the studied neglect of the Court of Directors, who bestowed their chief consideration on their magnificent mercantile navy; and the result was just what might have been looked for—that the masters had constant cause of complaint of servants spoiled by ill usage. The great grievance then, as now, was a want of a code of regulations. Mr. Money, in 1807 Superintendent of the Indian Navy, addressed to the Court a letter on the subject, in which he complains of this as the bane of the Bombay Marine. In this we find the following paragraph:—"The want of a code of laws enacted by legislative authority has been, and continues to be, the prominent defect of the marine establishment. Such a code would raise it from that state of degradation to which illegitimate character is too frequently exposed, by the contemptuous opinion of mankind; it would infuse into its feeble system (sustained with much vexation and with little credit) those energies which all other military corps possess, and which lead them to distinction and renown."

"The next principal defect in the marine establishment results, in my humble judgment (continues Mr. Money), from the low estate to which the officers' comparative rank is reduced. By the old regulation of the Hon. Company, yet unrepealed, the commanders of their regular ships from Europe take their rank between a captain and a major in the army. By the order of the Hon. Court already referred to, it was directed that, in order to preserve due respect and attention to the officers of the marine, who on important occasions are associated with the military, correspondent rank should be assigned as follows:—The commodore to rank with a colonel in the army; captains of ships of twenty-eight guns and upwards, or senior captains, with lieutenant-colonels; junior captains with majors; first-lieutenants with captains, &c. This distinction, supported by a code of martial law, would have given to the marine corps all the vigour and spirit which it could be rendered capable of possessing; but by subsequent resolutions the corresponding rank was virtually abolished, and the code of laws which the supreme government so strongly recommended, and which the Hon. Court declared, upon a conviction of its necessity, that it was their intention to procure, has never been obtained. On the 22nd of May 1804, the Hon. Court were pleased to direct, that the commanders of their regular ships, whose corresponding rank with the military rested between that of a major and a captain, should precede all the captains of the marine, having the comparative rank of lieutenant-colonels of the army. I should be one of the last to im-pugn any resolution tending to honour a service in which I passed a great portion of my life, and to which, from connexions and friendships, I may be supposed to be naturally attached ; but were I now belonging to that service, I feel persuaded that my sentiments of justice would be the same ; while I am satisfied, from the principle of discipline imbibed in the course of many years' service in the navy, my sense of public expediency would concur with those sentiments of justice, and in the situation which I hold, the expressions of these opinions appear to me an act of indispensable duty. Whatever of respect and attention the orders of 1798 were calculated to produce, has been completely extinguished by the regulations of comparative rank of 1804. By them, an officer who has served the Hon. Company in a profession strictly confined to arms, and from which the advantages of trade of any description are rigidly excluded,—who has arrived at a rank corresponding with that of a lieutenant colonel in the army, which he has held for a period of fourteen or fifteen years, finds himself compelled to yield precedence to the commander of a regular ship, ranking below a major in the army, who perhaps has not been ten years at sea, who but a short time before may have been (and I believe it has been the case) a mate of a ship at this very port—and whose ship at present the captain of the marine may be destined to convoy. These circumstances combined with the want of a code of laws, precludes the mind from aspiring to a respectable rank in society—they tend to depress every feeling of laudable ambition, and blight, by their natural operation on the character of men, all that esprit du corps, which it is so much to the public advantage to encourage and cherish, and which has led to the aggrandizement of all other military services."

No attention whatever was paid to these mild and manly remonstrances, and Mr. Money shortly afterwards retired from the service. The following account of his character, given by Captain Maxwell in 1829, affords us so good an illustration of what a Superintendent once was, and ought to be, that we extract it :—

"The Court of Directors immediately appointed another superintendent, in no way resembling his predecessor—and from that hour their marine had met with continued degradation and persecution. (Hear !) The retirement of Mr. Money from the office of superintendent was at once a source of regret to the marine corps, and of serious injury to the public interests. His talents were of the most useful description, and he possessed an activity of body, and an energy of mind, which afforded him no leisure. Every hour of his time was devoted to the public service. He understood business of every description, and he executed it admirably. He infused a portion of his own spirit, energy, and pride, into the breasts of those employed under his authority. Whenever he found worth and ability, he confided in it. He had no illiberal prejudices to gratify—and the surest recommendations to his favour and countenance, were zeal, activity, and integrity. (Hear !) Envy might revile, and self-interest seek to blacken his character, but his fairly earned fame, as a public servant, would survive every effort to blast it, in spite of all the attacks of low and little minds. The undiminished attachment which the marine corps shewed to him, after his retirement, testified their just sense of his great virtue and worth—while their honest affection was honourable to their grateful feelings."

At this time the allowances of a Marine Captain were Rs. 360 a month, while those of a Branch Pilot at Calcutta were Rs. 700, and if he went beyond the Sandheads Rs. 850. It is surprising what the spirit of the British sailor will survive when the strong sense of duty excites his energies into action. It has lately been remarked in reference to the loss of H. M.'s Steamer Gorgon, that the Admiralty seemed purposely to build the worst possible ships to bring the qualities of the finest seamen in the world into action, and to create the greatest conceivable amount of dangers and difficulties that it might be seen what energy we had to surmount them. The remark applies with us more to the discipline than the ships thus treated, as has been described the Marine. The speakers in the debate already referred to were on one point unanimous—that in no one solitary instance had the British Colours been lowered from the peak of any of their cruisers to an enemy of inferior, or even of equal strength, while they had often proved victorious over a large superiority of force. In 1749 Commodore James, with Lord Clive on board, having accompanied Admiral Watson to the capture of Severndroog, proceeded with the General to the Bay of Bengal for the purpose of protecting the coast from pirates. The cruisers of the Marine took an active part in the capture of the Isle of France, and of the Seychelles Islands in 1810. Sir John Hayes, Commodore of the East India Company's fleet in the Eastern seas, was employed in cruising in the Bay of Bengal, and received special marks of attention from the Governor-General Lord Amherst. He took a large share in the expedition against Java, the cruisers Mornington and Malabar having captured two large Chinese junks freighted with merchandize to the value of £600,000. In the beginning of the century Captain Frost, of the Mornington, captured two of the most mischievous French privateers cruising in the neighbourhood of the Mauritius. In 1812 the following ships were in commission:—Ternate 16, Teignmouth 16, Aurora 14, Mercury 16, Benares 16, brigs Psyche 12, Thetis 12, Nautilus 14, Vestal 14, Antelope 14, Sylph 6, and Ariel 12. The marine assisted at the capture of Beni-hoo-Aly under Sir Lionel Smith. In 1812 the presence of a single cruiser, the Malabar, of 20 guns, prevented a war with Burmah, and compelled instant and ample reparation to be made for the insults offered our Government. Had a naval force been present in 1823, hostilities might again have been warded off: when this occurred, the marine took an active and glorious share in the contest. The chief fame we have attained in warlike matters was won in China in 1842-43, when the Atalanta, the Queen, the Sesostris, the Nemesis, the Medusa, the Ariadne, and the Auckland, all eminently distinguished themselves. To return from this digression to the period referred to—1812. Trials by Court-Martial had not at this time given way to the more succinct and comprehensive system of secret information and summary dismissals, prevalent betwixt 1841 and 1848, but commissioned officers were tried by Captains of Indiamen, the latter having no station in the eye of the law beyond that of merchant seamen. "In such a forlorn and undefined state," says Captain Maxwell, "had the Marine been left, that if an assemblage of boatswains, gunners, or even serjeants and corporals, had been selected by the Superintendent for the purpose of forming a court, the Marine officers were without a remedy. Sometimes it was governed by the rules and regulations of His Majesty's Navy, sometimes by Martial Law, sometimes by the Company's regulations. Every thing was left in a state of the utmost vagueness; and in point of fact the service then, as afterwards, was under the dominion or protection of no law or principle whatever, but that supplied by the pleasure or caprice of despotic power."* It is difficult to conceive how above a million sterling annually should, as was estimated, have been at this time expended on a service so despised and neglected. It was not possible but that the spirit of any service should in the long run have become broken and depressed under a system of neglect and insult which seemed designed to torment and destroy it—this, too, practised or countenanced by those to whom they might naturally have looked as their protectors. No corps in the service* had ever evinced a stronger desire to expel from its bosom all unworthy members; and in almost every instance when the effort was made, the Court of Directors, as if determined to defeat them, either restored the culprits to the body from which they had been driven, or placed them on the same pension as the most meritorious officers. In this deplorable condition matters continued till 1826, when the Court of Directors began to bethink them of the mischiefs the system they had patronized had brought about. At this time Mr. Buchanan was Superintendent. There were plenty of marine officers of all grades unemployed when the commands of the Hastings and Ernaad, the largest ships in the service, were bestowed on a couple of Masters from country vessels: it must be added that this proceeding was emphatically condemned by the Court. At this time also, the Court voluntarily raised the retiring allowances of all their naval officers. A debate on the subject occurred in the India House in April 1827, when the Court denied that the Bombay Marine had been neglected or ill used—intimating, at the same time, that the subject of their condition had for years occupied their attention, and that alterations with which the Admiralty were concerned, were now in contemplation, such as would fulfil all that could be desired by the best friends of the Service. All the speakers on all sides of the question were loud and unanimous in their commendations of the officers of the Marine, who seemed, under circumstances the most depressing, to have maintained a character, personal and professional, to which every one who knew them have borne willing testimony. The Directors were obviously in perfect earnest, and determined that if grievances had heretofore existed, they should do so no longer, and that hereafter the sea service should be left no more grounds of complaint on the score of treatment than that of the land. In 1828 His Royal Highness the Lord High Admiral of England conferred on the Bombay Marine the privilege of carrying the Union Jack and wearing a pennant at the mast head with the St. George's Cross. In March 1827 Government resolved that the office of Judge-Advocate for the Marine department, which had heretofore been held by the Secretary and Accountant of the Marine Board, should henceforth be held by the Judge-Advocate of the Army. † From this we should infer that it was intended that in future Martial Law, as administered in the Army, should be in force. It was now resolved that a Captain of the Royal Navy, with the rank of Commodore, should be appointed Superintendent of Marine, which was hereafter about to be called the Indian Navy, with a salary of Rs. 3000 a month. The Duke

† Finance Committees were in 1823 the order of the day, and Calcutta had its share of their attention: your reformer rarely begins his operations at home, and the worthless bodies on whom experiments were to be made were here,—and it seemed to be thought that one of the fittest places for the scissors was the Indian Navy. The Report, with the various minutes on the subject, has, so far as we know, not yet been published, and we may here give a short outline of its contents. The report is addressed to Lord William Bentinck, Governor-General of India,—one of the most upright, illustrious, and unpopular statesmen who ever held the destinies of our empire in his hands: Mr. D. Hill, Mr. Holt McKenzie, and Mr. J. Bax, constituted the committee. In 1827 the Court of Directors gave orders that from thenceforth the Indian Navy should consist of one frigate, the Hastings, of thirty guns; three sloops, each of twenty-four guns; four brigs, of sixteen guns each; and two schooners of ten each—with the Hugh Lindsay and Enterprise steamers; or of ten sailing vessels and two steamers. At this time there were in commission four vessels of Clarence having been appealed to, declined to recommend, as he thought it would be unhandsome to meddle with the patronage of the Court of Directors; and Captain (afterwards Rear-Admiral) Sir Charles Malcolm was appointed: he arrived in Bombay in June 1828, and was immediately placed in charge. Sir Charles, with the benevolence and kindness of disposition which marked his character, immediately set about making improvements in those departments in which the officers of the marine considered they had the best right to complain. In 1829 they were declared to have been subjected to the same mutiny act as the army,* the Judge-Advocate-General to be Judge-Advocate of the Army and Marine, with a salary of Rs. 1200 per mensem (£1400 a year), and an allowance for establishment of Rs. 150 (£180 a year.) In 1830 the designation of the Bombay Marine was exchanged for that of the Indian Navy; while at the same time a new precedence warrant gave Commodores the rank of Colonels, Senior Captains that of Lieutenant-Colonels, Junior Captains that of Majors Commanding, Lieutenants that of Captains, Second Lieutenants that of Lieutenants, and Midshipmen that of Ensigns. In 1835 a more liberal scale for the distribution of prize money was allowed them. Meanwhile one of the most important arrangements in modern times had deeply engaged the attention of the Governor Sir John Malcolm; and a survey of the Red Sea with a view to the establishment of Steam Navigation betwixt Bombay and Suez, was in 1829 designed by the Superintendent of the Indian Navy, and entrusted to the execution of Captain Morseby—fifteen years afterwards Commander of one of the Penin-carrying eighteen guns each, one with twelve, and three brigs with ten. The Hastings frigate and Enterprise steamer were in the employment of the Bengal Government—the Hugh Lindsay was on the stocks. The current annual charges were about eighteen lakhs, or, including interest and deterioration, about twenty-one lakhs. In the end of 1829 still further retrenchments were ordered by the Court, and a vessel of twenty-four guns was forbidden to be proceeded with. Sir C. Malcolm, Superintendent of the Indian Navy at the time, reported that four vessels were indispensable for maintaining the communication with the Persian Gulf—one to be kept at Bassadore, one ready for service, and two at the Presidency. One was essential for the duties in the Red Sea, one for the Gulf of Cutch and Cambay, and one for the Malabar Coast—or seven in all. The Finance Committee were of opinion that two vessels of eighteen guns each for service in the Gulf, one of ten guns as a reserve at Bombay, and one steamer for general duty, might suffice.—Besides these, the Benares was to be allowed as a survey ship, but the charge of Rs. 25,912 annually incurred by her was considered exorbitant, as this exceeded by Rs. 21,312 the charges of the surveying vessel employed by the Marine Surveyor-General Bengal—officers and stores being in both cases excluded from the account. It is complained that the pilot brig Palinurus was maintained on the same extravagant scale as the Benares, and she is accordingly recommended to be laid up in ordinary during the fair weather, unless employed on survey. The charges of the Palinurus were Rs. 10,938 annually, that of a Bengal Pilot brig 4,600. When we examine this careful and strict system of audit in 1830, and remember that in 1847 it was proved before the Supreme Court that coals to twice the extent of the entire expense of the Benares were or might be lost or left unaccounted for annually, and no one be the wiser—that no one knew what stores were received, what were served out, or what remained in hand,—our ideas of the march of intellect, or at all events of accounting, in this department, are not very exalted. The following extract is of sufficient interest to deserve a place entire: the recommendation at the conclusion to keep officers on full pay while on shore, rather than to retain in commission vessels which are not required in order to provide for their officers, is well worthy of consideration. The practice of late years has been to throw ships out of commission, and place their officers when on shore on reduced allowances; and we have frequently had junior Lieutenants, not only of blameless character, but of great merit as officers

Suez was fairly established—if indeed it could then be considered such when the Hugh Lindsay was the only vessel on the passage. In 1857 the addition of the Berenice, Atalanta, and Semiramis, had completed the communication. Sir Charles Malcolm had in 1831 brought the Bombay Geographical Society into existence, and he exerted himself with the utmost diligence in promoting the cause of geographical discovery and physical research. The fruits of the labours thus encouraged ornament the Transactions of the Royal

"17th.—Your Lordship in Council will observe that we have included one steamer in the foregoing plan as a vessel of war, which appears to us to be sufficient for all ordinary duty in the neighbourhood of Bombay, and the other as a packet. The employment of the latter for the conveyance of passengers and letters to the Red Sea, which may be considered a speculation not necessary for the Government to continue if private individuals enter into it,—or if it be attended with heavy pecuniary loss,—is an undertaking belonging we think to the Post-Office Department, to which the charge of the second steamer should be debited.

"18th.—We shall now proceed to consider the establishment of Officers in the Indian Navy. The number destined to serve afloat by the Hon'ble Court's Despatches of the 31st October 1827, and 31st December 1829, allowing for furlough and sickness, was—5 Captains, 12 Commanders, 44 Lieutenants, 60 Midshipmen. The number serving afloat in 1828 was—4 Captains, 8 Commanders, 23 Lieutenants, 34 Midshipmen; and the whole number of officers afloat and on shore, on furlough or on sick certificate, at the latter period, was—8 Captains, 10 Commanders, 48 Lieutenants, 48 Midshipmen.

"19th.—It is material to point out to your Lordship in Council, that although by the order of the Hon'ble Court, Officers holding situations on shore are desired to relinquish them and return to the proper duties of their profession or to resign the Marine altogether, yet the establishment of officers fixed by the Hon'ble Court for service afloat only is nearly the same as that which had previously executed all duties afloat and ashore,—the reduction being 3 Captains, and 2 Lieutenants, and the addition 9 Commanders, and 12 Midshipmen. Besides, it is to be observed that the appointments of Purser, of Masters, and of Captains' Clerks, have been introduced since 1823-24, and that an establishment of Pilots and Volunteers for piloting ships in and out of the harbour of Bombay, which duty had been and continues to be added to the Master-Attendant's department.

"20th.—The number of officers required afloat for the Indian Navy manifestly depends on the number of ships deemed necessary for the public service, but as the pay of the officers forms a comparatively small item in the expense of a ship at sea, the object of economy would be much better attained by continuing to them their pay and emoluments on shore until their services are wanted afloat, rather than by keeping ships in commission unnecessarily with the view of affording employment. In reference, therefore, to the number of ships of war and of vessels of every kind, exclusive of pottamars and other small craft which are commanded by

The Commissioners, when speaking of our steamers carrying letters up the Red Sea, and the entire charges of this falling on the post-office, little imagined that in fifteen years time the charges for the Bombay packets alone would incur a dead loss of above five lakhs of rupees—seven lakhs being contributed by the India House for the conveyance of mails by the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company—the two together amounting to within six lakhs of the then entire charges of the Bombay Marine! We have already seen that within these sixteen years the number of ships belonging to the Indian Navy has increased five-fold, or from twenty to sixty; the tonnage has advanced at about double this rate, and is now more

Geographical Society and its Colonial namesake and protegee. By a liberal hospitality and considerate kindness he strove to elevate his officers in their social position, which previous ill treatment had done so much to depress; and alike as officers, seamen, and surveyors, exerted himself to give them the rank and standing to which they were so well entitled. Most of these statements are abridged from the Government general order which intimated his retirement. In 1833, his term of service having expired, he was succeeded by than ten times what it was in 1828:—yet the expenses, notwithstanding the enormous cost of steamers in India, have scarcely been trebled. The following comparative statement of the officers in 1828 and 1847 will give some idea of the efficiency of the Marine compared with that of the Indian Navy, so far as this depends on officers:—

So here we have in 1828 one hundred and forty-one officers for fifteen vessels, and in 1847 one hundred and eighty-six for sixty: or we have one-fourth added to the number of our officers, while the number of our ships is quadrupled—the amount of our tonnage ten times what it was! Why the Indian Navy has within the last sixteen years been increased to its present extent, no human being we ever heard of has ever yet been able to divine. The packet and Sind service will not account for even one-third the augmentation, and what was to be done with ships of war without officers no mortal man can tell. While retrenching in most things, the fancy seemed to have seized the Court to let a favourite be indulged, and play at the game of ships,—and here to be sure we have a fleet which has within ten years cost more than a million sterling of outlay, and costs annually close on half a million for maintenance—just for the look of the thing!

The recommendations of the Finance Committee, in fact, went to the extinction of the Indian Navy, and they ventured to regret that its demise should have been delayed by changing its name from that of the Bombay Marine. The following are the retrenchments recorded by the Committee, amounting in all to above six lakhs of rupees: they are assuredly sweeping enough though for five vessels, all they desired to have maintained, twelve lakhs annually might seem sufficient outlay:—

at the Marine Office, and make his report; Captain Ross, the gentleman occupying that important post, being not only much the senior of the Superintendent but having long held the highest name amongst the scientific navigators and geographers of the eastern seas. The order so much resembled a proceeding of the Yorkshire Schoolmaster of Dickens, that the name of Squeers, applied to its author, and from its felicity borne by him ever since, cast it so thoroughly into ridicule as to occasion its disuse. Betwixt 1832 and 1842 nine first-class steamers had been added to our navy, which at this time numbered one ship—dismantled, three sloops of war of about 400 tons and 18 guns each, four brigs, six schooners, and two cutters, or fifteen sailing vessels in all, of an aggregate burthen of 3,419 tons, and armament of 128 guns: subsequent additions have raised our fleet to 42 in number, of which fifteen are sea-going, and twelve river, steamers. The secrecy and mystery maintained from this time about the Marine office, left much to be gathered from whispers or conjecture. A proverbial surliness, rudeness, and determination to disoblige as much as possible, had succeeded the blandness and urbanity to which we had been accustomed. There seemed to have been a dream of

The allowance of officers here made for five vessels of war gives one Captain or Commander, four Lieutenants, and five Midshipmen, to each ship, after setting aside one Captain, three Lieutenants, and as many Midshipmen, as on the non-effective list,—or about four times the number of officers we at present possess: they seemed to have no idea of that species of economy which maintain ships but withholds men.

To this report four very important minutes are attached—that of Sir John Malcolm, then Governor of Bombay; that of Sir Charles Malcolm, his brother, then Superintendent of the Indian Navy; and those of Captain Bruce and Captain Hennel, Resident and Assistant Resident at Bushire. Sir C. Malcolm states that he had been appointed on purpose to have the discipline and arrangements of the Indian assimilated as closely as possible to those of the Royal Navy; (a) and he states that the recommendations of the Finance Committee went directly to the subversion of all the arrangements made with this object in view. It is curious to observe that the great grounds of objection to the report of the Committee by Sir C. Malcolm have come soon afterwards into existence without any financial benefit being promised or any actual advantage arising from them. Sir Charles, for example, set out with the assumption that the enforcement of the recommendations would prove ruinous to the service by putting for a time an end to all faith in regular promotion: this was one of the very grievances most severely felt by the navy when the system of promotion by caprice without regard either to merit or seniority, and the employment of Acting Masters, was introduced. Sir Charles says it was one of the conditions on which the Admiralty allowed the Indian Navy to wear a Pennant and Red Ensign, and gave naval rank and martial law to the Indian Navy officers,—that it should be commanded by an officer of the Royal Navy accustomed to administer martial law and maintain the discipline and customs which there prevailed; and he condemns the report on the grounds that all these things must necessarily fall before its recommendations: but though the report in these respects was never acted on, before Sir Charles had been five years absent from India martial law became unknown amongst us; and as for the manners and customs of the Royal Navy, we knew as little of them, and cared as little for them, as of the usages of the antediluvians or discipline of the ark!

But we have here given a sufficiency of contrasts of the past and present. The remaining minutes bear mainly on the suppression of piracy in the Persian Gulf, and the opening up of our communications with Europe by the Red Sea, then in contemplation. Sir John Malcolm's views on both subjects are so able and so admirably put, that his minute is well worthy of publication as a historical document, if any one ever thought of reading documents relating to the history of the British Government of India. In concluding these remarks, we can only regret that the papers which we have now recovered should not have occurred to us when engaged two years since in the more direct and immediate discussion of Indian Naval matters.

(a) It is a remarkable illustration of the laxity of the system that up to within these twenty years prevailed in the Bombay Marine,—that Sir C. Malcolm first introduced amongst them the practice of preserving the Log-books for future reference: there are no logs to be met with in the Marine Office older than 1828, making the old Bombay Marine a war navy, and all sorts of denunciations were vented on the post-office and packet service—the passengers coming in for a liberal share of the prevailing politeness. Disliked in most other respects, the Superintendent was in this last unhappily imitated by his officers; and gentlemen drawing from £3000 to £4000 a year from passengers' allowances demeaned themselves as if they had been the victims of the vilest oppression, and were entitled to vent their spleen on the innocent causes of their suffering. This state of matters was luckily of short duration, but the remembrance of its existence in 1839 and 1840 has deprived the navy of half the sympathy their subsequent sufferings would otherwise have experienced. From 30th December 1839 to 30th Dec. 1840 Commanders of the Red Sea steamers received amongst them the sum of £13,000 in the course of ten voyages: this came to be divided amongst the eight officers, of which the Captain of the Berenice received £5,100, he of the Victoria £4,200, he of the Zenobia £2,780. The style of discipline begun to be pursued illustrated by the case of Lieutenant Balfour. The Hugh Lindsay having been under orders for Suez with the last of the fair-weather mails, was ordered to be loaded with stores for Aden to an extent which made her be considered unsafe. She left the harbour in fact axle deep in the water, scarcely making three knots an hour. Just before her departure a letter giving a description of her plight appeared in the Bombay Gazette; and Lieutenant Balfour being assumed to be the writer, was on going on board placed under arrest by Lieutenant Webb the Commander, and sent ashore. His friends remonstrated on the cruelty of detaining him four months under arrest, exposed in the hulk Hastings to the inclemency of the rainy season: his trial could not take place until Lieutenant Webb's return in October; and if a court-martial was essential, then both officers ought to have been detained. There was, besides, no proof that Lieutenant Balfour wrote the letter; and no evidence that it was an offence cognizable by court-martial if he did. Remonstrances were in vain: the prisoner was kept in arrest afloat till his accuser returned. The court seemed to have been conducted in the most amusing manner imaginable. The first thing forgotten was to establish the fact that any letter had been published at all: the chief evidence for the prosecution turned out a witness for the defence. Mr McCallum declared that Lieutenant Balfour had never addressed him on this or any other subject, or held any intercourse with him whatever. He was of course fully and honorably acquitted of what would probably have been proved to be no offence if established against him—the whole matter in the letter being subject of notoriety to every one about the dockyard. The duties of Superintendent of the Indian Navy are chiefly administrative; the executive properly belonging to his subordinates. To have a proper supply of coal for steam purposes became a matter of extreme importance about 1838, and the Company's contracts at home had been so unsatisfactory that £3 per ton was paid for coal which might have been had at Bombay for little more than half that price. The Chamber of Commerce stated to Government that they would instruct their correspondents to put coal on board as dead weight as often as possible if it were taken off their hands at Bombay at mere shipping charges. The experiment was tried, but the Dockyard people were found so capricious in their demands that it was speedily abandoned. At this time the Company paid about £30,000 a year for coal, of which about a third might have been saved had they taken the Chamber of Commerce's suggestion instead of purchasing for themselves: they have become wiser since, and now procure for £1-10s. what used to cost them £3. The Court of Directors had shortly before forbidden the employment of officers from merchant ships in their service : we are ignorant by what means, or under what circumstances, it came to pass that the order so speedily became neglected. Within a year of the arrival of Sir Robert Oliver it became the custom to employ such parties, to the supercession of regularly commissioned officers, and to confer on them the good things of the service.. One reason of the secrecy of the dockyard orders has now become apparent—the marine office had no Lindley Murray—the Superintendent could not write grammar ! Complaints now became constant in reference to the demeanor of the Superintendent of the Indian Navy to officers who, if not his favourites, were received by him, even when wishing to do him reverence, with such rudeness, such opprobrious epithets or volleys of oaths, as a common tar would hardly be subjected to by the most unmannerly Commander. Officers were transferred from ship to ship without the slightest regard to merit or seniority : a Captain who had just supplied himself with a table service and provisions as a packet officer, probably found himself, on the eve of his supposed departure for Suez, in orders for a cruise to the Persian Gulf. The most venal error was punished in one as if a mortal offence,—habitual drunkenness and neglect of duty, to the extent of suffering from delirium tremens, threatening suicide or having a crew in mutiny, was in another passed over without remark ; unseaworthiness being in a favourite a passport to staff employment. If surveys were not put an end to, ships were sent on them half officered ; the usual survey allowances were struck off ; and the whole navy was so wretchedly supplied with the most ordinary instruments as to be in this respect in worse condition than a Newcastle collier. The subject having been adverted to by the Geographical Society, a letter was received from Leadenhall Street, intimating that any deficiency in this respect was due entirely to the local authorities, as on no point was the Court more anxious, or more liberal, than on that of instruments, and supplying of all defects. As if on purpose to spite officers, or as indicating that they were not considered deserving of the little comforts or elegances every gentleman desires to have around him, steamers on their arrival from England were stripped of their mirrors and ornaments,—these being sold at anything they would bring rather than allowed to remain on board. Vessels built at Bombay were sent to sea pretty much as they left the carpenters' hands : if not perfectly painted, or if the cabin furniture was out of order, there was storm enough,—but charges of this sort must be defrayed by the Captain himself ! Seamen are commonly jealous of the interference of landsmen—landsmen always averse to meddle with marine affairs. The Superintendent of the Indian Navy, believed to be upright and conscientious, active and zealous in the discharge of his duties, had obtained so completely the ear of Government that his word was law. Complaints of his despotic and arbitrary proceedings having been made at a Court of Proprietors, were followed by the honour of Knighthood being conferred upon him. Refusing to listen to counsel—entrusted with absolute power,—jealous, suspicious, and vindictive, a naturally arbitrary and despotic temper had experienced the usual effects of unbounded indulgence. A despot who expects ever to hear the truth, or become aware of the real state of things around him, must be imbued with a much larger share of openness, kindness, urbanity, and candour, than falls to the lot of most men in authority. He who without these resolves on exercising absolute power, does so at the risk of inflicting, however unintentionally, unbounded injustice. The Superintendent having closed the legitimate channels, of counsel and information, is understood to have resorted to those which were alone left open to him—secret information, tale-bearing, and espionage, finding the utmost favour in his eyes. Favouritism was exercised without restraint, and in like manner were resentments indulged in ; and it is not, under these circumstances, wonderful that the system patronized should be practised by him, and the Court of Directors kept informed, by secret despatches, of the supposed demerits or misdoings of those meant to be victimized, until the time of summary dismissal arrived. The case which brought this and so many other things to light, was that of Lieutenant Bird, in 1847 dismissed from the service. This officer entered the navy in 1823, and might in 1848 have retired on a pension of £180 a year due to his rank. He had been appointed Harbour Master at Kurrachee in 1845, and, having suffered from the climate, proceeded on two years' leave to the Neilgherry Hills for the benefit of his health. He had throughout enjoyed the universal esteem and respect of his brother officers, and no complaint of any sort had been of late brought, or ever established, against him. He had had no communication with any official leading him to imagine that anything adverse awaited him : when, receiving some official papers in sick quarters, he opened them expecting to find himself gazetted as Commander in consequence of the augmentation just about to be made in the number of officers in the Indian Navy. To his horror and amazement he found himself dismissed without cause ; his pay stopped on the instant ; and he left in a strange country to subsist himself on charity, —a scanty pittance being allowed him in the shape of a pension ! A portion of the Court's letter on which this was based was afterwards suffered to see the light, and here were the only indications of the grounds of the punishment inflicted. In 1843 Mr. Bird had at Aden been unexpectedly put in command of the Berenice, in place of an officer not then considered fit to take charge of a vessel to Suez, though afterwards rewarded with a staff appointment. Mr. Bird's ship was officered with Acting Masters fresh drawn from some merchant vessels ; the ship got ashore amongst coral reefs over night, at a time when it was not usual, or in general requisite, for the Commander to be on deck. He was tried by court-martial, the chief charge being the omission to heave the lead ; though in seas filled with coral like that where the steamer went ashore, there is often no bottom to be found within ten fathoms of a reef. He was fully and honorably acquitted by the court, and, one would therefore have imagined, on the common principle of justice stood as clear of blame as if no charge had ever been laid against him. The steamer was but little injured. On such a principle as this, Captain Powell may yet be dismissed for the loss of the Memnon, for which he was tried and acquitted. The other ground of offence was that while Harbour Master at Kurrachee he had incurred the displeasure of Sir C. Napier. The case proved to have been this : the Berenice having arrived with stores, the officer commanding—Lieut. Selby—intimated to the superior naval officer—Lieut. Bird—that his vessel was empty and ready for sea. Of this Sir C. Napier was immediately apprised : when it was found that some trifles—a dozen or two of campstools we believe—had escaped observation and remained to be disembarked. A signal was made to that effect, and a boat immediately ordered from the shore. A stiff breeze had meanwhile sprung up, and the boats had difficulty in reaching the vessel. Some hours of time were lost : the boats, knowing the difficulty of obtaining remuneration for any damage sustained by them in knocking against a steamer, were not very bold in their approaches, and ultimately, after various fruitless attempts, sheered off. By the time this had occurred, the mail for Bombay had arrived at Minora Point, and the only alternative that remained was to delay the steamer till the weather moderated, with the risk of keeping the Sind letters, with official despatches of importance, till too late for the overland steamer,—or to dispatch the Berenice at once. The latter course Lieutenant Bird wisely determined to pursue. Some warm or heating expression may probably on the occasion have escaped Sir C. Napier : whatever it was, it never became subject of official notice. When the matter was fully explained to him he expressed his entire satisfaction with what had occurred ; and when Mr. Bird was recalled and a non-commissioned officer put in his place, the Governor of Sind expressed deep regret at his departure.

These circumstances gave rise to the transmission of a multitude of memorials prepared for the Court of Directors by the junior officers, none of whom knew but that their own turn for victimization might be at hand. A reprimand of unusual violence was returned from the India House, where the Oliver interest was supreme and triumphant. That a greater degree of secrecy than that in general prevailing would under such circumstances obtain, was on this occasion to have been expected, where there was so much meanness and tyranny to be ashamed of, and the first light let in upon the secrets of the Council Chamber, was afforded by the examinations before the Committee on Indian Affairs in 1852.—Mr. Willoughby, one of the ablest of our public servants, and Member of Council when these oppressions occurred, stated that he had then recorded an opinion condemnatory, as it would appear, of the conduct of Sir Robert Oliver, and was told that his views being calculated, in the opinion of Court, to promote discontent in the service, were highly disapproved at home. Mr. Willoughby states that he felt so much shocked with this gratuitous insult, that he considered his independence as a Member of Council extinguished.

It is very clear not the less that even the warmest friends of the Superintendent began to perceive that the system he was pursuing could not very long be persevered in, in the face of the remonstrances of the Press, and that if Leadenhall Street and Cannon Row persisted in maintaining the existing despotisms which might have been extinguished at once had its victims been true to each other, Parliament would by and by take up arrangements so universally complained of, in an establishment now costing the country close on half a million sterling a year. On the 4th of April 1848 accordingly Sir Robert Oliver was appointed Commander-in-Chief and Commodore of the Indian Navy in place of Commodore and Superintendent,—the latter designation being that up to this date borne by the head of the service : and about this time a code of laws and forms of proceeding for Courts Martial were brought into existence, to get rid of the most anomalous state of things which had previously prevailed ; and matters were beginning to become smoothed over when the hand of death removed from the sphere of his unpopularity one of the most severely censured men who ever presided over a public department amongst us. In the end of July, when seeing his friend Mr. Goldsmid, Secretary to Government, then dangerously ill on board ship on his way to the Cape, Sir Robert suffered so much from exposure to the sun as to be seized with an alarming illness, which on the 5th of August proved fatal to him. There was something so touching in the circumstances, and so sad in the suddenness of his demise, that the bitterness of feeling and acerbity of expression he had awakened at once gave away. Looking back over the interval of seven years which have since then elapsed, if we see little to modify in the censures then expressed, much has transpired to extenuate or excuse the harshness which under the lights the time afforded could hardly be too severely condemned. Like most despots Sir Robert Oliver speedily found himself surrounded by sneaking cringing slaves, ready to administer too and foster his infirmities, and to carry out the meanest and most overbearing of his behests ; and thus a temperament, naturally despotic, became insufferably tyrannical from the abundance of tools for oppression. His manners would not perhaps have been considered outrageous in a previous generation, when the Hawser Trunions of a former age found subjects of ridicule for a Fielding or a Smollett. But the rough life and severe privations of a seaman have long since ceased to be considered as excuses for coarseness or brutality in the man, and amongst no class of public servants will a larger amount of good breeding or measure of knowledge and accomplishment be found than amongst those who now-a-days go down to the sea in ships. Though profoundly ignorant of every thing beyond the limits of his profession, Sir Robert Oliver was a man of very considerable natural abilities, of not a little kind-heartedness, and of the most perfect self-reliance. Spurning the bugbear of responsibilities, his whole heart was in the duties of his office. Indefatigable in his exertions, and without a thought of himself, Government have seldom had a servant at once so thoroughly unpopular, and so anxious to discharge his duties.

By a singular and sad coincidence the Presidency at almost the same hour became aware of the death of the Superintendent, and of the officer who as senior of the Service would, had he survived, have succeeded him, Captain Pepper, then Master Attendant, long Commodore in the Persian Gulf, and the last of those who had held that rank at Surat, having died on the 4th at Poona. Captain Lynch the Deputy Superintendent, and who had acted for Sir Robert Oliver during that officer's absence in England in 1844-45, was once more promoted to the head of the service. His tenure of office was of short duration, and he was superseded on the 1st September 1848 by the arrival of Commodore Hawkins from the Persian Gulf, who was promoted in right of seniority.

On the 16th of February 1849, Captain—now Admiral—Sir Stephen Lushington, who had been appointed by the Court of Directors, arrived from England, and took command. About this time much discussion had occurred at home on the unsatisfactory condition and extravagant charges of the Indian Navy, and a Committee was appointed by Parliament to inquire into the subject. The evidence given on the occasion by one of the senior officers excited almost universal astonishment. Sir Charles Wood,* afterwards President of the Board of Control, then Chancellor of the Exchequer, in replying to the Court of Directors on the subject, expressed himself strongly against the principle of employing Ships of War in the Packet service, and was most favorable for the transference of this from the Indian Navy to the P. & O. Company. The question would, it was understood, have been settled at once, as it was three years afterwards, but for the hard swearing of some of the witnesses and the measure recommended by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, in May 1850, was left to be carried out by him when presiding over the India Board in December 1853. Of all the mysteries connected with the Government of India the most inexplicable is that of our Naval administration. In every department but this the Government of India is in all things supreme. Though requiring to be consulted in the repairs of a ship, if exceeding 10,000 Rupees in amount. * They have no right beyond this in any way to interfere with the arrangements of a department which costs the country half a million sterling annually. The Court of Directors reserve to themselves the entire patronage and administration of the Marine, which has, as might be expected under such an arrangement, always been a model of mismanagement. The bills incurred for stores sent out from home amount to betwixt £80,000 and 90,000, and so carelessly do these seem to be selected, that from £20,000 to 30,000 are sold annually at Bombay. At the very time when its chief occupation was about to be withdrawn, and private steamers had come into existence in sufficient numbers to perform all that could be required in the transport of troops and treasure, orders were received from home in December 1852 to construct two vessels of 1800 tons each, and 600 horse power, costing between close on a quarter of a million sterling, to be employed in the Packet service. The first of them, the Assaye, was laid down in February 1852 and launched in April 1854, just as the duties for which she had been brought into existence had been transferred to other hands. The mismanagement connected with the Engine Department of this vessel and her consort the Punjab has already been noticed. The distinction earned in China by the Indian Navy in 1841-42 has already been adverted to. The sudden appearance of misunderstandings with Burmah in the end of 1851 once more put their efficiency to the test. On the 19th of February orders were received from the Governor General for the immediate dispatch of a powerful steam squadron to the Irrawaddy, and within a week the Feroze, Moozuffer, Zenobia, Sesostris, and Medusa iron river steamer, were ready for sea and proceeded under the command of Commodore Lynch. The feat was an unprecedented one, and the exertions of all the parties concerned in bringing it about received, as they deserved, the highest commendations from Supreme authority. They continued till August 1853, when their services were no longer required, to afford the most invaluable assistance to the expedition; and to them was exclusively due the immunity our troops suffered on the capture of Rangoon. Alterations having taken place in the arrangements of the Royal Navy, Captain Lushington found that he had not served a sufficient length of time in command of a boat to secure his promotion as admiral when his turn came. He accordingly tendered his resignation, and was on the 4th of March 1853 relieved by the arrival of Sir Henry Leeke. His administration had on the whole been a popular one, and in no four years of the newspaper files since the beginning of the century will so few complaints against or on the part of the service be found as during those when the gallant officer first named ruled over the Marine Department. Having received a ship in the Mediterranean almost immediately on his return home, he took a large and distinguished share in the Naval operations in the Black Sea. He commanded the Marine Brigade on shore, and was in June 1855 promoted to the rank of Rear Admiral, receiving the honor of Knighthood on the occasion. Sir Henry Leeke signalized his administration by an anxiety to please the public and accommodate the Press, to which both had before been strangers. It would be premature to attempt a review of his administration till its close. Some further remarks on the India Navy itself will be found at the close of the preceding section treating of our Red Sea Communication.

NATIVE EDUCATION IN WESTERN INDIA.

In 1815 the Bombay Education Society was established, chiefly through the exertions of the Venerable Archdeacon Barnes. The chief objects it had at the outset in view were the instruction of the children of European soldiers and others in the humbler ranks of life, of pure or mixed lineage. Orphans and dependant or pauper children were to be maintained as well as taught, until they had reached an age when they were likely to be capable of providing for themselves. We have not been able to lay our hands on any of the earlier issues of the reports, so as to trace the progress of the schools from year to year: at the ordinary annual examination in 1820, which is stated to have been attended by the Hon'ble the Governor, the Hon'ble Lady Colville, and a large assemblage of the ladies and gentlemen at the presidency, the number of children at the Central Schools was stated to amount to 172 in all, of whom 53 were girls, and 119 boys: of these, 136 were entirely supported by the charity. In the native schools there were 250 pupils, and in all, including regimental schools, above 800 were under the charge of the Society. Though the Court of Directors had not confirmed to its full extent the donation intended for the schools by Government, the income was found to amount to Rs. 30,000, the expenditure to Rs. 25,000, of which Rs. 20,000, were required for the Central Schools.—The first attempt to extend the scheme under a separate organization appears to have been thought of by the Society in 1818: the Bombay School Committee, after having provided for the education of European children of both sexes, powerfully supported by the munificence and charitable aid of Government, and the public at large, at length began to turn their attention to the best means of extending the blessings of education to the Native youth. It was determined to employ, as an English Schoolmaster, a young Mahomedan, taught in the Society's Central School, and who had given early and abundant proofs of his capacity to perform the duties of teacher. The Bell system of mutual instruction was to be attempted: in the month of August a class of some twenty Parsee children was opened, and it was hoped that one of the first results would be the preparation of other teachers to undertake the task of tuition. A Goozeratee teacher intimated his desire to be instructed at the Central School on the monitorial plan, and a beginning, humble as it was, was thus attempted to be made. The want first experienced was that of books, and the committee resolved to apply to the Calcutta School Society for supplies: these were to be translated at Bombay into the dialects required.

By the month of July 1820 matters had advanced so far that a separate branch of the Education Society was established, for the express purpose of instructing the Natives. A subscription paper was issued, and the name of Governor Elphinstone headed the list; and he presided at a general meeting of the subscribers and friends to the scheme, the objects of which were to assist in the improvement of native schools then in existence*—to establish and support additional schools and to endeavour to procure suitable books of instruction in English as well as in the Oriental tongues. A portion of these were to be prepared on purpose : they were to be distributed gratuitously, or at charges so moderate as to be within general reach. The primary object of the schools was to convey instruction in the language of the country. The Society resolved that under this particular section, religious books would not be supplied. Dr. Taylor, a man of much learning, enlightenment, and zeal, was appointed Secretary : four Parsees, four Mahomedans, and four Hindoos, were to form the native portion of the Direction.

So soon as these things became noised abroad, petitions were sent from Poonah, entreating that an English teacher might be sent up to them : another was forwarded from Panwell for the establishment of a native school. The usual apathy was manifested on the subject by the general body of the natives, and at the meeting of the committee in October, it may be stated that prejudices had got abroad amongst certain portions of them in reference to the establishment, which it had been found impossible to remove. Nothing daunted in this, the committee resolved to proceed with alacrity in the good work just begun, and that the preparation of school books in particular should be pushed on with vigour. What had been at first a committee merely of the Education Society, appears about this time to have constituted itself also into a separate body, and we shall therefore take leave of the primary establishment, which scarcely hereafter comes within the scope of our narrative, by stating that in 1825 the Bombay Education Society had secured a piece of ground near the Byculla School, and collected funds sufficient to enable them to build the Schools as they now stand. The plans were furnished and work superintended by Captain Jervis, and they will remain a monument to his architectural ability—of substantiality and suitableness, with as much of show as comported with the objects and funds of the charity. The foundation stone was laid on the 1st May 1825. Since then it has pursued the even tenor of its way with little alteration till 1847, when the oyster like existence of the boys was broken in upon by Mr Watson, the discovery having been made that children required something more than mere eating, drinking, saying prayers, sleeping, and reading, before they could be trained as parties who must occupy a place in Society, and share in the avocations of life—working the work of Him who sent them while here, that they might prepare for a new existence hereafter.

Captain Jervis had some time before this brought into existence a seminary for the more general diffusion of mathematical and physical knowledge amongst such of the natives as were desirous of preparing themselves for employment under Government in the road and tank or general works department, under the name of the Engineers' Institution. The task of instructing fell on himself exclusively : he translated books for their service, and taught them to make use of them : he had them instructed, not only in arithmetic, algebra, and geometry—in drawing, and measurement,—but in practical mechanics ; and Mr Elphinstone saw with astonishment, on one of his visits to the establishment, a high caste Brahmin tugging at one end of a saw while a Sudra pulled the other. They were quite familiar, indeed, with every department of practical mechanics, and up to the present time the parent of the establishment perseveres, though on a more limited scale now that he has reached the head of his profession, in the plan on which he begun. There is probably no more successful or persevering schoolmaster in the presidency than our late Chief Engineer, and no one has more perfectly succeeded in imbuing his pupils with the zeal, perseverance, and enthusiasm, indispensable to success.

In 1823 Captain Jervis became Secretary to the Native School Book Society. In 1824 the Society complained of the great inconveniency of being compelled to rent premises for the accommodation of their schools, and in the early part of 1825 the plot of ground on the verge of the esplanade, on which the Elphinstone College now stands, was secured. In 1823 the Society had suggested that rewards should be offered for translations from English works or the composition in Mahratta or Goozerattee of books suited for the objects of the Society : and in January 1825 Government intimated their readiness to confer prizes for such works of Rs. 100 to Rs. 400,—prizes of Rs. 5000 were afterwards conceded,—and the Society ordered out from England a hundred pounds' worth of such works as might advance the views of the Society. The Society seemed to doubt whether even from these they should be able to supply their wants, and stated that works would be of the greatest value prepared by Europeans familiar with the habits, modes of thought, and wishes, of the natives, and translated into the vernacular tongues. At this time the services of only one press were at the disposal of the committee, and the delay arising from this protracted the publication of many of the books that had been prepared. In consideration of this, Government at this time presented the Society with four lithographic presses, and ordered for their use founts in the native character, with a large supply of printing presses from Calcutta and England. The Society meanwhile set about instructing young men in lithography and typography, so as befittingly to meet the occasion, and enable those under their charge to assist in providing the means of spreading enlightenment. The public had in 1823 been appealed to for the establishment of a Native General Library : the appeal was attended with most unexpected success, and the Government, in those days always in the van in the race of improvement, in "Elphinstone's time," presented the Society with copies of a variety of Goozerattee manuscripts collected by Colonel Mills at Pahlunpore, which were considered of peculiar value from the difficulty of procuring books in that language ; and with a large collection of Sanscrit and Mahratta manuscripts, chiefly on philosophy and medicine, bequeathed to the Court of Directors by Dr Taylor, the original Secretary to the Society. The following is a note of the works prepared or in progress in the year 1825 : when we read of doings such as these, and reflect on the present state of things amongst us, we are amazed at the steps backwards that have within these twenty-five years been taken in the practical business of Education. Printing has long ceased to be attended to : our Deccan Vernacular Society has been brought into existence to supply the defects in the book and translation-manufacturing departments of our schools, and in three years' time a single translation is all it can boast of :—

"During the last year, therefore, there has been printed only the Gunnit, System of Arithmetic on the European Plan, in Goozratee, and four hundred copies of each of the Folio Tables for the use of the schools, according to Lancaster's System, in Maratha. But there are now in the press the copies of Lancaster's Tables in Goozratee; the stories in Maratha for Children; a translation into Maratha and Goozratee of Colonel Pasley's Practical Geometry, and Hutton's Mensuration of Planes and Solids ; and a treatise on Plane Trigonometry, with Tables of Logarithms, Log: Sines, &c. in Maratha ; a translation into Maratha of Æsop's Fables and Hindoostanee Stories translated from Jumu-ool-Hikayat. There are moreover prepared, and merely waiting for the means of being printed, Gunnit, Second Part, in Maratha and Goozratee. A Grammar and a Dictionary of the Maratha language, in Maratha only, for the use more particularly of natives, are in course of preparation by the Pundits of the Society. A Goozratee Dictionary, now in progress, has been tendered to the Society, and also the translation into Maratha of an Abridged History of England. Works similar to the Dictionary and Grammar of the Maratha language, above referred to, are intended to be prepared in Goozratee, and their great utility will be obvious; for these two languages have hitherto been employed merely for the purposes of intercourse and business, and have never been either fixed or refined by writers in prose. The rules of Grammar, therefore on analyzed and definite principles, and the capacities of these languages, are unknown, even to the Natives themselves; and consequently, until these essential points are ascertained, the composers of original treatises, and particularly translators, from having no acknowledged rules or standard works to refer to, must labour under the greatest difficulties.

The Society had now secured the valuable services of Mr R. X. Murphy as a teacher—a gentleman then as now alike distinguished as a ripe and accomplished Orientalist and a correct and elegant English writer. At this time the Society complained that though a large number of Natives in Government and other European employment were tolerably familiar with English, they knew little of grammar and nothing of literature, and that in thus imparting such a smattering of a foreign language as sufficed for the ordinary purposes of business or intercourse, they were wholly ignorant of the grammatical structure of their own tongue; and every effort was accordingly directed to be made to secure a correct knowledge of the grammar of the languages taught at school, whether foreign or vernacular—that what they did know the pupil should know well. The small impression produced on the general mass of ignorance by the instruction of a mere handful of boys, was a very little matter of itself; and the object of the Society was to educate and send forth schoolmasters trained to take up on the large scale the work of instruction. In 1825 the Society lost the services of Mr Murphy, who resigned, and were for some time without an English schoolmaster. In want of this the English School department was committed to the charge of four natives, on whom was bestowed the moderate compensation of Rs. 15 each per month. Mr Mainwaring, an artillery man, was soon after appointed teacher, the natives retaining their stipends and continuing as his assistants. In 1814 an order had been issued by the Right Hon'ble the Governor-General for the establishment of regimental schools in all European corps, and in 1820 the Bombay Government issued an order authorizing stoppages of not more than Rs. 60 for regimental schoolmasters: sergeants of artillery were to contribute from Rs. 1 to Rs. 14, of infantry 12 annas. Schoolmasters were on no account to receive more than Rs. 20 a month. In 1821 the native artillery were allowed to entertain a pundit on a monthly allowance of Rs. 104, afterwards extended to Rs. 15, for the instruction of the sepoy boys. In 1826 a pundit was directed to be allowed, and a schoolroom to be provided, for each regiment; and in 1827 the Society was applied to to provide teachers for the army, and at the same time to see to the training of boys belonging to the corps respectively, so as to supply them for the future from their own children. The departure from Bombay of one of the most benevolent, enlightened, and illustrious statesmen of whom our annals can boast was now at hand; and his admirers cast about them how they might best exhibit the sense they entertained of his merits, and erect to him such a monument as he would prize. None more gratifying could have been chosen than that which was selected: three lakhs of rupees—thirty thousand pounds sterling,—were subscribed by the native community in honour of Mountstuart Elphinstone, for the purpose of constituting a fund for the endowment of one or more Professorships, to be held by learned men from Europe, until the arrival of the time when natives should be found competent to hold them—these to be denominated the Elphinstone Professors throughout all time. The most liberal contributors to the fund thus raised were Framjee Cowasjee and Jamssetjee Jeejeebhoy, who subscribed Rs. 7000 each : the list abounds in the names of those who, true to the cause they a quarter of a century since espoused, stand now as they have ever stood, in the foremost rank of our improvers. The following extract from the report becomes peculiarly valuable at the present time, as indicating the practical direction the subscribers to the fund from which the Elphinstone Institution sprung meant to be given to the knowledge imparted :—

“ Adverting to the sound policy as well as to the duty of an enlightened Government to give its countenance and aid to these intentions, and considering the largeness of the sum before referred to (which there is little doubt of its averaging), we most earnestly hope that through the entreaties of your Society the Hon’ble the Governor in Council will be induced to add such a sum from the public Treasury to this fund, as shall secure, on handsome salaries, the services of at least three truly eminent men from England, selected by a public examination as to their fitness from persons invited to stand for it ; and on no account to be nominated by private choice or patronage. The sphere of one Professor should be languages and general literature ; of another Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, including Astronomy, Elementary and Physical ; of the third Chemistry, including Geology and Botany : the knowledge of the two last Professors to be particularly imparted with its relation to the useful arts, and the future profitable employment of it, by Natives in life. Your Society will be pleased to bear in mind, what the Natives have desired us particularly to express, that, by the study of the English language, they do not contemplate the supercession of the vernacular dialects of this country, in the promotion of Native Education ; but that they regard it merely as a help to the diffusion of European arts and sciences among them, by means of translations by those who have acquired a thorough acquaintance with it ; and as a branch of classical education to be esteemed and cultivated in this country as the classical languages of Greece and Rome are in the universities of Europe.”

In January 1827 it was resolved that in consideration of the operations of the Society having assumed a more exalted character since its foundation in the year 1820, the denomination of “ Bombay Native School Book and School Society” should be changed to the more general appellation of “ The Bombay Native Education Society,” which since then it has borne.

In 1830 Colonel (then Captain) Jervis, on being appointed to the Poona division, resigned the secretaryship of the Society, the duties of which he had for seven years discharged with so much zeal and success : he was presented on his retirement with an address from a body of the leading natives connected with the Society, and had a piece of plate of Rs. 3000 in value bestowed upon him. It was stated by them that to his exertions were mainly due the munificence of the subscription raised for the Elphinstone professorships, and that to him they were indebted for the selection and purchase of the ground on which the schools were built, as well as for the construction of the buildings themselves ; that he had been the means of introducing an improved method of instruction into their seminaries, for the publication or procurement of an extensive library of oriental and English works, and for the translation into Mahratta and Goozerattee of a complete course of arithmetic and mathematics as taught in Europe : and above all, to him was due the introduction of lithographic printing so excellently and economically executed as to be subject of universal admiration, and through means of which alone school books could be supplied.

On Mr Elphinstone's retirement his place was taken—it was not capable of being filled by any one—by a distinguished oriental scholar and zealous patriot, Sir John Malcolm, who presided for the first time over the meeting of the Society in March 1823, and expressed himself as in no way behind his illustrious predecessor in zeal for the cause. If Government had hitherto been liberal in their assistance to the Society, the Society had not leant lightly on public support.

In 1831 Government stated that within five years—from 1826 to 1830—the sum of Rs. 2,01,923, or on an average above Rs. 40,000 a year, had been contributed from the public purse to the Society. Betwixt 1823 and 1830 the subscriptions and donations of Europeans had amounted to Rs. 8,183, or on an average to Rupees 2,727 per annum; while those of the whole Native community amounted to no more than Rs. 4,714, or an average of Rs. 1,571 a year,—the greatest number of natives who had contributed during any single year being 27, of Europeans 60. Betwixt the year 1825 and 1831 the sum of Rs. 97,223, or close upon a lac of rupees, had been expended by Government in the printing of books for the Society; and feeling convinced that such an enormous outlay could never have been contemplated, it was resolved that from henceforth a consolidated allowance of Rs. 20,000, in lieu of all contributions, should be made to the Society.

The Society stated, in reference to this, that the expenses on the first establishment of an institution such as this were necessarily heavy; that the building of their schools had been accomplished exclusively by public contribution; that fifty-six schoolmasters had been already trained by them, and were now engaged in extending education amongst the natives: that the fifty-six schools under the charge of the Society, and all the regimental schools, had been supplied with books free of charge. The premium for translations originally allowed by Government had ranged from Rs. 100 to Rs. 400—they had subsequently been allowed to run as high as Rs. 5000:—it was stated that unless European gentlemen had chosen to employ their leisure hours in the work of translation the natives themselves would never have commenced it; and it was to stimulate exertion in this direction that the high premium referred to had originally been assigned by Government. The smallness of the native subscriptions was explained on the grounds of the general want of apprehension of the system of instruction pursued: only a few of the more enlightened were alive to the advantages of education; and the native schoolmasters of Bombay had, by a system of persevering misrepresentation, or by actual violence, endeavoured to deter pupils from entering the establishment.

The request of the Society, that Government would permit the printing of the works then in progress to be completed at the public charge, without encroaching on the Rs. 20,000, was complied with—the cost of this was estimated at above Rs. 32,125; and a further sum to the same account, of Rs. 6,819, to meet disbursements which had already occurred, was also granted. In June 1834 the Society were able to secure the services of Mr. Fraser as head master of the Central English School, and during the short period he continued to enjoy this appointment, he seemed to have conducted the task assigned him with ability and success: he died in October 1835. From the extreme inconvenience of trusting to supplies of English teachers on the spot, the Society at this time resolved to send home for two gentlemen of character and experience, and on the 29th November 1834 Mr. Bell and

Mr. Henderson arrived. They came out most highly recommended, and their performances speedily proved that they had not been recommended too highly. They commenced their duties immediately on arriving: besides teaching, they gave lectures in the evenings—open to the whole community—twice a week; and the reports of each successive year speak most highly of the progress made by their pupils. Within three months of this the committee reported that the eagerness for admission into the English Schools was such that there were 214 pupils at the central school, and 100 at that in the fort; and that such were the number of applications for admission that it had been resolved to erect an additional building on the premises of the Society, for the Goozerattee and Mahratta central Schools,—the whole space formerly required for pupils of all denominations being barely sufficient for those attending the English school. A practice fatal to school discipline had hitherto formed the subject of complaint of almost all the teachers: boys were constantly being withdrawn from school for the sake of a dinner, a drive, an excursion, or any piece of frivolous amusement that might occur: so rapidly was the love of knowledge beginning to take hold that the pupils themselves on these occasions frequently complained to the teachers of the annoyance this occasioned them, and declined to avail themselves of the holiday their relatives desired for them. Through the exertions of Mahomed Ibrahim Mukha, to the close of life a zealous member of the Board of Education, the disinclination the Mahomedan population had hitherto exhibited to countenance the schools of the Society began at length to be subdued. This gentleman in October 1834 established a school for the instruction of Mahomedan boys in Hindoostanee, which was speedily attended by from seventy to eighty: he himself composed a grammar for their use,—and the proficiency attained by them was such that within a year thirty-one were found fit for being admitted into the central English school. The school was from this time placed on the establishment of the Society. The scholarships originally established in honor of Sir E. West were now increased by the liberality of Government from four to twelve: they were divided into three sets—four fell vacant every year, and were held for a term of three years. These scholarships were conferred as rewards of proficiency, and through their means boys were induced to remain at school for a much longer period, and to attain a much larger degree of knowledge, than they would otherwise have done. In 1832 Bal Gungadhur Shastree, the Native Secretary of the Society, was, on the application of Government, sent to Ukulkote, as preceptor of the young Rajah: he returned to Bombay in 1835, and was attached to the Elphinstone College, as assistant professor, where he remained until his death in 1846. He was a man of much industry and learning, and was looked to as likely to be the first to occupy the chair of an English professor. In 1835 the arrangements for the establishment of the Elphinstone College were completed: its affairs were to be managed by a council of nine, five being Europeans and four Natives, with a stipendiary secretary and assistant secretary: the Europeans were to be named by Government, the Natives to be elected by the subscribers. The two first professors were to be nominated by Mr Elphinstone,—subsequent selections were to be made by the Council or Board of Education—the name it has lately assumed. They were to have stipends of Rs. 700 a month each. The professor of Natural Philosophy was to be assigned the house built for the Company's Astronomer at Colaba as a place of residence, Rupees 100 being retrenched from his salary on this account. He was to have charge of the Observatory. By this arrangement Government expected that the cause of general science might be promoted, while the instruments of the Observatory might be made subservient to the cause of education. Mr. Orlebar and Mr. Harkness, the parties who had been selected by Mr. Elphinstone, arrived at Bombay in July 1835: the former gentleman brought with him a collection of astronomical instruments, placed under his charge by the Court of Directors, while others were afterwards assigned to him on the breaking up of the Engineer Institution. These were first removed from their cases in 1840, and first made use of the following year, that preceding the professors's return to England. It was stated that the leisure of the professor permitted the observation of the transits of stars for the purpose of rating the chronometers of the Indian Navy to be the only use that could be made of them—they never served the ends of education at all—it was not till 1842 that the Observatory possessed any meteorological or magnetic instruments. On their arrival the rooms in the Town Hall adjoining the library of the Asiatic Society were assigned to the new professors as a place of instruction, and at the outset difficulty seems to have been experienced by them in finding pupils. Government at this time intimated its intention of employing in the revenue department as many of the élèves of the Society's schools as were found qualified for employment. On the retirement of Lord Clare from the presidency a further stimulant to the cause of education was given by the endowment of scholarships in his honour.

This brings us down from the earliest efforts of the country at large, and the first contributions of Government for the advancement of native education, to the time when the educational establishments had assumed something like the form in which they now exist. In taking a general review of what has been narrated, the reader will be struck with the sound sense and sagacity which characterise the whole of the arrangements and which so greatly conduced to the success which for a time attended the scheme. The highest kinds of English Education were to be given to all desiring it; but it was from the vernacular schools that the general promotion of knowledge amongst the community at large was expected to arise. All the higher branches of science were to be taught in English, an English education was to be given to all the Schoolmasters; and the great object at the outset was to be the manufacture of teachers. It was most strictly enjoined that a practical bearing should be given to instruction in science,—an injunction disregarded we believe by all but Mr Bell. Until 1850 nothing could have been less practical than the system of tuition prevalent at the Elphinstone College.*

* The following is the recommendation of Government to the Court of Directors:—

"5th.—We would recommend that one superior Professor of Mathematics, Astronomy, and all branches of Natural Philosophy, be appointed, upon a monthly salary of Rupees (900) Eight hundred per month. He might have charge of the Observatory, and we could give him the House built for the Astronomer rent free, which would make his income fully equal to the salary proposed by the Native Committee; while the use of the Observatory and Instruments would add to his facility of teaching; at the same time that it benefited Science.

"6th.—It is quite indispensable that the person nominated to this Professorship should be a man of high established character, for on this selection now and hereafter will chiefly depend the success of an Institution, of which he should be the Head as far as related to the executive duties.

"7th.—The only other appointment which the fund can at present afford should be an under Professor or Teacher, upon a salary of Rupees (600) six hundred per mensem, who ought to possess a complete knowledge of the practical application of the Sciences, Architecture, Hydraulics, Mechanics &c. &c., to the useful purposes of life."

It is sensible and sound, but seems to have met with no attention.

Mr Bell's course included a smattering of everything, and whatever he taught he taught well. Chemistry has only been of late taught at the Elphinstone College as a separate branch of study : geology has still more lately (1852) been added to the course. Special stress seems originally to have been laid on Astronomy, under the impression of its being a favorite study with the natives, and by its means most assuredly better than by other, could some of the most notable absurdities of the native creed be upset. Its value in both respects seems to have been overrated : it does not appear that practical astronomy was ever taught at the institution at all ; and of late it has been wisely dropped as a separate branch of study,—unless when instruction in it is specially desired,—and physical geography put in its place.

Colonel Jervis, as already stated, proceeded to Poona in 1830, and here he seems to have pressed on, the extension of education and general improvement with the same indomitable perseverance as before. The results of his zeal we find everywhere : his models and instruments have been scattered and left about wherever they were least likely to be of service : we meet with levels, telescopes, and an altitude and azimuth at Colaba ; telescopes, microscopes, theodolites, sextants, magnifiers, and engineer models of all sorts, thick with dust, at Poona,—no man regarding them. In the Deccan he obtained from Government a large grazing farm for the improvement of wool and the breed of sheep, and at one time he had some seven thousand nearly pure merinos on the establishment, which was only broken up some couple of years ago.

SECOND PERIOD.—The establishment of our Education Board in 1840 introduces a new epoch in the history of our educational efforts, hitherto more remarkable for benevolence and energy than for the system or method with which they were pursued. The Board consisted of three European, including the President, and three native members—the first three being named by Government, the latter by the natives themselves. Under this were to be placed the Funds of the Native Education Society as well as those of the Elphinstone College ; and the new body was hereafter to conduct the Educational arrangements of the Presidency. The new plan, expedient as it seemed, was not at the outset acceptable to the natives. Mr. Henderson and Mr. Bell, the highly efficient teachers of the Education Society, were regarded as inferior in rank, as they were in income, to Professors Harkness and Orlebar, and the fields of instruction cultivated by them respectively materially interfered with each other. The members of the Native Education Society were dissatisfied with the constitution of the Board, and petitioned Government for the election of one European in addition to the three native members to be returned by them. The matter seems to have been compromised. The College was for a time placed in abeyance, and the establishment received the name of “the Elphinstone Native Education Institution,” and the first nomination of office bearers was so judicious as to disarm opposition. Sir John Awdry was named President, an office speedily vacated by him on his return to England ; his first European colleagues were Messrs. Bruce, C. S., Morris, C. S., and Dr. McLennan. The native constituents being Framjee Cowasjee, Esq., Juggonath Sunkersett, Esq., and Mahomed Ibrahim Mukba, Esq., all of whom had long rendered themselves conspicuous for their efforts in the cause of Native Education. Considering the uncertainty of health and life in India, and the frequency with which changes occur amongst the men in public station, the Board was long singularly fortunate in being nearly exempt from mutation. The first vacancy, not taking into account that occasioned by the retirement of Sir John Awdry, known at the time of his appointment to be at hand, was occasioned by the death of Mr. Bruce in 1842—Mr. Morris remained in office till 1846, and Dr. McLennan continued in it till his retirement from the Service in 1855, almost to the date of its abolition, with the exception of the interval of his absence in Europe on medical certificate. Framjee Cowasjee and Mahomed Ibrahim Muckba, after a service of ten and twelve years respectively, withdrew from it, when age and infirmities unfitted them for exertion, Juggonath Sunkersett continued a member till its demise a few months ago. The Secretary to the Board was appointed by Government, and allowed a salary of three hundred Rupees a month, with a suitable establishment. Captain Ramsay was the gentleman first named, but was succeeded by Dr. Morehead the following year, and the office was held by this gentleman until his promotion to the Principalship of the Grant Medical College in 1845, when his place was taken at the Board by Dr. Stovell, who held the appointment till its extinction, Dr. Carter acting for him during his absence on sick leave at the Cape in 1848-49.

It has been already stated that the thoroughly practical and utilitarian principles prescribed by the Native Education Society, had never been acted up to; the imperfection was to some extent endeavoured to be remedied in 1843, when the establishment of an Engineering class was determined on. This, in the end of the year, was placed under the charge of Professor Pole, a gentleman distinguished for his knowledge of mathematics and music, and sent out by the Court of Directors on purpose. The great difficulty experienced by the Professor was in giving a sufficiently practical turn to the studies of his pupils, in making them comprehend what they really were intended to learn, and in satisfying them on the only point intelligible to a native pupil, how his studies might, the instant of quitting the class, be turned to pecuniary account. The Professor was expected to employ himself and improve his emoluments and position as Architect and Civil Engineer: but in Bombay, where ten or twenty per cent are thrown away in the construction of every edifice not under Government charge through sheer misplanning and want of science, every rupee bestowed on our Architect or Engineer, would ten years ago have been reckoned down right waste and extravagance. Mr. Pole, though an able and accomplished, was not a successful teacher; his constitution besides was feeble and his health infirm. Like most men accustomed to literary society at home, he disliked the country, and retired from Bombay in 1846, speedily afterwards to receive an honorable appointment at home.* The class was taken up by Capt. Marriott of the Engineers, but was soon afterwards abandoned for want of pupils, the young men under this very able and efficient teacher not feeling certain of instant employment under Government, and not being able to discover how near the age of railways, irrigation and large public and private works of all descriptions, was at hand.

The Hon'ble Mr. Anderson, Member of Council, afterwards Sir George, had followed Sir John Awdry as President of the Board. On his return to Europe in 1843, he was succeeded by Sir Erskine Perry, who had arrived in Bombay as Puisne Judge in 1842, on the promotion of Sir Henry Roper to the Chief Justiceship. Sir Erskine, like many other clever men, on assuming a new office, seemed disposed to think lightly of the efforts of his predecessors, and proposed to upset much of what had been done by them, and one of his earliest minutes accordingly was in the last degree desparaging. He was suspected besides to have an undue leaning to English education, and on this point matters were nearly coming to a collision in 1845 betwixt himself and his colleague Colonel Jervis, whose name occupies so prominent a place as an educationist in the opening section of our observations. Sir Erskine besides was at the outset of his career all for high caste and ennobling education, and spoke in terms of extreme contempt of the utilitarian system originally contemplated by the founders of the Education Society, once again adopted in the Education Despatch, but in a great measure set aside from the establishment of the Elphinstone College.

And here the subject comes to subdivide itself into three sections : on the establishment of the Grant Medical College ; on the extension of education in the Mofussil. These we shall take up separately, and meantime carry on the thread of our narrative in more immediate connection with the great Central Establishment at the Presidency.

The Education Report prepared, as it subsequently appeared, by the President, for 1846, had been negligently written and still more negligently passed through the Press. It seemed to us incorrect in style and eminently unsound in doctrine, and was accordingly pulled to pieces in the Bombay Times.* Sir Erskine at this time strongly urged the importance of the highest style of instruction, and the prosecution of a course of study, in Europe only deemed desirable by men of fortune, or those being trained for some of the learned profession ; and when we described this as a feast for the few and starvation for the many, in place of such a morsel of bread for the multitude as could be afforded, the learned President severely rebuked the Press at his address at the next annual meeting. In 1847-48 a great modification in his views seem to have occurred, and a very able minute prepared by him in 1849 appeared to us so sound, and so ably reasoned, as to find a place in the Almanac of 1850.

In 1843 Mr. Henderson, one of the original teachers under the Native Education Society, withdrew from the Government Establishment, and joined the Free Church Mission Seminaries, while Mr. Bell, who had come out

* We trust we shall be pardoned in subjoining the following extract from a note from Sir Erskine in reply to one intimating that the writer of these lines intended applying to the Court of Directors for an appointment under the Board should the application meet the Chairman's approval. We give it as exhibiting to our native friends the extent to which Englishmen may differ from each other in opinion, without impairing their respect for each other, as well as to show that Sir Erskine saw the necessity of a Director of Public Instruction, for to this his recommendation amounts at least five years before the publication of the Educational Despatch.

Extract from a Note from Sir E. Perry, dated 13th February 1849.

"If I am consulted on the selection, I confess, candidly, that I should recommend some one who had devoted himself exclusively to the business of training—some specialité, as the French phrase it. * * * But although I say this, you will perceive that I do not rate at a low estimate the services which I think you might render to Education at this Presidency, when I inform you that I mentioned your name to Government as the fittest person for a much more important post. I have long thought that the Secretary to the Board ought to be a much more highly remunerated officer than he is, and recommended Rs. 1,000 or Rs. 1,500 a month. Government having asked the grounds of this opinion, which was contrary to what a former Board had expressed, I drew up a Minute, with a conspectus of the duties which a very qualified Secretary might perform ; and I enclose it for your perusal. The qualifications I desired were so high, that they were deemed unprocurable ; and when a Member of Government asked me who I would suggest to fill the office, I named yourself. The proposal is to go home, I believe."

as his colleague, retired from the service, and returned to England. The withdrawals at nearly the same time of two of the ablest and most experienced of our teachers, was a heavy blow to the cause of Education, their labors had so greatly tended to promote. In the beginning of 1846 also Mr. Pole, as already stated, and Professor Orlebar, resigned their appointments, and permanently withdrew from India. The vacancies thus created were in the beginning of 1847 filled up by the arrival of two distinguished Graduates of the Dublin University—Professors Patton and Reid. The former of these, after an eminent educational career of five years duration, died at the Cape, on his way home on sick leave in November 1852; the latter returned to England in February 1853, to finish his education as a Barrister, and the following year commenced practice at our local bar, having in June 1855 been appointed Perry Law Professor of Jurisprudence. Under these two gentlemen, both excellent teachers, a system of out of door mental training and exercise was introduced, until then new to us. Connected with many of our universities at home, pre-eminently so with those of Scotland, are societies of the students organised for the purpose of essay writing, debate, and discussion, on subjects connected with their studies, which for a century and more have been found to afford the most invaluable aid in mental training, to the seminaries, with which they were connected. Released from the trammels and formalities of the class-room, and the sometimes oppressive dignity of the Chair, the young men were left to their own resources, and thrown on their wits at once, alike for information and for argument, and so acquired a self-reliance and independence and spirit of emulation, not otherwise to be looked for, and of the very greatest value in after life. Within a few months accordingly of the arrival of the gentlemen first named, the Students' Literary and Scientific Society was brought into existence. The members seem chiefly to have devoted themselves to the reading of essays, and though there was not much on these that was original, the task of preparation imparted habits of study and of facility in English composition eminently useful. Selections from these were regularly published afterwards, and the ambition of authorship thus awakened must have acted favorably on the anxiety to acquire knowledge. The deplorable backwardness in Bombay, as compared to Bengal in this matter, is evinced by the fact that while numbers of the articles in the Calcutta Review have emanated from Native pens, not a single paper has been contributed by a native to any one of the numberless periodicals, which have, within the past twenty years, flourished in Bombay. The Students' Literary and Scientific Society seem to have done little in the way of commentary or debate, and appear not to have felt themselves competent to venture on those extempore addresses or off hand discussions which characterize the proceedings of their congeners at home. Their great achievement was the establishment of a set of girls' school in 1848, brought into existence and for a time taught by the pupils, and which has been of such service in giving a stimulus to the cause of native female education. Within a few months of the arrival of Messrs. Patton and Reid, the Rev Mr. McDougall (arrived December 1846) Messrs. Meldrum* 8th January 1847, Draper 23rd January 1847, Graham, Reid, and Baker, March and May 1848, were added to our Education Staff, which from thenceforth might be considered in a state of high efficiency.

* The fate of this gentleman has been curious. He retired from India sick in 1849—but on the ship, in which he was a passenger, touching at the Mauritius, he found a vacancy in the Royal College, to which—his health being by this time restored—he was appointed, and here he still remains.

In 1845 the Elphinstone College had been in some shape reorganized, and the Professors placed under a principal as direct controlling head. The office was most fittingly conferred on Professor Harkness, an able, accomplished, and excellent man, who, as already stated, had been selected by Mr. Elphinstone, and arrived in India along with Mr. Orlebar in 1835. Mr Harkness was absent on sick leave in England in 1848 and 1849, resuming in 1850 his duties, which he continues to discharge with unremitting energy and zeal. It has already been stated that in 1847 Sir Erskine Perry strongly recommended a very exalted style of education, and conceived, despite of all the Brahminical experience to the contrary, that "the improvement of a nation in knowledge, and at all events in morality, must always proceed from the upper classes down," and it has been added, that very shortly after this* the learned President's opinions on these points appeared to have become revolutionized. He at this time projected the institution of a law class, which he himself seems at one time to have intended to teach; and the practical view of the question was sturdily advocated soon afterwards by Mr. Willoughby, whose minute on the subject on its reaching the hands of Government is an invaluable specimen of that strong practical good sense and lucidity of argument, and composition, characteristic of the man. In 1844 Mr. Green had been sent out by the Court of Directors, and was the following year appointed teacher at Surat, where he speedily distinguished himself by his zeal, talent, and assiduity as a teacher. In 1849 he was summoned to the Presidency, temporarily to preside over the Elphinstone College, in room of Principal Harkness, then as already stated absent at home on sick leave. On his assuming his new appointment a very excellent letter published in the Telegraph & Courier of the 21st August 1848, was addressed to him by the Board,† giving a most disheartening, but, it is to be feared, too just account of the unhappy results the smattering system of instruction had produced. They described, and it is to be feared too faithfully, as one of the most conspicuous results of their endeavours, the diffusion "of a spirit of pertness and self-conceit, which amongst native youth had been deemed sufficient to make a little book learning ground for treating the ripe experience of mature years with indifference and contempt, this leading to a growing disposition among the youth of the Institution, to resort to the public press with anonymous strictures on their teachers and superiors,‡ instead of submitting their grievances to the Board."

Mr Bell, from the time of his arrival, had given a general course of popular instruction in all the leading branches of Physical Science, including of course Mechanics, Natural History, and Chemistry. From the time of his departure this had been a blank in the curriculum, until in 1847 a chemical class was established under Dr. Giraud, the able Professor of the Grant Medical College, and five years afterwards classes in Geology and Botany were instituted under the same distinguished teacher. It was in January 1849 that the Board addressed the letter to Government, already referred to, desiring the appointment of a Secretary, to whom education had been long a subject of study, who could devote the whole of this time to his duties, and who should receive compensation corresponding to the magnitude and difficulty of the work to be committed to him, tracing out indistinctly the outline of a portion of the Education Despatch of 1854. However great the ability of members of the Public Services in India may be, familiarity in them with educational matters is a thing impossible, from the early age at which they quit England, and the very imperfect nature of the instruction they have themselves received; and no greater error was perhaps ever committed, than that of restricting our highest educational appointments under the new constitution, to members of the Civil Service.

We may now pass over the intervening period, during which nothing memorable appears to have occurred betwixt the promulgation of the utilitarian views of the Board and the departure of the President for England. Sir Erskine Perry having completed the term of service on the Bench, entitling him to the pension of Chief Justice, left India for good on the 15th November 1852. Though a little erratic and irregular in his movements, and slightly inconstant in his plans and purposes, few men have ever laboured more diligently and energetically than he did throughout the whole term of his service, for the intellectual improvement of the Native community; and fortunately his merits did not go unacknowledged. On his departure, a sum amounting to close on £5,000 sterling was subscribed, to procure him a testimonial, a doubt being for a short time entertained as to what this might most fittingly be. In 1845 Sir Erskine had proposed the establishment of Zoological Gardens, and to this end a portion of the subscription was for a time proposed to be devoted; but the learned gentleman having expressed his preference for the endowment of a Law Professorship, his wishes were very properly desired to be attended to. Before the arrangements for this had been completed, however, the Education Despatch had been promulgated, and by this a Law chair was directed to be established at the charge of Government. It was under these circumstances once more suggested, that the Gardens should be fallen back upon, as certainly the most efficient mode of obtaining general enlightenment for those unable or unwilling to resort to books, Government being perfectly willing, under this arrangement, to confer the name of Perry on the Professorship about to be brought into existence. But it was too much to expect that Natives would both bestow money, trouble, and reflection—the object of their first admiration being no longer amongst them, the testimonial subscribed in his honor was made as useless and unproductive as possible. One chair was endowed, while another was in immediate prospect, and the establishment of the Gardens was left to Government or to futurity. At this period the annual educational grant for the Bombay Presidency, with a territory of 120,000 square miles, a population of eleven millions, and an expenditure of nine and a half millions, was raised to £25,000 a year, little more than half the sum required for the annual maintainance of the Bombay frigate about to be laid down for the amusement of amateur sailors,—and for this education was secured for nearly thirty thousand pupils. The following summary on the subject is taken from an excellent paper believed to be from the pen of Dr. Peet, in the third number of the Bombay Quarterly Review :—

“The English schools in the Mofussil, exclusive of the Poona College, are as follows :—

SURAT SCHOOL, established 1842.

1 English master; 9 native teachers; 365 scholars. .

RUTNAGHERY, established 1845.

1 Native master ; 45 scholars.

AHMEDABAD, est. blished 1846.

1 European master ; 1 native master ; 162 scholars.

AHMEDNUGGUR, established 1848.

1 Native master ; 63 scholars.

DHARWAR, established 1848.

1 Native master ; 47 scholars.

BROACH, establiished 1849.

1 Native master ; 65 scholars.

TANNAH, established 1851.

SATTARA, established 1852.

1 Native master ; 100 scholars.

RAJCOTE, established 1853.

1 Native master ; 55 scholars.

DHOOLIA, established 1853.

1 Native master ; 77 scholars.

Branch School at Poona.—118 scholars.

—thus making, with the Elphinstone, Poona, and Grant Colleges, 17 institutions, in which instruction in English is imparted to 2,781 pupils.

The vernacular schools, like the English, consist of those at the Presidency and those in the Mofussil.

At the Presidency there are 7,—4 Mahratta, 2 Guzerattee, and 1 Hindoostanee.—containing in the aggregate 474 boys.

The vernacular schools in the Mofussil are arranged in three divisions:—

1st division, comprising the collectorates of Poona,* Ahmednuggur, Sholapoor, and Khandeish, and the districts of Sattara; under the superintendence of Mahadeo Govind Shastri, Esq. 6,620 pupils.

2nd division, comprising the collectorates of Surat, Broach, Ahmedabad, and Kaira; under the superintendence of James Graham, Esq. 3,099 pupils.

3rd division, comprising the collectorates of Tannah, Rutnagherry, Belgaum, and Dharwar; under the superintendence of F. P. Baker, Esq. 4,351 pupils.

In the province of Kattiawar, 762 pupils.

It thus appears, that at the close of 1854 there were being educated in the Government institutions 18,087 youths, 15,306 in the vernacular languages, 2,781 in English.

Of the Missionary schools the most important are those connected with the Church of Scotland. The educational institution of the Church of Scotland in Bombay was opened by the Rev. Dr. Wilson in the year 1832. In the year 1843 it was temporarily closed, upon the secession of the Missionaries to the Free Church, but in 1845 it was re-opened, and has since continued in full operation.

The annual expense of this institution is about Rs. 8,000, raised by subscription in Bombay and Scotland, by admission fees, and by the interest upon vested funds. At the present time, the institution contains 395 scholars, who are under the tuition of a European superintendent and 15 native masters. As in the Elphinstone Institution, the scholars are arranged in a college and school department. In the former they are instructed in Theology, History, Mathematics, Natural Philosophy, Physical Geography, Chemistry, Logic, English Classics and Composition, Drawing. In the school department instruction is carried on both in English and the vernacular languages. There is, in addition to the above institution, a Mahratta preparatory school, upon the same premises, which numbers, during the greater part of the year, 90 pupils.

* In this division there are also 59 village schools in the Poorundhur districts of the Poona collectorate, containing 1,757 boys.

The Free General Assembly's Institution was originally in connection with the Church of Scotland, but was incorporated with the Free Church in 1843. The College division contains 26 pupils, who are instructed, by three European and two Native Professors, in General and Church History, Mathematics, Chemistry, Sanscrit, Theology, English Classics and Composition, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Logic, Political Economy, Vernacular Translations, Natural History, Drawing. In the school division there are 267 pupils, arranged in six classes, thus making a total of 293 pupils in the Free General Assembly's Institution. But the Free Church Mission supports vernacular schools, which, exclusive of those at Surat, contain 1,009 scholars.

There is also an English school at Poona, in connection with the Free Church, which, at the date of the last Report, contained 146 pupils. Female education has, likewise, occupied much of the attention of the Free Church Missionaries at Poona.

The Bombay or Western India Auxiliary Church Missionary Society supports a considerable number of schools. The chief of these is the "Money School," at Bombay. The highest branches of knowledge do not appear to be taught in this school, as in those conducted by the Scotch Missionaries, the object, rather, being "to afford a sound English education on such subjects as are calculated to be beneficial to such persons as usually attend this and similar institutions." Besides the English, there is a vernacular department of the "Money School." At the date of last Report, the total number of pupils was 241,—131 in the English, and 110 in the vernacular department. The school is under the management of one of the Church of England Missionaries, assisted by 2 catechists, a native assistant teacher, 1 pundit, and 9 monitors.*

The Missionaries in the Mofussil have also schools at some of their stations, as follows :—

At Nasik, 1 English school	23 pupils.
" 4 Mahratta schools.....	170 "
At Malligaum, 1 English school.....	36 "
" 1 Mahratta school.....	58 "

There is in addition a school at Kurrachee, but it does not appear to be very flourishing.

We were anxious to have obtained some information as to the schools under the management of the American Missionaries, but we have not met with success.

Of the number of private schools in Bombay, it is difficult, if not impossible, to obtain any account. An attempt was made in 1850 to ascertain the number of "vernacular schools," from which it appears that at that period there were 92 vernacular schools, including the Government and Missionary institutions. Since that period, the numbers have greatly increased.

In the year 1849, schools were opened in Bombay for the education of females, mainly through the exertions of the members of a Literary and Scientific Society, in connection with the Elphiustone Institution. From a Report read at a meeting held in April of this year, it would appear that these schools are as follows :—

4 Parsees.....	501 pupils.
8 Mahratta Hindoo.....	170 "
2 Guzerattees.....	65 "

739

There are also 6 boys' schools in connection with the Students' Literary and Scientific Society, in which there are 347 pupils.

* There are also vernacular schools, containing in the aggregate 1,147 boys, and 223 girls.

In addition, there were, in 1849, 9 private English schools, and 1 charity school, exclusive of the Missionary institutions and the Byculla schools.

The "charity school" just noticed requires more detailed notice. It originated in the desire "of the heads of the Parsee community" to commemorate the installation of their distinguished countryman, Sir Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy, into the order of Knighthood. For this purpose a sum of money was subscribed with the view of forming a fund, to be designated "The Sir Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy's Translation Fund," the interest of which was to be applied in defraying the cost of translations of European works into the Guzerattee language. This project was no sooner made known to the munificent individual we have named, than he resolved to carry out an object he had long had at heart. This was to institute a fund for the relief of the indigent of his countrymen, and the education of their children. For this purpose, Sir Jamsetjee contributed three lacks of Rupees, and 15 Shares in the Bank of Bengal; Lady Jamsetjee, 5 Shares in the Bank of Bengal; and the Parsee Panchayet, 35 Shares. The interest of this sum, amounting to Rupees 40,000 per annum, is the income of the institution. The educational department of the institution designated "The Sir Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy's Parsee Benevolent Institution," includes seminaries for the instruction of Parsee youth of both sexes in Bombay, Surat, Broach, Woodwara, and Nowsaree.

The Central or Bombay institution consists of three departments—the School, the Academy, and the College—attended by 405, 192, and 27 pupils respectively. Instruction is conveyed in both English and the vernacular languages; and in the College division, in the higher departments of knowledge. There are also in Bombay three female schools in connection with this institution, affording instruction in the aggregate to 280 girls.

In the Mofussil the branch schools number 11, and are attended in the aggregate by 621 boys and 63 girls; thus making a total of upwards of 1,600 pupils in course of education by this noble institution.

In reviewing the progress of education during the last few years, it would be wrong to pass over a very important concession on the part of Government, in having, after repeated solicitations, admitted the educational department to the benefits of the Pension Fund. By this judicious measure, opportunity has been afforded of substituting, to some extent, efficient teachers for the incompetent masters of the Mofussil vernacular schools. It is, moreover, a suitable acknowledgement of the services of the European gentlemen now serving in the department, whilst it affords an additional inducement for qualified persons to enter upon the task of education in this country. This boon was announced in the Report of the Board of Education for 1853-54. In the Report of the Board for the preceding year, we notice a very interesting account of the introduction of schools into the provinces of Kattiawar and Sattara. Within the last two years, a very useful addition has been made to the subjects taught in the Government institutions, by the introduction of the civil and criminal Regulations, village accounts, &c. "It was notorious," the Board observe in their Report for 1853-54, "that our students were either altogether excluded from public employment in the revenue and judicial departments, from the want of some knowledge on these subjects, or were compelled for a long time previously to attend public offices, for the purpose of acquiring such knowledge."

Perhaps, however, the most important circumstance in the history of education in this Presidency of late years, is the improvement which has taken place in the state of the finances. For many years, the expenditure had exceeded the current income of the year, the deficiency being made good out of a reserved fund, which had been formed from the unexpended portion of the grants of former years. This fund was, however, rapidly diminishing; and it became evident that either existing institutions must be diminished in number or efficiency, or the State must add to the educational grant. The latter course was followed, and the annual grant for educational purposes raised from Rs 1,25,000 to 1,75,000. But the latter sum does not represent the total amount spent in education in the Bombay Presidency ; there are special allowances for the Poona and Grant Medical Colleges, which raise the total to Rs. 2,50,000.'—Bombay Quarterly Review, pp. 157-161.

Nothing could be well more mean and pitiable than the manner in which those entrusted with the task of instruction, which Government pretended to have so much at heart, were until last year treated—the salaries of teachers on their arrival were not equal to those of writers when they first set foot in Bombay, the highest of them never anything like approached the pay of a Cavalry Captain, though more time might have been spent by them in preparing themselves for their difficult and important tasks than that usually intervening betwixt the arrival of an Ensign in India and his appointment to a company. They have no sick leave or furlough allowances, until 1854 no retiring pension, and no means under the pressure of sickness or suffering of getting their duties performed for them, and after twenty years of servitude in nearly the most irksome and onerous positions in which a man can be placed, might return home without a shilling of saving to fall back upon, and after their connection with their former associates had been severed, or the power of resuming the occupations they had quitted become hopeless. Pensions were at last secured for our teachers, such as from our first connection with India had been provided for all other public servants besides, and though up to the present time the Principals of our Universities, and Professors of our Colleges, have no place assigned them in the Precedence list, the period may possibly yet arrive when the privileges accorded to every Ensign, Assistant Surgeon, and Junior Chaplain, may be vouchsafed to the enlighteners of the population, who intellectually take precedence of them all. Is it wonderful that amidst circumstances such as these, and under the neglect intellectual eminence and pursuits always experience, the natives should regard our professions in favour of mental cultivation as the veriest cant and hypocrisy ? Education was one of the subjects to which the enquiries of the Committee on Indian affairs in 1853 had been specially directed, and a large mass of most important information regarding it had been obtained from Dr. Duff, still more especially from Mr. John Marshman, whose evidence forms a perfect treasury of facts, hints, and suggestions of the most invaluable description. In 1854 a formal manifesto on the subject was proposed to be prepared by the Board of Control, and the assistance of the two distinguished parties just indicated, together with that of Sir Edward Ryan, formerly Chief Justice at Calcutta, and a very indefatigable educationist, and Sir Erskine Perry, were solicited. The despatch was issued in July 1854, and promulgated in India six weeks afterwards. The preamble set forth that one of the most sacred duties of Government was the promotion of general knowledge amongst the natives, and that in our exertions in this, the character of England was involved. That which had here before been so thoroughly despised by the rulers of India, was hereafter to be honored by the most distinguished marks of public respect—to be endowed with the munificence it deserved, and have a separate division of the administration assigned to it. Boards and Councils of Education, whose inefficiency as hitherto existing, was sufficiently apparent, were to be abolished, and the tasks heretofore performed by them to be entrusted to a Minister of Public Instruction, of whom one was to be appointed at each of the three Presidencies, and one in the North West Provinces—each to have a fitting staff of subordinates placed under him. The best paid officers were to be selected by preference from the Civil Service, to shew the dignity here afterwards to be attached to that hitherto so thoroughly despised : the Governors at each of the presidencies were left to select the men they thought best qualified for the work, whether in or out of the service. On the spirit of this general profession, with even this limited amount of latitude of choice, it might have been supposed that the most distinguished of our principals or professors would have been the first to be promoted to preside over that class of operations, in which they had through life been engaged. But with laudable deference to the mildest hint from the Court, that Service was in all cases fallen back upon, the very imperfect nature of the education of which stood confessed. The order extinguishing Haileybury for utter inefficiency with which the despatch was contemporaneous, placing its pupils in charge of the education of India. It is at the same time but fair to confess that all the gentlemen selected as Directors of Public Instruction were men of unimpeachable moral character, and of more than average talent and attainments. We are not aware that any of them, or of their subordinates, unless the few connected with the colleges, could claim the honor of having appeared in print as an author, on however small a scale, or the privilege of adding a literary title to his name. In Bombay we were more than ordinarily fortunate. Mr. Erskine, the party selected, had long been acknowledged as a ripe orientalist and accomplished scholar, and he had shortly before been Secretary to Government,—one of the few offices always assigned to merit. Next under him was placed Principal Harkness, a gentleman sufficiently often mentioned in these pages, as entitled to the highest promotion. At the end will be found a list of all the office-bearers in this Department, and from this it will be seen that Civilians, six or seven years in the country, acting as Assistant Judges or Assistant Revenue Collectors, were preferred to the ablest of our Professors of ten or twenty years standing, for the superintendence of our Educational establishment. Where members of colleges were chosen they were not like their brethren released from their duties: and their salaries were made up of consolidated allowances, including their ordinary payment for their customary tasks, with a trifle extra for additional labor. The Vaccinator of Guzerat for example was released from employment, eminently compatible with the supervision of village schools, and placed on the independent salary of his new office, the Principal of the Elphinstone College was freed from none of his numerous and onerous labors, but received somewhat less than half the allowance bestowed on his brethren for the extra work hereafter to be imposed upon him: rather a singular method of endeavouring to exalt the native ideas of the respect meant to be shewn to education, the ministers of which were thus treated! So much for the supervision to be afforded at an outlay of somewhere about fifty thousand a year, or about one third of the amount expended on Education in the Presidency altogether—the supervision for all India will cost about £50,000, or about half the price of the teaching. In the system of tuition itself the chief alteration was the introduction of Universities on the English plan, a measure of dubious expediency in a country where colleges were so new and the humbler seminaries so scanty in number and so ill provided for. The Council of Education at Calcutta and Board of Education at Bombay, with some additional members to be named by Government, were to constitute the Senates of the Universities, and the offices of Chancellor and Vice Chancellor were to be filled by persons of distinguished station, who had previously taken an interest in the cause of education. Professorships of Law and Engineering were to be founded, and a much greater amount of attention given than formerly to instruction in medicine and agriculture, the preparation of teachers and of vernacular school books. The most valuable part of the despatches, that securing grants-in-aid for seminaries not under Government control, and without regard to creed, sect or denomination of religious belief. The provisions of the great educational charter have just come into operation, and it will become matter of much interest to watch the results it produces. The total sums hitherto expended in instruction altogether in India are the following, as set down in the Blue Book 1852-53.

From this it appears that the cost of Inspection throughout India amounts to Rupees 216,000, or including native agents probably about £50,000 a year, the task having been before very efficiently performed at the mere travelling charges of the inspections. The sum could have provided 5,100 native schools, at the average cost of 300 Rupees annually, affording instruction to at least 50,000 pupils, allowing no more than thirty to each school.

The History of the Grant Medical College and Mofussil schools threatens to draw so heavily upon our space, that we must defer it for another occasion.

THE NEWSPAPER PRESS OF INDIA.

THE following notice of the Newspaper Press of India, purports to be nothing more than a loose fragment. It will be found probably to contain a number of odds and ends not hitherto collected together, and may assist some one with more leisure at command to prepare that interesting desideratum, "a history of the Press of India." It is not a little singular, considering an Englishman's love for reading, that we should have been nearly two centuries in India before we had a printing press; it does not appear that such an innovation as this would ever have found its way into Asia at all, but for the European invasion. Were the natives now true to the professions of their own creed, they would resist types, steam, and railways as innovations on the sacred usages of the country. As it is, it is to their conquerors they owe not only a knowledge of their own history but the production of books in the native tongue. The first types ever used in the East were those cut by Sir Charles Wilkins with his own hand, and employed in the preparation of Halhead's Bengallee Grammar, printed at the Hooghly Press in 1773,* and the name of Halhead is one that must ever be dear to the Indian philanthropist. The early friend and associate of Sheridan, he came to Calcutta as a civilian in the time of Warren Hastings, and applied himself with such energy and success to the study of the language as to have been in six years considered the first Bengallee scholar of his time. It is not explained how a printing press should at this date have existed at Hooghly, when the first established at Calcutta made its appearance in 1780. In this matter Bombay appears to have had precedence of the Metropolis of India, and we now have before us a copy of an Almanac published for 1780, and which must have been printed the preceding year. It is neatly got up at the press of Rustom Carsejee, the Parsees having three quarters of a century ago taken the precedence in innovation which they still enjoy. The first newspaper published in India was Hickey's Calcutta Journal, which made its appearance in 1781—it seems to have been distinguished for its personalities, scurrility and abuse, commodities of rare occurrence amongst the periodicals of England, but for which Englishmen in the East appear always to have had a singular fancy. Hickey's constituents must have consisted of Company's servants exclusively, and wretched as the rubbish is which he supplied, there seems no reason to doubt but that he pandered to the tastes of the time, and that these are tolerably represented by the literature contained in his columns. The paper subsequently became such a nuisance, that it was a short time after suppressed by Government. Even at the present date we have occasional specimens of newspaper writing presented as meeting the fancy of officers and gentlemen, or other members of the Public Service, such as can be matched in no other part of the British dominions. In Bombay our first newspaper appears to have been the Guzette, which came into existence in 1789, and it was followed by the Courier, first published the following year. The first of these journals became extinguished in July 1842, the second was united with the Telegraph on the 1st of January 1847, and as they were thus for more than half a century the great organs of public opinion in Bombay, the few notices regarding them that can be picked up will probably be found of interest.

THE COURIER, 1791-1847.—The Courier seems throughout to have been the Court paper and Government organ of the time ; the Gazette, the radical or opposition print. We are not aware under what proprietary either journal was established. The former for a long period before its demise belonged to the eminent house of Remington & Co., Sir Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy, and Mr. Francis Boaden, the last named gentleman at a previous period editor of the Gazette, having been up to near the time of his demise in 1843 managing proprietor of the Courier. In 1792 this journal, having made some remarks particularly offensive to Government, was secured by having been made the exclusive vehicle of official printing and advertising, and so continued till 1822, when the Official Gazette was established. During this period it seems to have drawn about twenty thousand Rupees annually from Government, a large sum considering the limited area secured at the price, though not more in all likelihood than would have been required to provide a similar amount of notoriety through a special organ. In 1799 the censorship was introduced into India by the Marquis of Wellesley—its operations were occasionally very ludicrous. No matter, whether original or extracted, was permitted to be printed, until first read and sanctioned by the Government Secretary, then entrusted with the censorship. On one occasion the censor having gone of a Saturday to Salsette to secure a day's recreation after the fatigues of office, had carefully revised the proof-sheets before his departure, when he was summoned back next day, to recall, cancel and recast the papers which contained reports of the debates in Parliament on Indian affairs, commenting somewhat more freely than was deemed advisable on the character of the administration. The office at Bombay was for fifteen years held by Mr. Francis Warden as Chief Secretary to Government, a man of great talent and moderation, and astonishing liberality, considering the days in which he lived. His duties were to revise the proof-sheets and expunge every article which contravened the regulations—the first of these prevented the publication of General Orders or Naval intelligence, the arrival or departure of ships, this being constantly turned to account when published by the French privateers with which the seas were swarming. Mr. Warden's notions seemed much too liberal for the authorities of the time, and he was on one occasion reprimanded by the Governor General for having permitted the appointment of Lord Cornwallis to be made public.*

* The evidence of Mr. Warden on the subject is so rich that we give it entire, as follows:—

" 99. The control over the Indian Press was established by the Marquis Wellesley. 'The first regulations restrained the press from publishing any general orders or naval intelligence, and the arrival or departure of ships. It was designed to protect the commercial interest and those of the State from our enemies. The Indian seas were at this period filled with French privateers ; and it was discovered, that the shipping intelligence, inserted to gratify the curiosity of the readers of newspapers, was sent to every point where it could reach the commanders of those vessels, whom it often enabled to intercept merchantmen, and to avoid the British cruisers.' The establishment of the Censorship followed, whose duty it was to revise

The Courier, even under a censorship, and paid for good behaviour, seemed occasionally to have transgressed the rigid notions of propriety then entertained, and in December 1804 had to apologize for the publication of an article that did not quite meet the views of the Secretary. In 1811 on the demise of the Governor, Mr. Duncan, Mr. Warden on his own responsibility abjured the odious duties that had for the previous twelve years been imposed upon him, intimating to the editors that as they were aware of the Press Regulations they were as competent as the censor to decide on the best manner of observing them, and that they would from henceforth be left to their own discretion—Mr. Warden adds, that they fully redeemed the confidence reposed in them. Betwixt 1792 and 1819, six publications were specially noticed by Government as objectionable. An advertisement of the sale of a house by a Portuguese, to take place on Sunday, occasioned severe the proof sheets, and to expunge every article which contravened the regulations which were passed for the control of the press. I exercised the office for fifteen years at Bombay.

" 100. Notwithstanding that Lord Wellesley's regulations were rigidly enforced under the government of Mr. Duncan, publications were yet sanctioned by me which were pronounced objectionable. I received a reprimand from Lord Wellesley, for allowing the appointment of Lord Cornwallis, as Governor-general of India, to appear in the papers, on the plea that the knowledge of that fact might have defeated any important negotiations in which the Governor-general might at the time be engaged. After having passed the proof sheets of a newspaper on a Friday night, and repaired to the adjoining island of Salsette for a little relaxation from the fatigues of office, I have been summoned to Bombay, and directed to recall the newspapers, and to have them recast, because they contained debates in Parliament on the affairs of India, which too freely commented on some of the measures of the ruling authorities.

" 101. On the death of Mr. Duncan, in 1811, I abstained from the exercise of the duties of censor on my own responsibility. I informed the editors, that as they were as competent as myself to judge what constituted an infraction of the press regulations, I relied on their observance of them, without their submitting the proof sheets to my inspection, referring to me only such publications on the admissibility of which they might entertain any doubts. The editors fully redeemed the confidence reposed, on their observance of the regulations.

" 102. From researches which I made of the Bombay records in India, I found that from the year 1792 to 1819, in addition to the instances I have alluded to, six publications were noticed by the government as objectionable. In 1792, the Courier made some comments which were not palatable to the government. The expedient was resorted to of securing its support, by constituting it the organ of promulgating the official acts of the government. On the 21st of December 1804, an article appeared in the Courier which did not meet the approbation of the Secretary. The editor (a) apologized. An offensive publication appeared in the Gazette, and was noticed in the Minutes of Council of the 6th of September 1809. An advertisement in the Courier, by a Portuguese, announcing the sale of a house to take place on a Sunday, attracted notice. (b) The Gulcower complained of a publication in the Gazette reflecting on his avarice, which was communicated to the editor, and an apology appeared in the ensuing paper. Some remarks in the Gazette against the late Duke of York, copied from an English paper, were deemed objectionable by the Commander-in-Chief, and an apology made. No complaints were ever made of the incorrectness of law reports, by any of His Majesty's Judges, though they were constantly published. From the date, however, of the establishment of the Supreme Court at Bombay, scarcely a report of its proceedings has appeared in the journals that has not been complained of, as a misstatement to lower its character. With whatever precaution the reports have been compiled to secure accuracy, the publications have been denounced in terms the most unqualified, as gross mis-statements uttered with a base and mischievous intent.

" 103. The regulations of the Marquess of Hastings, dated the 19th of August 1818, comprehend the control established on the abolition of the Censorship at Calcutta. Those regulations were introduced into Bombay by the government of Mr. Elphinstone, on the 20th of December 1819, when the censorship was abolished at the Presidency.

remark, a thing peculiarly rich in those days when the celebrated Bobbery Hunt met every Sunday close by Government House, and its leader, Sir C. Forbes, undertook for a bet, which he won, to ride up the great stair-case at Parell and enter the drawing room on horse back. It was only in 1843 that Sir G. Arthur prevented public work from being carried on on Sunday. In these matters the Court paper, as might have been expected, was infinitely more immaculate than its radical rival the Guzette, whose misdoings will come to be noticed presently. In 1818 the regulations of the Marquis of Hastings were promulgated, and the censorship of the press abolished at Calcutta, and the following year the same arrangement was endeavoured to be made at Bombay, but the Court refused to register them or give them the force of law. In December 1820 Government intimated that it was no longer requisite for articles to be examined by a public officer previous to publication, the rule

" 104. A few weeks before the termination of the period of the suspension of the barristers at Bombay, the Recorder waited on the Governor, and mentioned the misrepresentation by the Gazette of the Court's proceedings on that occasion. They had been published four or five months before without their inaccuracy having been complained of. The Governor proposed to write a circular to the editors, to warn them that they would be held responsible for their inaccuracy; that any mis-statements tending to lower the character of the Court, or of the public functionaries, or of individuals, would be considered as an infraction of the rules prescribed for the conduct of the press, and proceeded against in such manner as the government may deem applicable to the circumstance of the case; and that all offensive remarks on the proceedings of His Majesty's Courts would be proceeded against as breaches of the 1st articles of the Rules.

" 105. The Recorder expressed his acknowledgments to the Governor for the adoption of that measure, and his regret that he had not before requested his interference (which he had now afforded so kindly) to correct or prevent former misrepresentations. The Recorder at the same time remarked, that he supposed the Court would not be required to prove what had been done in Court, but that its complaints of a mis-statement would be deemed sufficient. He was informed that the assertion of the Court would, of course, be considered as sufficient authority for its own proceedings; and that it would be inconsistent with its dignity, which it was the object of the latter to uphold, to subject it to such an investigation. Thus was another restriction imposed on the press, as far as related to the publication of law reports, of a dangerous tendency to the security of individuals, who were not apprized of the evidence on which alone their condemnation depended.

" 106. On the 3rd of September 1824, a letter was received from the chief and junior puisne Judges, proposing the enactment of a rule, ordinance and regulation to facilitate the conviction of anonymous libellers, founded on the statutes of 37th and 39th Geo. 3, explaining fully the reasons for that recommendation. The government immediately adopted the suggestion. The Advocate-General was directed to frame the enactment. It required time and consideration, and some correspondence ensued with the Supreme Court before the draft was completed. It was not therefore till the 2nd of March 1825 that it passed Council and was forwarded to that tribunal for registration.

" 107. The proprietors of the Courier, adverting, on this occasion, to the utter (c) impos-

(c) In the cause Cursejee Monackjee vs. The Company, involving the sum of about 50,000 l. the Company's solicitor was directed to make the most accurate report of the proceedings. With that view Mr. Morgan obtained the Recorder's notes of his judgment; and having framed the report, submitted it to the Recorder, who approved of it, and it was sent in to government. Some time after a gentleman at Bombay informed a member of the government that the Recorder's judgment was incorrect. He was asked, if official use might be made of his communication. He replied in the affirmative; and obtained and delivered in another revision of the Recorder's judgment, as the correct one. That important document was thus obtained through an irresponsible and unofficial channel. Mr. Morgan, on being called upon for an explanation, maintained the accuracy of his report. What chance, under such circumstances, had an editor of giving satisfaction?

to the contrary effect having been made a dead letter nine years before. In June 1822 the following general order was promulgated on the subject of officers corresponding with the press by the Government of India, as part of the new regulations, and is as liberal as need be desired. It forbids—

“ 8th.—Anonymous appeals to the public, relative to grievances of a professional or official nature, alleged to have been sustained by public officers in the service of His Majesty or of the Honorable Company.

“ The foregoing rules impose no irksome restraints on the publication and discussion of any matters of general interest, relating to European or Indian affairs, provided they are conducted with the temper and decorum, which the Government has a right to expect from those living under its protection ; neither do they preclude individuals from offering in a temperate and decorous manner through the channel of public Newspapers or other periodical works, their own views and sentiments relative to matters affecting the interests of the community.”—Regulation VIII., Press Law, 5th April. 1823.” bility of rendering a law report literally and verbally correct, and to the power of which the Supreme Court might, under the regulation, assume the exercise of summarily punishing the proprietors or editors by fine and imprisonment, for an alleged contempt in the publication of reports of its proceedings, addressed a letter to the editor, conveying the strongest injunctions on the necessity of his observing the utmost circumspection in the management of the Courier press. He was cautioned in urgent terms against the publication of any matter, whether original or otherwise, that could be considered or implied to reflect, directly or indirectly, on the Judges of any of His Majesty's Courts in India, and to abstain from publishing any report of the proceedings of the Supreme Court of Bombay which had not its special approval.

“ 108. On the confirmation of the Calcutta press regulation by the Privy Council, the Bombay Government submitted a corresponding enactment to the Supreme Court for registration. It was refused. In thus briefly detailing the general proceedings adopted by the Government at Bombay respecting the press, I feel it necessary to the explanations I afforded to the Court of Directors, in my Minute, dated the 27th May 1826, of the origin and extent of my connection with the press at Bombay, and of the period of its duration, “ 109. Although no direct charge was ever made by any of the Judges against me of encouraging publications in the press, with the view of degrading the character of the Supreme Court, complaints were yet preferred, particularly in a correspondence with government in 1826, that I did not use my influence to suppress those misrepresentations. Now, whatever that influence might have been, it was, I solemnly assert, anxiously directed to the object of enjoining, on the part of the editors, an observance of the regulation of the government for the press. The complaints of the senior and junior puisne Judges of the Supreme Court, that the reports of its proceedings were designedly rendered incorrect, with the view of degrading its character, had no foundation. No impression of the kind can be left on the mind of any individual from a perusal of any one of those reports. As, however, those individuals who so loudly complained of the abuse of the press at Bombay are no more, I have felt it necessary to adhere, as closely as possible, to the letter of your requisition, as to the general proceedings adopted by the government in India respecting the press, contenting myself by a reference to the public records for any fuller information you may require on the subject.

“ 110. The restrictions have been generally uniform at Fort William and Bombay. At Madras the censorship still exists. The preceding details will show the degree in which they have varied under different Governors. The restrictions, I understand, have been entirely removed at Calcutta, or at least they are not enforced. They have not been annulled at Bombay. In former years none were imposed.

“ 111. The power of summary deportation should be taken out of the hands of the local government for alleged offences not only of the press, but generally for all other offences. I do not consider such a power essential to the respectability to security, either of the government, of the Supreme Court, or of any of the constituted authorities. It has inflicted the most grievous wrongs on individuals. Security of persons and property should not be rendered dependent on the caprice, the weakness, or the irascibility of official dignitaries. If, in the discharge of their duties they stand in need of a power to protect them against imaginary molestation from the press, which the law or the custom of England does not recognize, they

Strange to tell for nearly twenty years the greatest enemies of the freedom of the press in India were the Judges of Her Majesty's Supreme Court, the very officials who at home have ever proved the stoutest defenders of its liberties. The Supreme Court was on the 8th May 1824 substituted at Bombay for the Recorder's Court, which had before this succeeded the Mayor's Court in 1805. Under the previous arrangement no complaint had ever been made by Her Majesty's Judges of the incorrectness of any of the Law Reports, though these had all along been given at very considerable length by the press. In the previous October five Barristers were suspended by the Recorder, Sir Edward West, from their situations, Attornies having been permitted to practise in their room. The parties in question were Messrs. Morton, Advocate General, Irvine, Parry, LeMessurier, and Clelland. They appear to have been dissatisfied with certain regula-are unfit for official situations. Their personal convenience ought not to be consulted at a sacrifice of the constitutional rights and privileges of a British community.

"112. Although the Calcutta Press Regulation was rejected by the Supreme Court, it is yet in force beyond its jurisdiction, in the territories subject to the Presidency of Bombay. No printing presses should be allowed to be established at the Presidency, or in the provinces, without a license from the government. The discretionary power, however, of recalling that license should be taken away from the government. If any regulations more arbitrary or restrictive than the laws of the realm be deemed necessary for India, which I do not yet admit they should be incorporated in a judicial enactment; and all branches of them, arising out of a false and malicious perversion of the views or motives by which any of the proceedings of the public authorities or the conduct of official functionaries are animadverted on or discussed in periodical journals, should be punished by fine or imprisonment, by the verdict of a jury, and the sentence of a court of judicature, or by the latter alone, where the former institution does not exist; but in no instance by summary punishment, either by the authority of the government or of a court of law.

"113. I am persuaded that these orders are not in any instance evaded; they are however, productive of prejudicial effects to the interests of the government in consequence of their removing men of learning, of diligence, and of caution, which invariably follow a liberal education, from the control and conduct of the press. I am satisfied that the danger to India, from what it termed the freedom of the press, is greatly exaggerated; both extremes, an unrestrained freedom and a degraded and enslaved subserviency, are prejudicial to India, and especially to the security of the character of individuals. A press controlled only by the laws is the only salutary check on governments, courts of law and other constituted authorities, in a distant colony. The impolitic restraints which have been imposed upon the Indian press have given it an importance, in the estimation of the natives, which it would not have acquired had it been left to the ordinary control of the law. Those restraints have taught them that the British power, hitherto considered irresistible, dreads, and is assailable through the medium of the press.

"114. We are told by high authority that the Brahmins and the educated classes are adepts in spreading discontent, and exciting sedition and rebellion; that they know well how to awaken the fears, to alarm the superstition, or to arouse the pride of those they address. That this dangerous species of secret war against our authority has been carried on by numerous though unseen hands; that the spirit is kept up by letters, by exaggerated reports, and by pretended prophecies, when the time appears favourable from the occurrence of misfortune to our arms, from rebellion in our provinces, or from mutiny in our troops. That circular letters and proclamations are dispersed over the country with a celerity that is incredible. Such documents are read with avidity; the English are depicted as usurpers of low caste, and as tyrants, who sought India with no view but that of degrading the inhabitants, of robbing them of their wealth, and of subverting their usages and their religion. The native soldiery are appealed to and advised to murder their European tyrants, who are few in number.

"115. Notwithstanding the malicious efforts of those native and skilful intriguers, has the stability of our empire been shaken by those mischievous spirits? So indifferent would we appear to be to the danger, and so regardless of our own security, that we have adopted the most efficacious expedients to increase the evils, by placing in the hands of the natives through the tions then introduced for the guidance of the Bar, and stated their objections in a joint memorial. This was pronounced from the Bench an irreverent arrogation of authority, the document itself being declared libellous. A report of the observations having appeared in the papers, was deemed so incorrect, that the editor of the Gazette, Mr. Fair, was deputed in consequence : the proprietors of the Courier adverting to the utter impossibility of rendering a Law Report literally and verbally correct, strongly cautioned their editor against publishing any thing in the shape of speculation or report, which could in any way be construed into a contempt of Court, and for which they or he might be punished by fine or imprisonment. The party in question was Dr. John McAdam, then Assistant Surgeon, who died here in 1843 at the head of his profession as Physician General. He was not slow in attending to the wishes of his employers, and to the extreme disgust of the distinguished parties whose wrath was desired to be deprecated, declined suffering anything whatever to appear in his columns in any way connected with the Court. All that had been desired was that nothing should be said which might be construed to their disadvantage. To carry silence further than this was to doom to utter oblivion the eloquence and wisdom of the Bench. The Press, enslaved as it was, was not yet considered sufficiently under bondage, and in September 1824 a letter was addressed by the Chief Justice and Puisne Justice Sir Edward West and Sir Charles Chambers, proposing an enactment to facilitate the conviction of anonymous libellers. The learned Judges were not, it seems, satisfied with the power they possessed of deporting the Editor, imprisoning the proprietors and printers, and putting an end to the concern, unless they could lay hands on the individual writers. The suggestion was adopted by Government, and in March 1825 the resolution of Council was forwarded to the Supreme Court for registration. One can hardly realize the fact that this occurred only five years before the discussions on the Reform Bill, nine years introduction of our lithographic presses, the means of multiplying and more widely circulating those seditious placards. By the policy we have pursued, in prohibiting to the influential portion of society, the Company's servants, an interest in its respectability, and by abstaining from conciliating the support of any public Journal, Europeans or Native, we have rendered the press, if not hostile, at least perfectly indifferent to the support of the government.

"116. If such be the mischievous efforts of our enemies, could a press, subject to no other control than that of the law, increase the evil or enhance the danger? Would not a counteracting influence, through the medium of the press, widely and successfully diffuse an antidote to a poison which is so actively disseminated? That antidote, however, will not be applied so long as the existing restraints continue, which indispose the conductors of public journals towards the government.

"117. The perusal of the speech from which those passages have been quoted the more strongly impressed me with a conviction, that the conciliation of the press was more than ever necessary to the promulgation of truth, which needs only to be fairly heard, to prove an over-match for falsehoods and misrepresentations. Let the natives have facts fully stated to them; let them have the means of weighing the arguments on both sides of a question; let one newspaper freely expatiate on the odious character of our policy and of our views; let another deny its accuracy, contrast the present and past condition of all classes of the population of India; the security to persons and property which prevails wherever the British supremacy predominates; the check it has imposed on its exercise of despotic authority by the institution of courts of law; let the vices and virtues of Englishmen be fairly canvassed, and misrepresentations corrected; security, rather than danger, will result from such public discussions. The agency of the natives is sufficient to discriminate truth from falsehood. There can be no danger of allowing them to exercise their judgment on the question, through the medium of a press controlled only by the law."—Appendix to Report from Select Committee on the affairs of the East India Company—Answer of F. Warden, Esq. April 30, 1838.—pp. 288 to 291.

afterwards the East India Company were stripped of the last of their privileges, and that in April 1835, an old Bengal Civilian, a member of a class proverbial for exclusiveness, gave to the winds every filament of the Bonds with which two English Barristers, most unworthy members of the Bench, desired to impose on it just ten years before. The tale of their disgrace is told by another member of the same service scarcely less liberal in his views than Lord Metcalfe, Mr. Francis Warden, Chief Secretary, and afterwards member of Council Bombay. On the 11th of May 1826 an order from the Court of Directors, dated the preceding December, was promulgated, strictly prohibiting any member of the Public Service from being in any way connected with the press either as proprietors or editors—a gratuitous act of folly which immediately drew after it its own punishment. Government were by this deprived of the only means they possessed of explaining or defending their own measures before the world, or securing newspaper reading for those under them from the pens of men whose position ought to be a guarantee for propriety of style and sympathy with the views and opinions of those they addressed. To the best of our recollection Dr. McAdam was succeeded as editor of the Courier, by Mr. W. Nicol also a member of the medical service, and founder of the distinguished firm that still bears his name, and from which he retired in 1836, after having realized a handsome fortune; leaving the house as a heritage from which many other fortunes have since then been drawn, and though ignorant of the date of his speculations, and unable to refer to them, we have no doubt they were marked by the good sense, good taste, and ability, characteristic of their author. After Mr. Nicol we observe Mr. Ashburner occupying the editorial chair, but are unable to fix the dates either of his nomination or retirement. We see him standing as Sheriff of Bombay in 1831. In 1839 Mr. Patrick James Mackenna, who had been employed by the Times as foreign correspondent in Spain and various parts of Europe, was appointed on the recommendation of his employers as editor of the now somewhat waning journal. He not only failed to realize the expectations naturally formed of him, but gave such extreme dissatisfaction to his employers, that he was removed from office in consequence, as it appeared, from the correspondence published at the time, of his utter incompetency. He was succeeded by Mr. White, a party who had risen from the ranks and been employed by the Native Education Society, and who though not distinguished for brilliancy was a man of sense, good taste, and information. In March 1841 the proprietors of the Bombay Courier, under the charge of Mr. White, along with those of the Times, were brought before the Supreme Court on a charge of contempt: Sir Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy the only native proprietor of the one, like Framjee Cowasjee the only one in the other, apologized, and were exempted from the ire with which the heads of their co-proprietors were visited. Mr. Cochrane, the counsel for the Times, said that he should not feel himself justified in allowing his clients to make an apology, and Mr. Dickinson, for those of the Courier, took the same view of the case. As the Times was the great offender on the occasion, to avoid tiring the reader with a twice told tale, he must be referred to the historical notice of the journal in question. The views of Sir Henry Roper were understood to be in direct opposition to those of Sir Erskine Perry, who reached the Presidency a month afterwards, and his conduct was so highly disapproved of at home, that he narrowly escaped recall. In 1843 Mr. White was followed by Mr. Crawford, our present respected

Senior Magistrate of Police, who had before this manifested his talents for popular writing while conducting the United Service Gazette. Mr. Crawford having gone to England on professional business in 1844, his editorial duties were conducted in his absence by Mr. Pole, who had come out the previous year as professor of Engineering to the Elphinstone College. The learned gentleman was a man of science and of letters, but not a successful political writer—he was too new to the country to be familiar with its government or affairs, and when Mr. Crawford returned to his duties in February 1846, he found his subscription list so diminished that the journal could scarcely hope to be restored even to the position in which Mr. Mackenna had left it, without an amount of time being bestowed on it seriously interfering with his practice at the Bar, and though occasionally assisted by one of the most brilliant writers at the Presidency, it became matter of consideration whether it would not be expedient to sever his connection with the press. In July 1846 the Telegraph, a bi-weekly newspaper, was brought into existence by Mr. Jameson, now of the London and Eastern Bank, and who for three years preceding had been business manager in the Bombay Times office. It was conducted by Mr. T. A. Scott Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who had in 1841 and again in 1845 been in temporary charge of the journal already named, and for years the conductor of the mercantile department of its columns. In the end of the year this gentleman purchased up the Telegraph from Mr. Jameson, and the Courier from its proprietors, and the 1st of January 1847 the two appeared in their united form as a daily newspaper.

As the elder paper of the two, though only by a twelve month, the Gazette should have had the precedence we have given to the Courier in this historical notice, but that the latter paper occupies so much more conspicuous a place in the official record from which alone we derive the first portion of our information: what has been stated will afford a key to the general condition of the Press in the earlier periods of its career.

BOMBAY GAZETTE—As already stated, the Bombay Gazette was first published in 1739. We are not aware of the circumstances under which it came into existence. Our Presidency libraries are not possessed of any but very recent files either of our Newspapers or Almanacs;—a very excellent collection of the former of these exists at Surat—to this unhappily we have not the power of referring. Within the next two years almanacs appear to have been issued both at the Gazette and Courier office. We have seen files from this date downwards, but are not aware whether these were carried on continuously from the time of that issued in 1730 or not. It is somewhat marvellous indeed that Bombay should have been ten years in possession of a printing press before a newspaper came into existence. At Calcutta the one followed the other at the interval of a couple of years. In 1809 we find the Gazette in trouble in consequence of having made some observations on the avarice of the Gaekwar, the editor required to apologize for observations which from the character of the party spoken of, we should presume to have been perfectly well deserved; and a short time afterwards the same journal again fell under the displeasure of the authorities for having transferred from an English paper some remarks on the conduct of the Duke of York, which the Commander-in-Chief of the time, General Abercrombie we presume, deemed objectionable. The great battle of the Gazette occurred in 1824; it has already been slightly adverted to in our notice of the Courier. The suspension of the five Barristers by Sir Edward West seems to have been a proceeding so arbitrary and tyrannical, that the Recorder, with the Chief Justiceship then in immediate prospect, was probably ashamed of whi he had done, and conscious that his proceedings would not bear handling. The mode he took to rid himself of the discussion was about as unwise as could be imagined. The reports on the occasion (October 1823) had at the time of their publication passed unchallenged, when in the beginning of March, five months afterwards, the Recorder waited on the Governor to complain of their inaccuracy. Mr. Elphinstone proposed that a circular should be sent to the editors, intimating that any misstatements tending to lower the character of the Court or injure that of public functionaries or individuals would be proceeded against by Government, and that disagreeable observations on Her Majesty's Judges would be dealt with as infractions of the Press Regulations,—sweeping enough certainly—the cope stone was put upon it when Sir Edward claimed and had accorded to him the privilege of giving his own version of the case, without the necessity of investigation.* In a case of Cursetjee Manockjee vs. the Company about this time tried, Mr. Morgan, the Company's Solicitor, was desired to make the most accurate report he could of the proceedings. He obtained the Judge's notes, and having submitted them to his revision, it was pronounced to be correct, and so sent in to Government. This afterwards was declared to be inaccurate, and a second revised judgment obtained totally at variance with the first. Under such circumstances it became absolutely impossible to evade the lash of the law whenever it was proposed to be applied. The battle of the Barristers, which had begun in the Recorder's Court, had, as might naturally have been supposed, been transferred to the Supreme Court, the same party presiding over both, and the Chief Justice unfortunately seems to have imbued the Puisne Judge, Sir William Chambers, with his views. In July 1824 Mr. Alexander Shaw, of the Civil Service, was brought up by the Sheriff for contempt of Court, he having been alleged by the Chobdar to have struck that distinguished functionary for refusing to hand him pen and ink. Mr. Shaw denied the whole of the charge, and he was admitted to bail until the investigation should be proceeded with. The Advocate General had presented himself as defender of Mr. Shaw, Mr. Parry another of the refractory Barristers offered to become bail for him. It appears to have been the custom in those days in Bombay, as it is up to the present time in England, that the law reports should be prepared by gentlemen practising in Court. At this juncture the bench and bar were at such deadly feud, that whatever emanated from the one was certain to give offence to the other. The report of the proceedings which appeared in the Gazette was immediately found fault with by the Court; and in the end of August Mr. Fair was ordered to prepare for his immediate departure. The editor disclaimed all intention of misrepresentation, and expressed his conviction that the report was as faithful as it could be made without the assistance of a short-hand writer, and offered to produce the testimony of several gentlemen in the Court as to its accuracy. He at the same time exhibited a note from the Chief Justice intimating his wish that the Court's proceedings should be published as fully as possible. It was quite obvious by his own shewing that the Judge was in the wrong, and the newspaper in the right—but this availed nothing. On the 29th of August Mr. Fair was ordered to quit the Presidency instantly, and informed that he would only be permitted to remain till the end of November on condition of his obtaining securities to the extent of 30,000 Rupees for his embarkation by that time. Failing in this he was put on board the H. C. Ship London, then under dispatch for Calcutta on her way to China, and by this six months' detour was he left to find his way home as he best could. In commenting on the matter the writer in the Asiatic Journal the uniform Advocate of Leadenhall Street says, "that the Bombay paper in which the offensive publications appeared is not an adventurer's speculation, calculated to provoke the jealousy of any person; but has long been, we are told, the property of an individual belonging to the Government; the complaining party, Sir Edward West, is said to be obnoxious to him, and the moderation of the offender (Mr. Fair) would have afforded a plea for extending mercy had the Government been desirous of disappointing the Judges." The party in question was none other than Mr. Francis Warden, who denies the imputation in toto, and whose liberality of sentiment seems to have offended a pair of tyrants as arrogant as ever disgraced the Bench.* No complaints had ever before been made until the time of Sir Edward West of the incorrect reporting of any of the newspapers, and the assertions of the Judges that they were on these occasions designedly inaccurate, are pronounced by Mr. Warden to have been without foundation. The Court, while thus in 1824 prosecuting the press, to secure the power of persecuting journalists to the most unlimited extent, were equally ready in 1828 to make use of it as a tool when it served their purposes. Nothing could have been more miserable than the abuse heaped on Government by Sir John Peter Grant from the Bench, knowing that it would appear immediately in print by his sanction and under his influence,—while the simple republication of a parliamentary report, not one ten-thousandth part so injurious, might have occasioned the deportation of the publisher. On the confirmation of the Calcutta Press Regulations in 1825 by the Privy Council, it was refused registration by the Supreme Court, and a special law was introduced on purpose in conformity with the wishes of the Judges. We know little of the history of the Bombay Gazette for the next six years. Soon after Mr. Fair's retirement the paper came into the charge of Capt. Morris, editor of our first Sporting Magazine, author of some of the very best hunting songs we possess, and one of the most witty and brilliant writers of his time. At this date the two journals appear to have exchanged the places they usually held in relation to Government. On the retirement of Sir John Malcolm in November 1830, the Courier, long considered the Court journal, in reference to the retiring Governor said "that whether it arose from the tyrannous way in which invidious duties were performed, or the frequent absence of that courtesy the community had been accustomed to experience at the hands of their Governors or the undignified practices which latterly characterized a recent political collision—Sir John Malcolm is at this moment the most unpopular man who ever exercised authority in India." The Gazette again loaded him with eulogy and spoke of the "importance of his presence in England to share in the discussions of the Charter then impending, where it was expected that he would be the champion of the liberty of the Press, and stand up for the pure administration of Justice, and free resort of Europeans to India"—a hope not destined to be realized; Malcolm died in May 1833 before the Charter discussions had commenced in Parliament.† In 1831 we find Mr. Francis Boaden its editor. In May 1832 a letter signed JUSTINIAN was published in it, complaining of the injustice done the Queen's troops, by the rates of exchange at which their pay was remitted, and so dangerous was this considered to the interests of discipline that the editor was threatened with instant deportation. The writer meanwhile came manfully forward and proclaimed himself to be Private Hugh Joseph O'Donnell of the Queen's Royals, who was tried by Court Martial and visited with corporal punishment and six months' imprisonment. The complaint, which was not expressed disrespectfully, was soon afterwards found to be so perfectly well grounded, that the redress required was obtained. The name of the writer having been given up, Government declined proceeding further against the editor, but intimated that should any thing offensive again appear in his paper, he himself, and not his correspondent, would be visited with punishment. Mr. Boaden was about this date succeeded by Mr. Murphy, and for a time the Gazette appears to have been kept in perpetual hot water. At this period the Bombay Literary Society, since then transformed into a branch of the Royal Asiatic Society of London, was the favourite place of resort for the exclusives of the Presidency. Members were admitted, more in regard to their place in Society, than their literary tastes or pursuits; no native had up to this date found admission within its room, when in 1834 Manockjee Cursetjee, the present acting Second Judge in the Small Cause Court, desired to become a member and was rejected. The incident drew forth some indignant remarks from Mr. Murphy, which were replied to by Colonel Vans Kennedy, then Secretary to the Society, in a series of letters subscribed OBSERVATOR, a portion of which appeared in the Bombay Courier, the others in the Gazette. The expressions contained in the last of these were so offensive, that Mr. Murphy sent the gallant Colonel and learned Secretary a challenge, which was declined on the score that he refused to fight with a man who had a few years before been a private soldier, and who could not be acknowledged as entitled to the privileges of a gentleman. Upon this, Mr. Murphy placarded his adversary as a coward and a slanderer, and was prosecuted by him in the Supreme Court, where he was sentenced to a payment of five hundred rupees, and compelled to give security to keep the peace. The following year we find the editor again in trouble, having incautiously promulgated a report, imputing great cruelties towards a servant by a Mr. and Mrs. Baber, and he was a second time cast in damages. Mr. Murphy was succeeded by Mr. Macdonald, and he was in June 1837 criminally proceeded by the Commander-in-Chief Sir John Keane for a letter subscribed MILES in reference to some Court Martial proceedings. It was understood to have been written by General Vans Kennedy the distinguished Orientalist, and long Judge Advocate General of the Bombay Army. The jury brought in a verdict of not guilty. In the end of the year Mr. McAllum was appointed editor—in 1838 on the retirement of Sir Charles Malcolm from the head of the Indian Navy some severe strictures were about to have appeared against him in the paper, before publication a proof was shewn, and a portion of it was subsequently published with several alterations and corrections, but still containing matter of a very libellous character. The editor was sentenced to a fine of a thousand rupees and three months' imprisonment, the Chief Justice Sir John Awdry remarking with a severity on the culprit in a manner greatly disproportioned to the offence. Shortly after this Mr. McAllum got himself into trouble with Capt. Simson, store-keeper of the Indian Navy, on whom he called, threatening to inflict on him corporal punishment, and the consequences of this were only escaped by a full and abject apology—he died at the end of 1839, a date peculiarly fatal to Bombay editors. Within nine months Mr.

Rousseau Sub-Editor of the Courier, Dr. Brennan of the Times, and Mr. McAllum of the Gazette, were all carried off by cholera, combined in the case of the second named with an apoplectic attack. In 1840 the Gazette was purchased by Dr. Fogerty, and was for a time under the management of Capt. Crockett of the Invalids, and a new issue of the Bombay Sporting Magazine was for a short time published at the establishment. Captain Crockett died of fever in June 1841. The Gazette from this time was under the hands of a number of different parties. Mr. Bartley Wynyard, an officer shortly before dismissed from H. M. 17th, in connection with the theft of a ring, Mr. Mackenna already mentioned as having come out to conduct the Courier in 1839, and others whose names we have forgotten. It for a short period became a daily paper, and after various adventures and a steadily descending path, was in July 1842 given up after a varied existence of nearly half a century. Its fall was not regretted, and the latter days of its existence were distinguished by alternations of imbecility and blackguardism, such as no paper could long survive. The Gazette of the present day has no connection whatever save in name with that which thirteen years ago disappeared from the scene.

THE BOMBAY TIMES.—Having completed the histories of the Bombay Gazette and Courier, the earliest of our papers, the representatives of which both in some shape still exist,—we must now take up the third remaining daily, whose commencement ushered in a new era in Bombay journalism. Until the liberation of the Press by Sir Charles Metcalfe in 1835, the journals of India were mainly the organs of local intelligence, in a great measure precluded by the existing regulations from Political discussion. Until the passing of the Charter Act, which annihilated the East India Company's privileges as a trading corporation the preceding year, the number of Europeans in India, not belonging to the Services, was comparatively insignificant, so that it naturally befel that nearly the whole public questions deemed worthy of editorial comment were military. The two great events just named produced a revolution in this state of matters. The mercantile and banking interests of Bombay were no longer to be monopolized by three great "old houses"—Forbes & Co., Bruce, Fawcett & Co. (now Remington & Co.), and Leckie & Co. These, though long distinguished by large and highly honorable dealings, had so often realized such princely fortunes, that others naturally looked forward to some share in the good things they had so long almost exclusively enjoyed. With new houses new interests and new views came into existence. Lord Clare finding the trammels imposed by the Charter Act of 1833 on the local Governments too irksome to be borne, in 1835 threw up his appointment. His successor, Sir Robert Grant, from the time of his arrival to that of his demise, was most anxious to foster the spirit of free trade and unrestricted private enterprise just brought into existence. The merchants individually having applied to him on various points, on which it appeared to them that the commerce of the port might be benefitted by the assistance of Government, the Governor stated, that while fully concurring in these views, he felt most anxious that there should be some recognised official channel of communication betwixt them, not as individuals, but as a body; and in 1836 accordingly the Chamber of Commerce* was brought into existence. From what has been already stated, it will appear that from its long official connection with Government and from its mainly being the property of one of the old houses,* the Courier was not likely to prove itself a perfectly independant organ of a free trade, and somewhat radical body of gentlemen: the Gazette from other causes, as well as from the numerous scrapes and indecorums in which it had been about this time involved, was still less fitted for the end in view, and it was resolved accordingly that a newspaper to be called "THE BOMBAY TIMES AND JOURNAL OF COMMERCE" should be brought into existence.† The first editor was Dr. Brennan, a gentleman who had before this acquired considerable celebrity as a lecturer on medical science in Dublin, but being desirous of a warm climate for the benefit of his health. He arrived in Bombay in July 1838, and was immediately appointed Secretary to the Chamber of Commerce, but he wisely deferred the commencement of his editorial labours until time had allowed him to master the more prominent of the subjects to be discussed. The rupture with China and war in Afghanistan were then impending—both questions of the utmost importance, and both surrounded with difficulties. The establishment of the Bombay Bank formed the great local topic with which the proprietors of the new journal were chiefly interested. The Supreme Government were obstinate and full of crochets on the subject of Joint Stock Banks: three years correspondence had occurred before it was suffered to be opened, and the great event ultimately occurred on the 16th of April 1840. To this it was understood the new journal would es-by Government. With one or two exceptions, all the Secretaries of the Chamber appear to have been connected with the Press, four out of the six editors belonging to the Gazette; Mr. Murphy was the first, he was succeeded for a time by Mr. McAllum, Mr. McAllum was succeeded by Dr. Brennan of the Times, on whose death in 1839 Mr. Murphy assumed office. He was followed by Mr. Scott, afterwards editor of the Telegraph and Courier, who was shortly afterwards followed by Mr. Connon, who continues Secretary to the present date, Mr. Mawson acting in his absence. The salary was originally 300 Rupees a month, and furnished a convenient addition to that of an editor for work not interfering with his duties.

* We use the term "old houses" without meaning the slightest disrespect to the distinguished establishments familiarly known by this name sixteen years ago. They acted exactly as the most upright men would have done placed in similar circumstances. They had grown great, rich, and powerful under the previous state of things, and had very naturally no wish to see them changed. It has never been alleged against them that they took any undue advantage of their position. When we speak of the enormous emoluments of the services; it might be as well to remember how frequently men belonging to the best paid of these have quitted them for mercantile employment. Mr. Malcolmson had reached the rank of Surgeon in the Madras army and been Secretary to the Medical Board when he resigned the Service, and joined the house of Forbes & Co. in 1840. Mr. Charles Forbes resigned the Bombay Civil Service to become at the same date a member of the distinguished firm, and these two, along with Mr. John Bowman, were the first three partners of the Bombay house, from the time of the return of the Baronet himself to London. Mr. James Henry Crawford, member of Council Bombay till 1847, had long been a member of the house of Remington & Co., after quitting and before rejoining the Civil Service. Mr. Fawcett, of the same house, was Captain in our Cavalry, before he became a merchant. Mr. James Hunter, now amongst us, was Captain in the Rifles before he became a member of the firm of Ewart, Latham & Co.

pecially direct attention. The Commercial and Military departments were under separate management—the former being in charge of one of the most talented members of the mercantile community. The style and tone of Dr. Brennan's writings seemed to have been altogether new in Bombay, and drew forth the warmest commendations from contemporaries at a distance. His career, so promising and prosperous, was short—he died of paralytic cholera in 1839, deeply and universally regretted. During the interregnum the paper was conducted successively by Mr. Murphy, Mr. Henderson and Dr. Knight, and though of course its management was unequal in quality, its circulation was progressive. At this time the proprietors resolved to procure a printer from home, and to endeavour to train apprentices from the Byculla school as compositors. At the outset both divisions of the experiment partially failed, but it was renewed by bringing out compositors and a pressman in 1842, when in a few years the whole system of typography became revolutionized. On the death of Dr. Brennan, Mr. Brownrigg and Mr. C. Skinner, both then at home, were instructed to advertise for and select an editor, and their choice fell upon Mr. G. Buist, who had from 1832 been conductor of the Dundee Constitutional, the Dundee Guardian, the Perth Constitutional, and Fife-shire Journal in succession, and who had just before his appointment obtained the Fifty Guinea prize of the Highland Society for a Geological survey of a portion of Perthshire. He took charge of the paper in May 1840, and has continued to conduct it ever since, with the exception of two intervals when absent in Europe—from May 1845 to January 1846, when Mr. Scott was locum tenens, and from June 1853 to August 1854, when the editorial management was in a variety of hands. In September 1840 the publication of an Overland Summary was commenced, and this within the next two years had attained a circulation of close on three thousand copies. Dr. Brennan had at the time of his demise been appointed correspondent for the Morning Chronicle, an office which fell successively into the hands of Messrs Murphy, Scott, Jamieson, and Meason. Mr. Buist became correspondent of the Herald, and the correspondent of the Post was the editor of the "Journal of Commerce." The Times correspondence originally conducted by Mr. Mackenna, was afterwards held by Mr. Hunter, sent out on purpose in 1847, subsequently by Mr. Conybeare. Though pretty fully acquainted with nearly all the arrangements of the London papers, a great part of which had been at one time or another in our hands, we are not authorized to reveal more than what has already appeared in print.

We now come to a case in the annals of journalism so closely connected with the fortune of the Press, as to deserve a larger space than that to which it might be entitled if regarded as forming no more than a fragment of the history of a local newspaper. In December 1840, an event eminently worthy of notice, both as regards the history of the Press and the principle of prematurely publishing official documents occurred. The repulse sustained in the Nufoosk Pass, on the 31st August 1840, by the Detachment under Major Clibborn, sent to the relief of the Murree Fort at Kahun, in which Captain Brown was then beleagured, was directed by the Governor General to be enquired into by a Commission, in compliance with the request of Major Clibborn himself. General Brooks, commanding the Field Force in Sind, was requested to nominate the constituents of the Court, over which he himself was to preside. Colonel, afterwards Major General Sir Thomas, Valliant of H. M.'s 40th, Col. Wymer of the 30th Bengal N. I., Major Farrell 6th Bombay N. I., and Major Loyd Bombay artillery, were the parties named. They seem at once to have fallen into the hands of Mr. Ross Bell,

Political Agent in Sind, a man of talent but of great vindictiveness, who bore a special grudge to Clibborn. Nothing could be more miserable than the manner in which their duties were discharged, and the conclusions arrived at were wholly unsupported by the facts. Their report, which was dated 20th November, was published in the Bombay Courier on the 19th of December, the Post occupying at this time fifteen days from Sukkur, where the Commission sat, to Bombay—the document for publication appeared to have been sent by one of the Commissioners to his wife then at Poona, and was, as intended, forwarded by the lady to Bombay. The Government copy seems to have been delayed on purpose, and reached the Presidency the same morning the other appeared in print. The extreme irregularity of the proceeding became immediate subject of comment, but this was a trifling matter compared with the intrinsic demerits of the document itself. The discussions regarding it were renewed from time to time, on the publication of the orders of Government censuring the proceedings and directing the removal of General Brooks and Colonel Valliant from their command, and the appearance the following May of the letter from the Court of Directors warmly commending the conduct of the Bombay Government and condemning that of the Commissioner.* By one of those odd coincidences of such frequent occurrence in editorial life, the sentiments expressed by the authorities both in India and in England, were so perfectly identical with those contained in the Bombay Times, that the paper was loudly denounced by its contemporaries as the organ of Government. The charge was not only without the shadow of a shade of foundation—it was capable of being proved such by a comparison of dates. Not only was the excitement at the time very great, but of singularly protracted duration, and it had scarcely well gone to sleep, when the great contempt case shortly about to be referred to, agitated the Press. To have three newspapers without partisanship, is in India out of the question, and though the two cases in view seem as one-sided as can be conceived, and were speedily regarded with almost perfect unanimity, the opinions now universal were at the time violently denounced. In October 1840, the representatives of the house of Forbes & Co. presented to the Supreme Court on the ecclesiastical side,—then presided over by Sir John Awdry, Sir Henry Roper being Puisne Judge,—a petition praying that citations might be issued to the nearest of kin and creditors of the late Dr. David Forbes, to show cause why letters of administration to the estate, of the deceased, should not be granted to that house. Evidence being heard the case was postponed for three weeks, when it being brought before the Court, it was desired to stand over. On the 3rd, and again on the 9th day of December, it was once more brought forward, with similar results, when on the 21st day of December the petition of Mr. Charles Forbes, as representing the house, was ordered to be sworn in to the trust—letters of administration to be thereafter issued. On this occasion Sir Henry Roper read aloud in Chambers a series of very bitter remarks on the manner in which the original affidavit had been drawn up. He stated that his conviction was, that the copy of the will of Dr. Forbes accompanying the papers, had been obtained improperly and by malpractice through the intention or connivance of the officers of the Court. He spoke of the affidavit being written in a Babylonish dialect, because of its containing the words “en route to Candahar.” The whole of the remarks were so offensive that Mr. Forbes and his partners petitioned to have them taken off the file. This was the signal for a fresh tirade infinitely more offensive than the first. On the 12th February 1841 Sir Henry Roper commenced his address by the most extraordinary admission that "an impartial or soothing judgment on this subject can hardly be expected from me; but as my opinion regarding it is already formed, and is I believe unalterable, and I shall not concur in any opinion of the Chief Justice that he can be entitled to order a petition on which I have endorsed my reasons for refusing the application to be taken off the file." In this strain he went on for nearly an hour. Subsequent to his former attack, Mr. Charles Forbes, one of the most high spirited and honorable, and at the same time one of the mildest of men, had turned his back upon him at a private party, and the Puisne Judge made the following extraordinary allusion to it from the Bench:—"Mr. Forbes has indulged in personal disrespect towards me upon the occasion. I am aware that such conduct should excite in me no stronger feelings than such as it is unnecessary to mention here, and could I have well avoided further notice of the case, I would have done so, lest in observing on the circumstances I should be betrayed into stronger feelings than the affair is worthy of." He described the petition as a personal attack upon himself, talked of the alleged copy of the alleged copy of the alleged will, and altogether made as indecent an exhibition as could have been conceived. He characterized the first four lines of the petition which described Dr. Forbes as having died en route to Candhar as "a jargon of bad English and French, which Mr. Forbes adopted, and swore to the jargon accordingly." "The petition stated matter of law and matter of fact, and matters of law and fact combined, to all of which Mr. Forbes roundly swore," "a proper sense of the obligation of an oath should have induced Mr. Forbes to make more accurate distinctions," "to refrain from swearing loosely and in the lump to points of law on matters beyond his comprehension." Not content with abusing the parties present, Sir Henry must have a fling at the head of the house, Sir Charles Forbes. The Baronet, along with many Bombay gentlemen then in London, had twelve months before this subscribed a statement opposed to the assertion of the Bishop of London, that the Natives of India were inferior to those of England in their respect for truth. Quoting this, Sir Henry said "that he agreed with the Bishop, and that possibly those who were opposed to that dignitary, might consider the proceedings of Forbes & Co. on the present occasion perfectly correct." Nothing could be more uncalled for than the allusion at all—nothing more studiously offensive than the manner in which it was made. The Chief Justice, Sir John Awdry, concurred in the legal view of the question, that however objectionable the remarks might be, for this he seemed at once to admit, it would be inexpedient to remove the indorsation containing them, or any other document, from the files of the Court. That Sir Henry Roper felt himself to be entirely in the wrong, was virtually admitted by him in his remarks at the close of the Session, when he attributed his determination to deal with the proprietors of both papers for contempt. On this occasion he said "I feel great allowances should be made for Mr. Forbes, and beyond having made an affidavit in an apparently careless manner, I impute nothing whatever to him." Where the Judge himself, generally obstinate enough in error, afterwards confesses his faults, it was not surely to be wondered at that the newspapers of the day, even had they been less closely connected with the mercantile community than they were, I should have taken up the subject, and that the manner in which they did so was sufficiently mild will be seen from the following extracts, which formed the grounds of further proceedings :—

* Dr. Buist's Outline of Operations in Sind and Afghanistan, and the newspapers of the day.

“ We have no intention of at present entering on the merits of the question discussed ; but we must beg to call the very particular attention of our readers to the language made use of by the Judge in discussing it ; language which may be quite consistent with the practice of Colonial Judicature, as indeed Bombay itself could in this way furnish very strange precedents, but from an approach to which we feel assured any Court of respectability within the Empire would shrink. We are not aware of the amount of liberty of speech permitted to a judge by reason of his character and position, in reference to matters not judicially before him, but should think from what is stated in the report, that it must be viewed by our prospective Chief Justice as tolerably extensive. Whatever that may be, however, for which precedent furnishes example, or position permits impunity, it does appear to us that the dignity and respectability of our Courts would be better consulted were terms unbefitting the lips of private gentlemen carefully abstained from by our judges when acting officially, and that the custom, if such an one there be, would be more honored in the breach than the observance, which permits the person who occupies the bench to make use of expressions in reference to parties not before him, which he knows he dare not, as a private individual, employ in a society of gentlemen.”

The case was brought before the Court on the 27th March, when Sir Henry Roper, by this time the only Judge, presided, Sir John Awdry having gone home a month before. Mr. Cochrane and Mr. Dickinson appeared for the proprietors, and though they were pronounced guilty of contempt of Court, they were dismissed without further punishment. As already stated the original offence had been committed on the 3rd of March, and it was doubtless aggravated in the eyes of the Chief Justice by the fact that he had on that occasion sent home to his friends a considerable supply of the Overland Summaries, as containing the report of his judgment on the petition without being aware of its having been accompanied by any observations. On the evening of the day referred to, the editor of the Times had met Mr. Robertson, clerk to the Chief Justice, at a large christening party. This occurred at the house of Mr. Wright, one of the proprietors of the paper, and the events of the morning formed of course topic of discussion. The matter was reported to the Chief Justice, who made it subject of comment on the Bench. On the 20th the singular course adopted of summoning the proprietors in place of the editors or printers*

* “ We have taken from the Bombay Gazette a very full report of the proceedings of the Supreme Court on Thursday last. Implicated as we are in the proceedings there narrated, we feel it more respectful towards the Court, and more becoming in every way to withhold remarks for the present ; and to abstain from commenting altogether until the proceedings now pending be brought to a close.—It may seem at present a little strange to the public that the learned Judge should depart from the usual course of holding the Printer liable, and should search and rummage out from private sources of information, the names of the individual proprietors of which there is not necessarily any public official record, with a view of summoning them to appear personally before him. It may strike our readers also, as singular that both in the Times and of the Courier a selection should be made, the Native proprietors being exempted on the grounds of their assumed ignorance of English law leading them to sanction the publication of a paragraph alleged to be illegal. Sir Henry Roper appeared to us to put the position quite soundly, that proprietors were in the abstract responsible for what appeared in the newspaper ; and very good reason too why they would be so, because if they pocket the profits of the exertions of an editor, it is right they should take the risk of his supposed indiscretions. It does at first sight look as if there had been grounds given to suppose that by the assumption of the innocence of Messrs Howard and Montrou, and of Framjee was commented on, and after the discussion on the 27th, Mr. Cochrane, Counsel for the Times, made the remark that he would not advise his clients to apologise. This was taken up afresh as new matter, and a second case of contempt made out of it, when the proprietors were again made to appear and get a second scolding on the 3rd April, being a second time dismissed with a lecture on good behaviour. At the outset of the whole affair the proprietors readily made affidavit that after having selected the best possible editor they could get, they exercised no control whatever over him, that they were entirely ignorant of the contents of the paper until after its publication, and could therefore be in no way morally parties to the contempt. We recollect of the occurrence of no case in which the public opinion was so strongly expressed and was so perfectly unanimous against the Judge. The home authorities were so greatly offended with him, that a severe reproof was returned to him almost immediately, and a formal letter of apology written to Sir Charles Forbes for the indignity offered to his house. Sir Henry Roper himself was proposed to be recalled, and so far had matters gone, that Mr. D. Pollock, who became our respected Chief Justice in 1847, was, on the recommendation of Lord Brougham, nominated as his successor. Sir Henry however had interest enough to get the resolution cancelled, and he was suffered to serve out his term of office, and keep himself and the Supreme Court in hot water till he retired from what he termed the "Press ridden" Presidency in 1846.* The letters patent under which the Supreme Court Cowanjee and Jamsjee Jeejeebhoy, Esqrs., that the Judge took it for granted that the remaining proprietors were more than usually guilty. We merely put these points as likely to give rise to difficulty in the public mind, though it would be wrong to doubt that the learned Judge will make the entire mystery clear and transparent this day week. When we are enabled to place the whole matter before our readers it will be time enough to adventure on a few speculations which may at present seem premature."—Bombay Times, March 20th, 1841.

We give the above to show the manifest spite and partiality with which the merchant proprietors only were selected. In 1854 in the case of Connon vs. Craig, Sir William Yardley went to the other extreme of holding proprietors altogether exempt from responsibility.

* There are few things more amusing occasionally than the experience of an old editor. The substance of the statement made above, appeared in the Bombay Times of the 15th June, 1842; our information was taken from the letter to Sir Charles Forbes, and the statements furnished by the Haronet himself to the Bombay partners—it was afterwards fully confirmed by Sir David Pollock himself on his arrival in Bombay. Mr. Mackenna, who had some time before this been dismissed from the Courier, and become connected with the Gazette, and who had now become the champion of Sir Henry Roper, gave the statement a flat contradiction, knowing, we presume, nothing whatever about the matter. A journalist in India is seldom authorised to publish at the time the names of his authorities, and must submit it occasionally to contradiction. They may be given with perfect propriety at the interval of ten or a dozen years. The case of Sir Henry Roper is one of a hundred or so where the information derived from the fountain head has been met by flat denials by those who knew nothing about the matter. The richest of these we remember of were in the statements directly from Sir Alexander Burnes, Col. Dennie, Major Broadfoot, Sir Jasper Nicholls Commander-in-Chief, with some score of others at the head of authority, the bulk of which received the lie direct at the time, but have all been since fully confirmed and published on the highest official authority. Sir Henry Willock and Mr. St. John Tucker might have been supposed to have plagiarised wholesale from the Bombay Times, or the Bombay Times from them, had the thing not been shown impossible by the dates. The excessive intemperateness of Sir Henry Roper was fully shown in his quarrel with the Advocate General, Mr. Le Mesurier, in 1845, and is strongly commented on by his colleague Sir Erskine Perry in the Blue Books containing the Reports of the Law Commissioners, published in 1847. Sir Erskine writing under date 21st January 1845 says, that Sir Henry had imputed to him "highly colored views and incorrect statements in my official minutes to the Government of matters connected with the Su-was established in 1824, provided for a Chief Justice and two Puisne Judges for Bombay, and at the outset Sir Edward West, Sir William Chambers, and Sir Ralph Rice sat together from October 1824 to November 1827, when the second Puisne Judge returned to England sick; he was succeeded in February 1828 by Sir J. P. Grant, and West and Chambers having died in August and October 1828, Sir John Grant became Chief Justice, and so continued till September 1830, when he resigned. Sir James Dewar had been placed over his head in September 1829—he died in November the following year. Sir William Seymour, one of the “tame elephants,” sent out to keep Sir J. Grant in order, was only two months Puisne Judge, he was sworn in September and died in December—and from this date we have never had more than two Judges on the Bench: there having been six occasions on which we have had only one, two on which the Court has been for some time shut—Sir John Awdry having left on the 2nd of March, Sir Erskine Perry was not expected until the middle of April, and arrived on the 10th of that month, and the conduct of the Chief Justice had, while sole Judge, been so stupendously outrageous, that a petition to the Queen in Council was sent home on the 3rd of April, stating that the subscribers had lost all confidence in the administration of justice in the Supreme Court, and praying that a third Judge might be appointed—the Chief Justice with only one other Judge on the Bench with him being in cases of difference of opinion absolute, the Puisne being a cipher. Of the whole mercantile community there were found only three or four firms avantaging, and these because the paper had not been placed in their hands—had due time been taken for its circulation, the subscription would have been universal. The triumph of the two newspapers over the Bench would have been complete, but for the provoking circumstance of the expenses falling on the victors—and these in the case of each of them amounted to betwixt two and three thousand rupees. The proprietors who had been specially selected, obviously for the purpose of annoyance, in place of the editors or printers, the former being alone the peccant parties, the latter being invariably selected at home, the pecuniary loss falling of course on the employers, would have been very glad to have paid double the sum to get rid of the loss of time and nuisance of attendance in Court. An important principle was involved, and the European merchants of the day stood up for it manfully, the natives who had nothing to fear shrinking from the contest. A calm succeeded the wild uproar; but the following year the paper once more got into trouble, as innocently as could be conceived. In the beginning of 1841 a series of articles appeared in the Englishman on the affairs of the Nizam at Hyderabad, from the minuteness of the information contained in them, to all appearance written by parties on the spot. They abounded in attacks on General Fraser the Resident, Captain Malcolm his Assistant, and Mr. Dighton then a Talookdar. In the end of January the first of a series of letters subscribed RYOT was forwarded from Nizam’s Hyderabad to the Bombay Times on the currency in the Nizam’s dominions, and other purely preme Court of Bombay. I do not believe that the Chief Justice attaches the same degree of moral culpability to these charges as I do, for he evidently thinks that so much passion is necessarily engendered in India in the discussion of even abstract questions like law reform, that even Judges may be pardonable if they do not exhibit themselves quite exempt from the grosser frailties of partisanship. What, therefore, from any other man I should hear charged with more emotion than I would willingly describe I listen to in calmness (though perhaps, not without a struggle) from Sir Henry Roper.” Had a newspaper ventured on the language used by the Puisne Judge towards the Chief Justice, the proprietors would all have found themselves in jail in no time.

economic matters, and so perfectly void of offence, and purely commercial did they appear, that the editor had them published in the "Journal of Commerce" in the last page of the paper, the gentleman usually in charge of that department being at this date absent in Ceylon; the allusions contained in them to the Englishman were not such as to excite suspicion, the subject was such as to preclude the fear of personality, and as the series extended, the editor had acquired such confidence in his correspondent, though he never gave his name, as to fail to scrutinize them with that rigid care so essential in publication. In one of the series published on the 24th of March, a passage appeared replying to an accusation against Captain Malcolm, who was said to have recommended the deportation from Hyderabad of Mr. Thomas Sydney Smyth, a Madras Barrister, where he is alleged to have realized 70,000 Rupees, by writing petitions, and who was asserted to have claimed kindred with the Governor General, and intimacy with various members of Parliament, with a view of raising himself in the estimation of his employers. Mr. Smyth did not appear at the outset to have taken offence at the expression, and on the 17th of April published an elaborate reply in the Bombay Times, signed ANTI HUMBUG. On the 5th of May a second letter on the same subject was forwarded by Mr. Smyth to the editor, accompanied by a private note in reference to the printing. On none of these occasions was the slightest intimation given that any offence had been occasioned by RYOR, or that legal proceedings were in contemplation, and the first time the editor became aware that he had done any thing wrong was on a demand being preferred by Mr. Smyth in October 1842 for RYOR's name, when almost every thing about the matter had been forgotten. The manuscripts of 1841 had been destroyed, and it became impossible for the publishers to have any recourse against the writer. The action had been raised in consequence of a law suit at Madras against the Examiner newspaper, brought by Mr. Dighton, and to which Mr. Smyth was a party. It was at first intended to prosecute the proprietors of the Times, when the editor was by his own desire substituted as defendant. Mr. Holland, Counsel for the prosecution, said that "he had much gratification in stating that Mr. Buist was not charged or chargeable with the authorship of the libel—that he was morally innocent, but must be held legally responsible." A doctrine so perfectly sound seems not unworthy the attention of parties accustomed to publish letters of correspondents abounding with malicious slanders, and transparent falsehoods, justified by those who must know them to be such, by the excuse that they were forwarded by persons known to them. The decision was adverse to the paper, five hundred rupees having been awarded as damages with costs. RYOR never revealed himself or afforded the slightest assistance in meeting the responsibilities incurred through his means. Mr. Howard, one of the proprietors of the paper, and Mr. Dickinson were Counsel for the defence, and the decision seemed so unsound, that it was at one time proposed to appeal against it. Mr. Smyth himself expressed his astonishment at the results, stating that his only reason for bringing the action, was to obtain the name of his assailant. The judgments given from the Bench embody views so wide from what we are accustomed to hear now-a-days from the same quarter, that they seem worthy of republication:—

"The Chief Justice then said, that his learned brother and he fully agreed that the case had been proved against the Defendant, who altho' he was not the writer of the Article in question, was legally responsible for having inserted it in his paper. The libel was admitted to have been published by the Defendant, and he, the Chief Justice, could not conceal his disgust on finding newspapers thus rendered a vehicle for private slanders. If libels such as these were published, it would lower the character of the Press, and render it like the Lion's mouth at Venice. An editor's box in such case, might well have posted over it, a notice to the effect—'Libels taken in here and no questions asked.' It was evident that the character of Mr. Smyth as a Barrister, had been grievously assailed, and in such a manner as would have excluded him in England from his profession had the truth of the charges been established against him. Had the action been brought immediately after the publication of the libel, the Court would have given most ample damages; but Mr. Smyth appeared to have slept on his wrongs for a long time, and the Court could not but take that fact into consideration. The Court could not however avoid observing, that the libel assailed the character of Mr. Smyth as a Barrister and a Gentleman, and it was sound, altho' late, to mark its sense of both those charges. Those who make a traffic of newspapers, and who profit by them, were more culpable than even those who wrote libels under the sudden impulse of their feelings.

"Sir Erskine Perry.—There cannot exist a doubt but that the publication complained of is a libel—it would be a libel on any gentleman's character, much more on a Barrister, from whom, in professional conduct, a more than ordinary delicacy is required. Sitting down passively under such imputations would stigmatise Mr. Smyth irrecoverably—he was bound to come forward, even late as it was, in vindication of his character. Conduct which, in other men, would be free from all imputation, would deeply degrade the high and independent character of the bar:—for instance, a Clergyman or Medical man might, without any imputation upon their characters, enter familiarly into Society on Circuit in England, with Attorney's wives and daughters—but this would be denounced at once as unprofessional and unworthy on the part of a Barrister. * * * Where Newspapers are mercantile speculations—the interests of the proprietors, not the Public benefit, are the immediate objects in view. Attacks on individuals are sure to be greedily read and secure circulation—if they are not true, the proprietors must suffer the penalty as slanderers. Unfortunately, in the Indian Press individuals seem too willing to libel one another for their own private interests—if this be suffered to be done with impunity, the power of the Press becomes wholly irresponsible, and a tyranny."

There can be no doubt whatever, that though the editor is the actual transgressor, the proprietors of the paper are like other masters responsible for the misdoings of their servant, through whose exertions their profits arise. Sir Erskine Perry's doctrine of the divinity that doth surround a Barrister is new, and the idea of manufactories of falsehood being maintained with a view to profit is nearly as outrageous as can be conceived; were it otherwise the buyers share with the sellers the infamy of the traffic. Both Judges knew that in this case the gentlemen on whom imputations so infamous were being cast, were amongst the most eminent members of the legal, medical, and mercantile professions—the same who had been before the Court in the "great contempt case" of 1841. Nothing can be more at variance with the opinions expressed by the Puisne Judge in 1843, than those pronounced by the same party four years afterwards when Chief Justice. In 1847 a case came on before the Criminal Sessions of a poor widow woman, who had been murdered at Worlee by the brother of her late husband, and scarcely any thing could exceed the atrocity exhibited in the case. But a man had just been convicted of murder by the Petty Jury, and through a repugnance to a couple of capital punishment together, or some other unexplained feeling or caprice, in place of finding as directed by the Judge a verdict of murder, one of aggravated manslaughter was brought in, and the Chief Justice to all appearance in a pet, or with a view of convincing the Jury of their error, sentenced the criminal to one month's imprisonment, when he had it quite in his power to have given him fifteen years' transportation. The Bombay Times was then a Bi-weekly paper, and as there were two Dailies in the field, was short in its reporting staff, quoting on such occasions from its brethren. The subject was made matter of somewhat severe comment in our editorial article, which the Judge seems to have mistaken for a report. The matter was made special mention of from the Bench next day, and the following remarks were made on it:—

“ His Lordship, on taking his seat on the Bench, said he had a matter to mention, which was of very great importance. The gentlemen at the Bar well knew what his opinions were about the criticisms of the Press. He had always conceded the absolute right of the Press to give any opinions they pleased on the judgments of the Court, or the conduct of the Judge. If they thought that the Judge were stupid, or corrupt, or ignorant, they had a right to say so, and no one had any right to complain, even although their opinions might be totally erroneous. The Judge might even smart under what were sometimes called the ‘licentious comments’ of the Press, but no complaint had he a right to make. He had also very distinctly laid down the law as to attacks of the Press on private character; that it had no right whatever to make such attacks; and that the individual thus attacked had the power of making the public writer prove the charge. That he affirmed to be the law of the land on that subject.

“ Having thus stated his opinions on the rights of the Press, and also reminding them that soon after his arrival in India he had taken upon himself to make an order that the reporters should be accommodated in that Court to the best of their ability,—for he was fully alive to the importance of having faithful reports of what took place,—he must proceed to notice a case reported at the present sessions, for where false reports appeared, it was the duty of the Judge to point out that error. The report he alluded to was contained in the Bombay Times of the 14th instant. (The learned Judge then read the article from that paper headed—‘Light punishments for heavy offences.’) He had no hesitation in saying from the Bench that there was scarcely a word of truth in that report. * * * He made these remarks without passion; the article in question was by no means a hostile one towards himself. It was the duty of the Press to give faithful accounts of proceedings on which they made comments; if they commented on ex parte statements they might receive from individuals,—perhaps from those who considered themselves injured in that Court,—they committed a gross breach of duty to their subscribers, and a gross breach of law, for it doubtless amounted to a contempt of Court. He hoped he had said enough to prevent such incorrect accounts from appearing hereafter.”

If Sir Erskine Perry erred in the stringency of his views in 1841, he seems to have erred as greatly, but on the opposite side of over liberality in 1847. We certainly think that a paper which called a Judge corrupt, would be rightly served by a punishment for contempt, and that the error would be as much more grave one than almost any amount of misreporting to which no positive malice could be supposed attachable. It is but fair to our former Chief Justice, who in so many respects deserved so well of Bombay, to add that his conduct in the matter of reporting was not in accordance with his theory. No man was more perfectly tolerant and indulgent in practice, or more ready to assist in case of difficulty. In the Sessions of 1851 a change in our establishment placed in the columns of the Times a perfectly excruciating caricature of one of these addresses to the Grand Jury, almost always so singularly happy. In place of the editor being visited with any of those fearful responsibilities to which he was open, the injured party with great good nature remarked, that he had not quite been done justice to, and very politely undertook to remedy the mishap.

The Bombay Times changed nearly the whole of its proprietors in 1846, and a second time in 1850. In September of this year, a daily as well as a bi-weekly edition was published, and after having undergone various alterations of prosperity and adversity, is at the present date nearly as flourishing and lucrative as it has ever been.

THE GENTLEMAN'S GAZETTE.—In our notice of the Bombay Gazette, which was offered for private sale, and extinguished on the 29th of August 1842, we mentioned that paper had some months before, and for a short time, been a daily. It was not until the following year that the establishment of a regular daily newspaper was really placed on a durable footing in Bombay. On the 6th of March 1843 appeared No. 1 vol. 1 of the "British Indian Gentleman's Gazette and Bombay Daily Newspaper," and a more singular production is probably not to be found in print. The programme intimated that so soon as five thousand subscribers made their appearance, the list would be published, to indicate to posterity the individuals who had been enlightened enough to patronize the new publication. The devoutly wished for consummation, never, we presume, was realized, as the list to the end we imagine considerably short of five thousand, remains in manuscript. In the opening article it was stated as a reason for commencing a daily publication, that Bombay was the place

"Where Europe's news its earliest visit pays,
And India's Mail its lingering hour delays."

The gibberish insane as it was, was nothing more than a fair specimen of the style of the writer, Mr. Patrick James Mackenna, already mentioned as coming out to take charge of the Courier in 1839. Subsequent to his dismissal from that paper in 1841, Mr. Mackenna, who had been for thirty years connected with the Press, had been associated, along with Mr. Bartley Wynyard, in the old Bombay Gazette, and if we mistake not, with the United Service Gazette, which we shall by and bye have occasion to notice, the former in a controversy in September 1842, being charged with systematic and malignant personality, the latter party laid the charge on the shoulders of the former. The Gentleman's Gazette was pronounced by the almost unanimous voice of the Press of India, from its low personality, its imbecility and vulgarity, the disgrace of Western India. The excuse of its readers, for subscribing to a paper of which they seemed to be ashamed, was that of its being the only daily amongst us, and the fallaciousness of this became apparent when the Gentleman continued to maintain his ground for years afterwards, against the Telegraph and Courier, and with the brilliant writing of one of the most able and accomplished editors we have ever had amongst us. Humiliating as is the confession, it is now beyond dispute that a taste for the very worst variety of journalism for many years prevailed in Bombay, to an extent unparalleled in the British dominions. The Gentleman who was, it must be allowed, not unfrequently on the point of extinction, continued to rub on lying and maligning right and left for the space of seven years. In 1845 the paper was the property—if such a thing deserved the name—of Mr. Gabriel Rousac and the editor already named; the printing material had been mortgaged to Messrs Jeejeebhoy Dadabhoj and Sons, through whose instrumentality the bulk of it had been provided.* Mr. Rousac seeing the rapid declination of the paper, caused in the end of 1845 an editor to be advertised from London, and out of somewhere about a hundred applicants, Mr. Connon was selected.† Mr. Connon had in 1841 been for some time assistant editor and reporter to the Inverness Courier, he had subsequently been the editor of the Fife Herald, and afterwards of the Tyne Pilot. At the time of the arrangement to come to Bombay being made, he had been for the better part of two years connected with the Economist, a paper of great ability, then under charge of Mr. James Wilson.‡ On his way out he was surprised by an intimation in the Gentleman's Gazette that no change in the arrangement of the editorial department of that paper had been contemplated. On his arrival he discovered that Mr. Mackenna had not been aware of the arrangement of his partner the managing proprietor. He found the two "disagreeing, as they had all along done—each gave a moral and general character the one of the other," such as Mr. Connon states was fully confirmed by after experience. For nearly a twelve month Mr. Connon seems to have been a frequent contributor, but not the actual editor of the paper. In the beginning of 1847, a reconciliation occurred, which Mr. Mackenna stated was "equally honorable to both parties." We must now skip over a large portion of the history of the Gentleman's Gazette,—our object being not to attempt a critical review, but a short historical notice of the journalism of the time, being copious mainly on points involving questions of law. In June 1848 some outrageous personal attacks had been made in the Gentleman's Gazette, by a writer subscribing himself ALEXANDER, and believed to be a member of the Civil Service, on Mr. Philip Stewart, Judge at Surat, who raised an action against the publishers, and the following observations were made from the Bench on the motion for the rule being made absolute :—

"SIR E. PERRY.—This is an application for leave to file a Criminal Information for libel reflecting on the Magistrate of Surat. It has not been disputed on the present occasion, and I take it for granted that this Court have power, if they see fit, to grant leave to file Criminal Information. I shall proceed to shew what the nature of this power is. In England the Attorney General as representing the Crown, has the privilege of filing ex officio informations. The proceeding by Criminal Information is a very appropriate remedy for any abuse of authority by Magistrates, but in England it is only usual for private individuals to apply to the Court of Queen's Bench for leave to file Criminal Informations, in cases of personal affronts. It is usual in such cases for the offending party to explain his conduct, and if he then makes a suitable apology, the rule nisi is usually discharged, on payment of costs by such offending party; and in such cases the Queen's Bench acts as it were as a Court of Chivalry—a Court of Honour. The present case is not, however, within that class; for this publication was not likely to provoke a breach of the peace, when the party prosecuting was living, at the time of the publication, at the distance of several hundred miles of Bombay.

In this letter of "Alexander," personal misconduct is attributed to a high functionary at Surat, and habits amounting almost to a vice have also been attributed to him. The question then is, shall the information go? The defendant contends to-day that his comments are comments upon the public acts of a public individual, filling a public situation, and are therefore justifiable; while the other side have expressly charged malice in this publication ; that, I conceive, would be a question for a Jury, who would be the competent tribunal to decide that question. I confess that I have doubted whether this is a case calling for the extraordinary interposition of this Court, and when the rule nisi was moved for, I called Counsel's attention to that part of the libel charging corruption, for I am of opinion that the mere charge of drunkenness would not be sufficient to call upon us to interfere. The learned Judge then referred to the case of Gathercole vs. Maill, 15 M. & W., also to Parmiter vs. Coupland, 6 M. & W. ; and read a portion of the judgment of Baron Parke in the last mentioned case. He then proceeded to lay it down that if a journalist should charge a public man with corruption, he should be prepared to justify, and in such case he (Sir E. P.) conceived that the journalist would be entitled to an acquittal. That the Court here must give the law of Libel the same scope as is given to it in England. That attacks upon public men differ from attacks upon private individuals, that no public writer is justified or entitled to make attacks on private individuals. If he will do so, he must be prepared to prove the truth of such attacks. On the other hand, if he makes an attack upon public men, it would suffice to shew that he did so with pure honesty of purpose. If the only question to-day, then, was whether Mr. Mackenna was actuated by honest zeal, or by malice, that is a question which should be left to a Jury ; but in this attack there is an imputation on the private character of Mr. Stewart, which has not been answered by the defendant. Then another question for a Jury, in the case, would be whether the charge for drunkenness is attached to Mr. Stewart in his public or private character. On the whole, therefore, we think that Mr. Stewart has a right to appeal to a Jury ; and therefore the rule must be made absolute."

"SIR WILLIAM YARDLEY.—I concur in the conclusion that has been arrived at by the Chief Justice. The great use, as it seems to me, of an application of this nature to the Court, is, that a person whose public or private character is attacked, can come here at once, and clear himself. He thereby affords the defendants, if they are so disposed, the opportunity of making the amende honorable, and I hoped that this case would have so terminated ; for if we had grounds for granting a rule nisi, that rule should now be made absolute, as no apology, or an attempt at one, has been offered. I will not prejudge the question whether this libel can be justified hereafter or not. One observation of the Chief Justice, if I understood him rightly, I do not concur in—he seems to think that a public writer is bound only to show honest zeal. Now I will yield to no man in my admiration for the just uses of the press ; and it would be idle to expect that a public writer could always write accurately as to facts, and without a large measure of assumption, but something more than honest zeal is required in public writers—they must shew that they have done their best to ascertain the truth of what they publish. Reckless and unauthenticated reports should not be adopted without enquiry. They are bound to have reasonable and probable grounds for believing that the reports they publish are true. If they do adopt reckless and unauthenticated reports, honest zeal is not enough. I think that this rule enough to be made absolute."—Telegraph & Courier 24th June 1848.

The case came on for trial in July, and the defendant was cast in damages, and directed to make an apology, and the latter was published only in the part of his impression likely to meet the eyes of the defendant or his friends.*

* See Bombay newspapers 5th August. Subjoined is the apology :—

"The Editor begs to express his deep regret that he should have published in the Gentleman's Gazette Newspaper such portions of the letters signed Alexander and Alexander Redivivus as reflect upon the character of Philip Stewart Esq., Magistrate of Surat, and to acknowledge, as he does most sincerely, that there is no foundation whatever for the imputations against Mr. Stewart therein contained. The Editor is very sorry that this apology was not offered in the first instance, and is willing to pay all the expenses incurred by Mr. Stewart in the prosecution which has been commenced."

In the beginning of 1850 Mr. Mackenna left Bombay, and the title Gentleman's Gazette was changed into that of the Bombay Gazette, the paper becoming the property of Mr. Connon, by whom it was thenceforth conducted. Mr. Connon left Bombay in April 1855, leaving the Gazette in charge of Mr. Mawson, who had previously earned an honorable name in journalism at Calcutta, and afterwards in the North-West-Provinces. We have omitted to mention that Mr. Connon was in 1846 appointed Secretary to the Chamber of Commerce, an office which he still holds, and that some time before his departure he was the means of showing the illegality of the Shop and Stall Tax, and that through his resistance and instrumentality it became abolished.

THE TELEGRAPH, afterwards TELEGRAPH and COURIER.—It has been already mentioned that in the year 1846 the wretched character of the Gentleman's Gazette had become confessed, and that a good daily newspaper was allowed on all hands to be a desideratum for Bombay. In the end of July that year accordingly the Telegraph was brought into existence, under the proprietorship of Mr. Jamieson, for some years business manager in the Times, and editorship of Mr. T. J. A. Scott. This gentleman had come to Bombay in 1839, to join a kinsman Captain Scott—he was then a lad of 18—his friend's residence was at Colabah, near that of Mr. Murphy, the Secretary to the Chamber of Commerce, to whom he speedily became known, being soon afterwards placed under him in that establishment. Mr. Scott's first appearance in print, so far as we know, occurred in July 1840, when some very clever and graphic sketches, which he was too modest himself to put in print, were published through the instrumentality of Mr. Murphy, in the Bombay Times. A twelvemonth afterwards he was placed for some months in charge of the journal just named, during the sickness of the editor. At this time he became correspondent for the Morning Chronicle, writing under the signature of O. P. Q. IN THE EAST. From 1844 to 1846 he was Editor of the "Journal of Commerce," and from the middle of May to the end of December 1845 was sole acting conductor of the Bombay Times. In the end of 1846 he purchased up the Courier from its proprietors, and conjoined it with the Telegraph, which had already attained a large measure of popularity. As the paper had the good fortune to escape the Supreme Court, we must pass over its history with the general remark, that under the administration of Mr. Scott it was conducted with singular industry and ability. Its editor having for some years acted gratuitously as Secretary to the Railway, he was placed in the appointment permanently on a salary of a thousand rupees a month in the end of 1849. In contemplation of some such arrangement as this, Mr. Thomas Holcroft, in early life connected with the Calcutta Press, afterwards Paris Correspondent for some of the London morning papers, and at the time referred to engaged in the Daily News, came to Bombay by invitation, and on Mr. Scott's retirement became conjointly with Mr. Jamieson proprietor of the paper in January 1850. The arrangement seems to have become an inharmonious one. In July 1851 the property was for a short time in the Sheriff's hands, when Mr. Holcroft returned to Europe, where he shortly afterwards died—Mr. Jamieson becoming thenceforth sole proprietor. For the next twelvemonth the Literary Department appears to have been in a multitude of hands, the proprietor being, we believe, the sole responsible editor. In August 1852 Mr. Meason, a man of good family and education, at one time an Officer of H. M's 41st, subsequently of the 10th Royal Hussars, a corps he had just quitted, became the principal writer. In October the paper was sold to a somewhat extensive proprietary. Mr. Meeson from this date until August 1854, when he left Bombay, being responsible editor. For the past sixteen months it has been conducted by Mr. George Craig, the founder and original editor of the Oriental News, a weekly newspaper which came into existence in September 1853. We might pass it over without notice, several newspapers of a short lived existence and insignificant name, which have appeared amongst us within the last sixteen years; but that we should thereby be doing an injustice to a man of great talent for sometime connected with them. From a short biographical notice given of himself, it appears that about the year 1835 Mr. Thomas Smith, then a student at Aberdeen, ran away from college, and enlisted, joining the Queen's Royals in India. He was about the year 1837—we are uncertain about the dates—employed as a teacher by the Education Society, and about this time connected with the Iris Newspaper. Early in 1840 he brought the Bombay Herald into existence, this being some months afterwards transformed into the United Service Gazette, and with this paper he continued connected till nearly the close of its career. Mr. Smith was a man of considerable acquirements, a writer of much wit and humour, and in sarcasm not very often excelled, but he was unfixed in his principles, and far from steady in his habits, and died out of employment in 1843. The name of Mr. Wynyard having been mentioned as connected with the Bombay Press from the time of his dismissal from the 17th Regt. in 1840 to that of his withdrawal from the Presidency in 1843, we can bear ample testimony to his talents, but to this we must restrict our praise. The career of The World, a small insignificant Weekly of 1841, was so brief and obscure, that it might have been passed unnoticed, unless for the name of its editor Mr. Woods, who has of late acquired such an unenviable celebrity in connection with the slanders on Sir James Brooke of Borneo. In 1845 the Witness, a religious newspaper, was brought into existence, under the auspices of Mr. Larkins, an attorney, and survived somewhere about a twelvemonth. It was succeeded after an interval by the Bombay Guardian, which commenced in 1850, and still continues to exist.

The Oriental Christian Spectator is rather a religious Magazine than a newspaper, and it is in this way scarcely included in our catalogue. It commenced in 1830, and has been conducted throughout by the distinguished missionary Dr. John Wilson: it abounds in papers of the highest merit. The news department is confined to ecclesiastical and missionary intelligence.

Mr. J. H. STOCQUELER.—In the hurry of writing, we regret to find that in the history of the Courier, we have omitted the name of one of our chief Indian celebrities, Mr. Joachim Henry Stocqueler. Mr. Stocqueler seems to have come to Bombay about the year 1822, in the Company's service. His earlier history is unknown to us—but he was clearly one of those who had lost his place in society, and the manners and education of a gentleman were readily discernible under the blue coat of a Bombardier. Soon after his arrival he was employed in the Secretariate, and had by this time become known as a contributor to the local press. On the demise of Capt. Morris in 1831, he became editor of the Courier, and so continued till 1833, when after having given a splendid dinner party, he suddenly disappeared. In his travels through Persia, he gives an account of his migration, without explaining the circumstances, on which, though perfectly known, we do not feel ourselves bound to enter. His management of the paper seems to have been eminently successful, and the pecuniary encumbrances left behind him were afterwards honorably discharged. He is still familiarly remembered in Bombay, at the interval of twenty years. Some two years after his flight from this, he made his appearance at Calcutta, where he first had charge of the Hurkaru, and from 1838 to 1843 of the Englishman. At the latter of these dates he quitted the country under a cloud, and has for the past twelve years been living on his wits in London—a witty and pleasing, if not very exemplary man.

The reason why the history of the last ten years of Bombay journalism should be touched more lightly on by the present writer than it might otherwise have been, are too obvious to require explanation.

We shall make no attempt at a history of the newspaper press any where but at Bombay; that given above, indeed, is a mere outline, or string of notices, not a history. The following is a list of the most remarkable events connected with the journals of all the presidencies, taken from the London Asiatic Journal, which, again, borrows nearly the whole of its information from the papers themselves—it is not in our power to refer to the originals. The personalities and quarrels amongst the editors themselves and the coarse and vulgar tone and actual violence so often resorted to by those addressing themselves to what might have been supposed one of the most select of constituencies—the civil, military, and naval services of the Government, and merchants of the presidencies, for amongst these alone are the supporters of the newspapers to be found, seems one of the most inexplicable and surprising things in the history of letters. Newspaper editors, with the power, almost, of selecting their own place in society, forming the only body of men in India purely literary by profession, might, from the sympathies of study and a common occupation, have been expected to draw and cling together with more than ordinary warmth and tenacity, to have stood by their order maintained the dignity of their professions, and shown an example in the amenities and courtesies of discussion. That there are not a few who have thus demeaned themselves is fortunately undoubted—that the majority should have done the very opposite is one of the most singular things that can be imagined. The efforts of one to exalt himself by denouncing all and sundry of his brethren, and slandering his order, has, as might have been expected, produced the most unfortunate results on the opinions and influence of the press, and the position of its individual writers.

- 1831 August 6. Bombay Government Gazette published.
Captain McNaghten goes to the house of Mr. Rozario, of the East India, and chastises him for some expressions made use of in that journal towards a writer in the John Bull, subscribing himself "Tit-for-Tat"—Ibid, 1832, N. S. vol vii. p. 180
The Madras papers felicitate themselves on the censorship as better than the license system.—Ibid.
- 1832 The censorship removed at Madras, and the papers placed under the same regulations as had obtained at Calcutta from 1825.
Madras Advertiser threatened with a prosecution by Government: editor resigns in consequence.
- 1833 Mr. John Cochrane, the Company's standing Counsel, challenges Mr. Sutherland editor of the Hurkaru, for a misrepresentation of his speech at a steam meeting. Mr. Sutherland declines, and Mr. S. Smith, the proprietor, is challenged. He also declines. Mr. Cochrane posts Mr. William Cobb Hurry Mr Sutherland's friend, and Mr. Sutherland and Mr. Smith as cowards, for refusing him the satisfaction of a gentleman. Mr. Hurry denounces Mr. Cochrane as a public liar, he (Mr. Hurry never having been asked to fight, or having had any intercourse with Mr. Cochrane.—Ibid, 1834, vols. xii xvi.
Mr. Murphy, editor of the Gazette, challenges, and, on the challenge being declined, posts General Vans Kennedy; is prosecuted, and fined Rs. 500.
May. A letter having appeared in the Bombay Gazette complaining of the injustice done the Queen's troops by the rates of exchange at which their pay was remitted, the Editor, Mr. Boden, was threatened with instant deportation unless the author was given up. The author came forward and gave his name—Private O'Donnel, of the Queen's royals, and was condemned to receive corporal punishment, and six months' imprisonment, the letter having been pronounced false and dangerous: the whole of the statements contained in it were soon afterwards found true—the letter unexceptionable in point of expression, and so sound in practice that the grievances complained of were redressed!—Asiatic Journal, 1833.
- 1834 Mr. Murphy, editor of the Gazette, prosecuted by Mr. and Mrs. Barker, and cast in damages.
The Hurkaru and India Gazette united: virulent personal altercation betwixt Mr. S. Smith, and Mr. Stocqueler of the Englishman, on the occasion.

- 1847 March 15. Restrictive order regarding the Bombay Commander-in-Chief.—Bombay Times 1847, and 24th September 1852.

August. On the occasion of a trial for manslaughter, very severe remarks were made on the Chief Justice Sir K. Perry, when the Judge made the following observations :—On taking his seat on the Bench, he said he had a matter to mention, which was of very great importance. The gentlemen at the Bar well knew what his opinions were about the criticisms of the Press. He had always conceded the absolute right of the Press to give any opinions they pleased on the judgments of the Court, or the conduct of the Judge. If they thought that the Judge were stupid, or corrupt, or ignorant, they had a right to say so, and no one had any right to complain, even although their opinions might be totally erroneous. The Judge might even smart under what were sometimes called the 'licentious comments' of the Press, but no complaint had he a right to make. He had also very distinctly laid down the law as to attacks of the Press on private character; that it had no right whatever to make such attacks; and that the individual thus attacked had the power of making the public writer prove the charge. That he affirmed to be the law of the land on that subject.

- 1818 The Gentleman's Gazette prosecuted by Mr. P. Stewart, Collector, Surat, whom it had charged with drunkenness, and cast in damages.
- 1851 The Court of Directors settle a pension of £400 a year on Mr. Silk Buckingham.
- 1852 September 22. The Bombay Government republishes the Press order of August 1843, and March 1847.—Bombay Times, 24th September 1853. The Government of the North-West Provinces commence publishing extracts from their records.
- The Bombay Government, do. do.
- 1853 The Bengal Government, do. do.
- 1854 May 10. Editor's Room opened in the Bombay Secretariate, where extracts from the Government records are placed at the disposal of the newspapers.
- 1855 Editor's Room opened at Madras.
- December 10. The Governor General issues an order, directing Editor's Rooms to be established under all the Governments.

The preceding contains some of the leading notices, extracted from the newspapers of the day, and contained in the Asiatic Journal, and may serve to assist in the preparation of a history of the press. The good effected by the Press, great as it has been, was gradual: its merits are not capable of being chronicled, and an enumeration of its misfortunes, errors, and transgressions such as the preceding list supplies, gives a most unfair and unfavorable view of its character, uses, and position. The following is a chronological notice regarding the newspapers of each of the presidencies—this not materially affecting that just given of the press:—

Abstract of the Acts of the Legislative Council of India. PASSED IN 1855.

ACT No I. OF 1855.

[Passed 2d February 1855.]

An Act for providing for the exercise of certain Powers by the Governor General during his absence from the Council of India.

1. During the absence of the Governor General from his Council, it shall be lawful for him to exercise all the powers which he might exercise if in Council.

ACT No II. OF 1855.

[Passed 2d February 1855.]

An Act for the further Improvement of the Law of Evidence.

1. Act No 10 of 1835 repealed.—2. Judicial notice to be taken of all Regulations and Ordinances made on or before the 22d April 1834, and of all subsequent Acts.—3. Acts of Parliament to be taken judicial notice of, and a copy of an Act purporting to be printed by the King's Printer to be admitted as prima facie evidence.—4. All Courts to take judicial notice of its own officers.—5. Names and titles of certain persons to be taken judicial notice of.—6. Judicial notice to be taken of time and place.—7. The bare production in Court of any Government Gazette to be considered sufficient proof.—8. Official communications and proclamations published in a Gazette may be proved by the production of the Gazette, and shall be prima facie evidence of any fact of a public nature.—9. Any recital of a fact of a public nature contained in any Act to be prima facie proof of the truth of the fact.—10. Any advertisement appearing in a Gazette and purporting to be published by authority is to be received as prima facie evidence that such is the fact.—11. On matters of History, Literature, &c., Courts may refer to Books, Maps &c., and to receive them in evidence.—12. Books published by the Government of a foreign country are admissible as evidence of the Law of that country.—13. all Maps made by Government, or by any municipal body, to be prima facie proof, provided they have not been made for the purposes of litigation.—14. Children under seven years of age who appear not capable of receiving just impressions, and persons of unsound mind, incompetent to give evidence.—15. Any person defective in religious belief may be allowed to give evidence on simple affirmations.—16. These provisions to apply to evidence given either in writing or orally delivered.—17. Any witness giving false testimony on affirmation may be committed to take his trial for perjury. The indictment merely to be varied to meet the requirements of the case.—18. No person interested in a suit incompetent as a witness on that account.—19. Any party to a civil suit or other proceeding may be compelled to give evidence, and also to produce any document, but no Court, except H. M. Supreme Courts shall enforce the attendance of a party for the purpose of giving evidence except under Act XIX. of 1853.—20. A husband and wife in a civil suit may give evidence for and against each other, but a communication made by one to the other during marriage shall be deemed a privileged communication, and shall not be disclosed without the consent of the party who made it, unless it refers to a matter in dispute in a suit pending between husband and wife.—21. No witness to be compelled to produce documents relating to affairs of State, nor any document held by him for another person which that other person would not be bound to produce.—22. No witness bound to produce documents irrelevant to the case, nor any confidential communications that may have passed between him and his legal adviser, unless he offers himself as a witness, in which case he must produce all documents material to the case.—23. A witness summoned to produce a document must bring it into Court with him. If he objects to produce the document the Court will determine on the validity of his objection. The Court can receive any admissible evidence regarding the document. It is also lawful for the Court not only to inspect the document (provided it does not relate to affairs of State) but to call to its assistance an interpreter. Such interpreter to be sworn to interpret the document to the Court alone and not to divulge the contents except to the Court, unless the Court orders it to be put in evidence.—24. Professional communications are privileged, and no Barrister &c, is to disclose anything his client may have told him, but this is the privilege of the client, and if a party to a suit give evidence therein at his own instance he is considered as having waived it.—25. Any person present in Court may be called on by the Court to give evidence, and to produce any documents in his possession or power.—26. Any person summoned to produce a document may send it to the Court.—27. Rules of evidence in the Supreme Courts on the Ecclesiastical and Admiralty sides to be the same as they are on the Plea side.—27. The direct evidence of one person to be sufficient proof, except in cases of Treason, but this is not to affect any rule of a Court that requires corroborative evidence in support of the testimony of an accomplice or of a single witness in a case of perjury.—29. Dying declarations to be received in evidence if at the time the party makes them he believes himself to be in danger, although he entertains hope of recovery.—30. A party may, with the permission of the Court, cross-examine his own witness to test his veracity or discredit his testimony.—31. Any statement made by a witness, relating to the same fact on a former occasion, or any deposition made by him before a Magistrate or other officer, is admissible to corroborate his evidence, a certified copy of such deposition to be prima facie evidence.—32. A witness cannot object to answering a question on the ground that he might criminate himself, but no answer shall subject him to any arrest or prosecution or be used against him in any criminal proceedings, except for the purpose of punishing him for perjury.—33. A witness may be asked whether he has ever been convicted of felony, and if he refuses to answer or replies in the negative, the opposite party may prove the conviction.—34. A witness may be questioned as to any former statements made by him in writing, relative to the cause in issue, without such writing being shown to him, but if it is intended to contradict his testimony by the writing, his attention must be specially directed to that portion of the writing which it is intended shall be used against him. The judge, however, may call for such writing at any time during the trial and make use of it.—35. An impression from a copying machine without further proof to be deemed correct.—36. Where an original document is out of reach of process, the Court may make an order for the reception of secondary evidence of its execution and contents.—38. An attested document may be proved as if unattested, unless it be a document to the validity of which attestation is requisite.—38. The admission of a party to the execution of an attested instrument shall be prima facie proof of such execution, even though the document is required by law to be attested.—39. Any instrument or statement which would be admissible after the death of the person making it, shall be admissible though the person be not dead, if such person be of unsound mind, or out of reach of the process of Court, and cannot after search be found.—40. Entries made in books, regularly kept, in business, so far as such entries tend to identify the numbers, of any Bank Notes or other securities for money, and the payer in or receiver of them requires to be proved, are admissible in evidence for that limited purpose, if such entries appear to have been made about the time of the transaction, even though the person who made them is capable of being produced.—41. Receipts in writing admissible against the parties giving them, and also against other parties in whose favour they would operate as a discharge.—42. A receipt of an agent or servant for his principal shall, upon proof of the authority of the agent or servant to pass it, be admissible in evidence.—43. Books regularly kept are admissible as corroborative, but not independent proof of the entries contained in them.—44. Certificates of shares, bills of lading, invoices, account sales, receipts and securities proved to have been given in the due course of business are admissible as corroborative evidence.—45. A witness is allowed to refresh his memory by any writing made by himself while a fact was fresh in his memory, and the adverse party may cross-examine such witness.—46. A witness may refresh his memory by a reference to a copy of a document if the Court think that there is sufficient reason for the non-production of the original.—47. Illegitimate members of a family, and also of persons intimately acquainted with its members admissible in evidence after the death of the declarant.—48. To test the authenticity of a disputed signature, an acknowledged signature may be compared with it, though such be on the face of a document not in evidence.—49. A Power of Attorney executed at a distance exceeding 100 miles from the place where a suit is proceeding may be proved by the production of it, provided it has been executed before and authenticated by a Notary Public, or any Court, Judge, Consul or Magistrate.—50. If a letter book be produced, and it is proved that a letter copied therein was dispatched to the best of the knowledge of the witness having reasonable ground for forming that belief, the Court will presume the dispatch of the letter.—51. An entry in a dispatch book of the transmission and receipt of a letter shall, on proof that such entry was made in the course of business, be prima facie evidence of the receipt of the letter.—52. Portion of Section 6, of Act XV. of 1852 repealed.—53. The 16th Section, of Act VI of 1854 extended to all civil actions, suits and proceedings on all sides of the Courts.—54. Portion of 17th Section of Act VI of 1854 extended in like manner.—55. The 33rd Section of Act VI of 1854 shall extend to and embrace all accounts directed to be taken on any side of the Courts.—56. A certified copy, a certificate or other document, if it is substantially in form and purports to be executed in the manner directed by the Statute, Act, Regulation or Ordinance which makes it evidence is admissible as prima facie evidence, although it have no seal, stamp, signature, character or authority attached to it, which it is directed to have, or from which it is directed to proceed.—57. No new trial to be granted for the rejection, or improper reception of evidence if it shall appear to the Court that there was sufficient evidence to justify the decision, or that if the rejected evidence had been received, it ought not to have varied the decision.—58. Nothing in this Act to render inadmissible in Court any evidence which, but for the passing of this Act, would have been admissible in such Court.

ACT No- III of 1855.

(Passed 2nd February 1855.)

An Act for the better Prevention of Desertion from the Indian Navy.

1. Article 4 of Rule, Ordinance, and Regulation of July 1820 repealed as far as regards seamen of the Indian Navy.—2 Any person instigating or procuring any officer, seaman or other person to desert, or knowingly harbouring or concealing a deserter, shall be liable to a fine of one thousand rupees.—3. If a deserter be concealed on board a ship, and that the master though ignorant of the fact, might have known it but for neglect of duty or want of discipline on board his vessel, such master shall be liable to a fine of Rupees 500.—4 Any person guilty of an offence punishable under this Act may be punished for the same by any Justice of the Peace, Magistrate, or person lawfully exercising the power of Magistrate in any port within the territories of the East India Company, whether the offence may have been committed within the local limits of such Magistrate's jurisdiction or not, and every offender shall be punishable on summary conviction.—5. No conviction to be quashed from error of form or procedure, but only on the merits of the case.—6 Nothing in this Act to exempt any person from being committed for trial under Act No. XIV of 1849, or any other Act hereafter to come in force, provided that proceedings shall not have been instituted against such person under this Act.—7. The Commander-in-Chief of the Indian Navy, or his Deputy, or in their absence the senior officer of the Indian Navy are empowered to administer oaths and solemn affirmations to informants, and to issue warrants for the apprehension of deserters, in virtue of which the person to whom the warrant is addressed may enter into and search any house, ship or other place, in which a deserter is suspected to be concealed, at any hour of the day or night.—8. Warrants may be addressed to any persons in the Indian Navy, or, generally, to all constables, &c &c.—9. Every person apprehended as a deserter to be brought before a Justice of the Peace or Magistrate without delay, and such Justice, if satisfied that the party is a deserter, shall cause him to be placed on board some vessel of the Indian Navy, to be dealt with according to law, or if there be no vessel in the port, or near the place where the deserter has been apprehended, he is to be lodged in the nearest prison, and a report of the circumstance made to the Commander-in-Chief or any officer of the Navy. Every person committed to prison to be entitled to be discharged out of custody unless within three months from the date of committal he shall have been placed on board one of the ships of the Indian Navy.

ACT No. V OF 1855.

[Passed 17th February 1855.]

An Act to assimilate the Process of Execution on all Sides of Her Majesty's Supreme Courts, and to extend and amend the Provisions of Act XXV of 1841.

1. No process of contempt to issue to compel the performance of so much of a decree as directs any person to pay money or costs, or to execute any deed or instrument, or to make any transfer or surrender, or to do any act which a constituted attorney of such person if ordered by the Court to do for his principal would have the means of performing.—2. Execution against the property or person of a party may be issued after judgment or order to pay money or costs in default of payment by ca sa or fi fa, &c. This however does not extend to a fine imposed for a criminal offence.—3. The Sheriff to pay money which he may levy under any execution either to the party named in the writ or into Court.—4. The Court empowered to appoint an officer to execute any instrument, or to do any act for any person who has been ordered, but has failed to do the same.—5. If the Court can safely dispense with the execution of any instrument which a person directed to execute has failed to perform, it shall be lawful for the Court to declare that such instrument shall be as valid and effectual without the execution or signature of the party as if it were executed and signed by him.—6. If a party fail to deliver up any immoveable property or any specific chattle or other property when ordered by a decree of a Court so to do, the Court is empowered to issue a writ to the Sheriff, directing him either to put the party named in the writ into possession or to seize any specific chattle, &c., but the Sheriff cannot disturb the bona fide possession of any person other than the person against whom such order is made.—7. The 1st and 2nd Sections of Act XXV of 1841 are repealed.—8. The Court empowered to issue process of contempt to compel obedience to orders which cannot otherwise be enforced.—9. H. M. Supreme Courts empowered to frame such writs of execution as may be necessary to give effect to the provisions of this Act.—10. The words "person" and "party" to be understood as including any body corporate, and although used in the singular number and the masculine gender, to include several persons both males and females, unless there is something in the context repugnant to such construction. The term "H. M. Supreme Courts" to include the Court of Judicature of Prince of Wales' Island, Singapore and Malacca. This Act came into effect on the 1st May 1855.

ACT No. VI OF 1855.

[Passed 17th February 1855.]

An Act to extend the Operation of, and regulate the Mode of Executing Writs of Execution in, Her Majesty's Supreme Courts of Judicature.

1. Lands, houses and other immoveable property may be seized and sold under a writ of fi fa issued out of any of H. M. Supreme Courts, and on any side of the Court. The Sheriff to put the purchaser in possession of such immovable property when in possession of the judgment debtor. When the judgment debtor is not in possession, the Sheriff shall not seize the property, but sell the debtor's interest in it. If the property be beyond the local limits of the Court's jurisdiction, the Sheriff to give notice of sale to the Judge of the District in which the property is situated, who shall cause notice of the sale to be proclaimed. In case of intended sale of immovable property beyond the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, the Sheriff to cause notice of sale to be stuck up in some conspicuous place, and also at the Mal Cutchery of the estate, if any, otherwise on some conspicuous part of the property to be sold. The number of days between notice and sale to be not less than 14 days, if the property be not more distant than 100 miles from the Supreme Court; if more than 100 miles distant one day is to be added for every 50 miles. The want of such notice or any irregularity in respect thereof, not to vitiate the sale to a bona fide purchaser.—2. When immovable property is seized or liable to be sold under a writ, if the Court is satisfied that there is reasonable ground to believe that the amount of judgment may be raised by mortgage, it shall be lawful for the Court, on an application made to it, to postpone the sale for one month, to give the defendant an opportunity to raise the amount, and to direct that the money ordered to be levied shall be raised by mortgage instead of sale.—3. The Sheriff empowered to seize under writs of fi fa, money, bank notes &c., and to pay them to the execution creditor, also with the order of the Court, to endorse over, and without such order, to hold cheques, bills of exchange &c., and to sue in his own name for amount secured by bills of exchange, or for debts. The Sheriff not required to sue any party unless the party suing out the execution give him security, indemnifying him from all costs and expenses to be incurred.—4. Sheriff to receive interest on Government security seized by him, and to sell and endorse such security when necessary.—5. No debt to be sold by the Sheriff under the process of the Courts.—6. Shares in Public Companies may be charged in execution, but the person against whom any such order shall have been made, or any other person affected by it may apply to the Court for its discharge on just grounds.—7. The property of a debtor standing in the name of any officer of the Court may be applied to the payment of the debt, and the Court or Judge shall have full power to make such order as may be necessary to give effect to this provision.—8. A party arrested under a ca sa is entitled to his discharge on tender of the amount of levy to the opposite party, or to the Sheriff or Gaoler.—9. The written order of the attorney issuing the writ, is sufficient for the discharge of an arrested party by the Sheriff, unless the client shall give written notice to the contrary. The attorney is not justified in giving order for the discharge of an arrested party without the consent of his client.—10. In case of escape or breach of duty the Sheriff is only liable for the amount of loss really occasioned.—11. A writ of execution sued out under this Act shall not remain in force for more than a year, unless renewed from time to time, and a renewed writ shall have effect and be entitled to the same priority as the original would have had. No writ of habere facias possessionem shall be renewed without the special leave of the Court.—12. The production of a writ or of notice of its renewal shall be sufficient evidence of its having been renewed.—13. Property may be seized under a writ of sequestration in like manner as under fi ri facias.

ACT No. VII OF 1855.

[Passed 17th February 1855.]

An Act to amend the Law of Arrest on Mesne Process in Civil Actions in H. M. Courts of Judicature, and to provide for the Subsistence of Prisoners confined under Civil Process of any of the said Courts.

1. No person to be arrested or held to bail upon mesne process in any action now pending, or which shall hereafter be commenced, without an order from the Court, which can in every case withhold or grant the order.—2. No order for arrest to be granted unless the Court be satisfied by affidavit that the plaintiff has good cause for action against defendant to the amount of Rupees two hundred ; or that the defendant is concealing himself, or is about to abscond, or that he is withdrawing his property or is about to do so to avoid process, or that he has removed some part of his effects in order to defraud his creditors.—3 An order may be made for arrest in any stage of the cause.—4 The Judge may require the personal attendance of the plaintiff and of any other persons whom he may think fit, and examine them on oath.—5 A copy of the affidavit on which such order may be granted shall be given to the Sheriff with the writ or warrant, and shall be delivered to the defendant at the time of his arrest, otherwise the Court may order him to be discharged.—6. Any person arrested may apply to the Court for his discharge, and if the plaintiff delays to show cause why the defendant should not be discharged, the Court may order him to be liberated. Any order made by a Judge may be discharged, or varied by the Court on the application of either of the parties dissatisfied with the order.—7. If a motion be made for the discharge of a defendant upon affidavit, but not otherwise, the plaintiff may oppose the motion by affidavits in addition to that upon which the arrest was made.—8. The Court may compel the personal attendance of both parties and also of any other person whom the Judge may think fit to examine, and the Sheriff and Gaoler are bound to bring before the Court any person detained in custody on civil process, whose attendance may be ordered.—9. Every person now in custody on mesne process, who shall not have filed a petition to be discharged by the Court for the relief of Insolvent Debtors, shall be entitled to his discharge at the expiration of one month from the passing of this Act, upon entering a common appearance to the action ; but every prisoner shall be liable to be detained, or to be again arrested after his discharge in pursuance of the provisions of this Act.—10. Previously to the arrest of a prisoner, the party at whose suit the writ of attachment is issued, must lodge subsistence money for thirty days, at 4 annas per day, in the hands of the Sheriff, who must give notice to the plaintiff or his attorney that the arrest has been made. The plaintiff must make a further deposit of subsistence money for thirty days before the expiration of the first thirty days after the arrest of defendant, and each ensuing thirty days during which the defendant may be in gaol. The Sheriff or Gaoler shall give a receipt for the deposit. The rate of deposit may be varied by the Court, so that it be not reduced to less than one anna a day, and in case of the illness of defendant or other special cause, the Court may order the deposit to be increased to eight annas a day. If the deposit be not made prior to the arrest, no arrest shall be made, and if after the arrest the deposits shall not be paid the Court may order the discharge of the defendant, but a prisoner thus discharged is not thereby released from his liability to pay the amount for which he was arrested, nor will his discharge prevent any execution from being issued against his property. These provisions regarding deposits are applicable to all persons at present in confinement under civil process so far as relates to future deposits, and if within thirty days after the passing of this Act the parties at whose instance prisoners are confined fail to make the first deposit, the prisoners are to be entitled to their immediate discharge. The amount spent in providing subsistence for a prisoner detained on mesne process shall be costs in the cause, and the amount spent in subsistence of a prisoner detained in execution is to be added to the judgment. The amount spent in maintaining a prisoner detained under attachment shall be deemed part of the demand. The balance of any deposit remaining at the period of the discharge of a prisoner to be returned to the depositor.—9. The Court's order for the discharge of a prisoner shall be sufficient authority for the Gaoler, so far as concerns the action to which the order relates. When an order is made for discharge of a prisoner on his entering a common appearance the discharge shall not be made until a certificate be produced from the officer of the Court, with whom appearances are entered.—12. It shall be the duty of the Sheriff and the keeper of the prison to report to the Court the name of every prisoner who appears to be unable to maintain himself, or who shall complain that he has been arrested without cause, and the Court may order such complainant to be brought before it, and the Sheriff is bound to serve any summons, rule, or order which the Judge may order him.—13. An order under this Act shall be a sufficient justification of the Sheriff, Gaoler, &c. 14.—The words "affidavit" and "oath" shall include affirmations. The singular number shall include the plural, &c &c. This Act not to effect the rules of Court not inconsistent herewith, or the provisions of the Insolvent Debtors Act.—16. In the application of this Act to Prince of Wales' Island, Singapore and Malacca, a dollar to be deemed equal to two Rupees and one fifth of a Rupee, and three cents shall be deemed equivalent to an anna.

ACT No. VIII OF 1855.

[Passed 17th February 1855.]

An Act to amend the Law relating to the Office and Duties of the Administrator General.

1. In each of the three Presidencies there shall be an Administrator General.—2. Such Administrator General shall be appointed and may be suspended or removed by the Governors of their respective Presidencies.—3. Existing incumbents shall continue to hold their offices subject to the provisions of this Act.—4. The Administrator General is not to be deemed an officer of the Supreme Court in that capacity.—5. All letters of administration which since the passing of Act No. 11. of 1850 have been granted to the Ecclesiastical Registrar of the Madras Supreme Court of Judicature, and all estates and effects, books, papers and documents vested in the said Ecclesiastical Registrar, are transferred to the Administrator General, and such letters of administration shall have the same effect in all respects as to any act hereafter to be done under this Act, as if they had been originally granted to the Administrator General.—6. The present

Administrator General of Madras to hold the office of Ecclesiastical Registrar, but with that exception no Administrator General either now holding office, or hereafter appointed, shall hold the office of Ecclesiastical Registrar or any other situation except that of Administrator General without the express sanction of Government. The present Administrator General of Bengal may, however, retain the appointment of Receiver of the Supreme Court.—7. Every Administrator General hereafter appointed shall, unless Government order otherwise, give security for the due execution of his duties, to the amount of two lakhs of rupees, his own bond for one lakh, and either deposit Government paper or the bonds of two or more sureties for another lakh, the sureties to be approved of by Government, or he may, for this latter lakh of Rupees, give security partly by bonds and partly by deposits. Every Administrator General may, with the consent of Government, for the latter lakh of Rupees or any part of it substitute either of the two last mentioned kinds of security for another kind previously given, and every Administrator General may, with the consent of Government, and shall, when required to do so, cause othersureties to be substituted for any of those previously bound, so far as relates to the due execution of his office prospectively.—8. No security is to be required by the Supreme Court from any Administrator General.—9. Any letters of Administration or ad colligenda bona, which shall hereafter be granted by the Supreme Court are, unless when granted to the next of kin of the deceased, to be granted to the Administrator General, and he is entitled to receive them in preference to a friend or creditor of the deceased.—10. The words “next of kin” are to be deemed to mean a widow or widower, or such other person who, according to law, would be entitled to administration, and no Ecclesiastical Registrar or other officer of the Court shall be entitled to administration on account of his office.—11. If a British subject, not being a Mahomedan or Hindoo, die, and shall have left assets exceeding the value of Rs. 500 within any of the Presidencies or any of the Provinces subject thereto, or if a person not being a British subject (Hindoos and Mahomedans excepted) die, leaving personal assets exceeding Rs. 500 within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of any of the Presidencies, and no person shall, within one month after his death, have applied for probate of will or letters of administration, the Administrator General is to take such steps as may be necessary to obtain from the Supreme Court letters of administration: No assets that any person may be entitled to receive under Act XX of 1841 are to be deemed assets within the meaning of this Act.—12. If any person, whether Hindoo, Mahomedan or not, die within the local jurisdiction of the Supreme Court at any of the Presidencies leaving assets, such Supreme Court may, on the application of any person interested in the assets proving satisfactorily that the assets are in danger, order the Administrator General to apply for letters of administration, provided such have not been previously granted to any person.—13. Section 20 of Act XIX of 1841 repealed except as to acts done and orders which may have been made before this Act comes into force.—14. Upon the death of any person leaving property, it is lawful for the Court to order the Administrator General to take possession of such property, provided that the Court be satisfied that the property is in danger, and the Administrator General shall hold the same until the right of succession be ascertained, and charge one per cent as the rate of commission.—15. The Administrator General of the Presidency may be appointed Trustee under Act XVII of 1843.—16. If during the proceedings of the Administrator General any person shall appear as executor appointed by the will of deceased, the Court may grant probate of will to such executor. The cost of proceedings of the Administrator General to be paid out of the estate.—17. If no executor or next of kin shall appear or give the necessary security, letters of administration to be granted to the Administrator General.—18. Nothing in this Act to preclude the Administrator General for applying for letters of administration within one month from the death of deceased.—19. After revocation, letters of administration granted to the Administrator General to be deemed as to him to have been voidable only, except as to any act done by him, provided that no notice of a will, or of any other fact which would render letters of administration void, shall effect the Administrator General or any other person acting under him, unless proceedings shall be commenced to prove the will within the period of one month from the date of notice being given.—20. When letters of administration are revoked upon the proof of a will, all payments made or acts done under the authority of the Administrator General shall be deemed valid, notwithstanding such revocation.—21. If the executor or next of kin of the deceased shall establish his claim to probate of will or to letters of administration in preference to the Administrator General, any letters of administration which may have been granted to the Administrator General may be revoked, and probate granted to the executor, but no revocation shall take place, except in cases in which a will be proved, unless application be made within one year subsequent to the grant of letters of administration to the Administrator General.—22. The costs of obtaining administration, commission, &c., may, on revocation, be ordered by the Court to be paid to the Administrator General out of the assets.—23. Any payment made by the Administrator General to any person entitled to receive in distribution after the expiration of one year from the grant of letters of administration shall be allowed to the Administrator General against all claimants, of whose demands he shall not have had notice prior to such payments. Persons receiving payment improperly must however refund. No notice of claim to affect the Administrator General unless proceedings to enforce it be commenced within one month after the giving of such notice and be prosecuted without unreasonable delay.—24. Letters of administration to be granted to the Administrator General in the virtue of his office, and such letters to authorise him to administer to the estate, and on the death of an Administrator General the estate &c. to vest in his successor, and all documents, &c. &c., to be transferred to him.—25. All actions to be brought against the Administrator General in his representative capacity, and suit not to abate by reason of his death, but may be continued against his successor in office, as if no death had occurred. No such successor personally liable for any costs incurred prior to the order for continuing the action against him.—26. Administrators General to receive commission. The Administrator General of Bengal 3 per cent, and those of Bombay and Madras 5 per cent each.—27. The commission to cover the trouble of collecting the assets, as well as the responsibility of office, one half the commission to be retained on collecting the assets, and the remainder on distributing them. The commission retained to be deemed distributed.—28. The commission of the Administrators General of Bombay and Madras may be reduced and again raised by the Governor General, but it is not to exceed 5 per cent nor to be reduced below 3 per cent.—29. The Administrator General to defray all expenses not expressly provided for.—30. No person, except the Administrator General, to receive or charge commission. This is not to affect any executor in regard to legacy bequeathed to him as executor by way of commission.—31. The Administrator General to keep a separate account book for each estate.—32. Government have power to alter any rules not inconsistent with this Act, for the safe custody of assets, for the transmission of money and generally for the guidance of the Administrator General, and such rules as are now in force shall operate when not contrary to this Act.—33. Orders to be published in the Gazette, and the Administrator General is bound to obey and fulfil them.—34. The Administrator General shall, twice a year, on the 1st March and 10th August, exhibit in open Court a schedule showing the gross amount of all sums of money received and paid by him, and the schedules to be published in the Gazette fourteen days afterwards.—35. Government to appoint auditors.—36. Auditors to examine the schedule and to report to Government.—37. Auditors to have the power to summon the Administrator General or any other person, and to call for books, documents, &c., and every person refusing to attend shall be punishable in like manner, as if such refusal had been in contempt of the Supreme Court.—38. The cost of preparing schedule to be defrayed by the estates, and the Auditors to determine the proportion to be charged to each estate.—39. Auditors to report to Government if satisfied that the schedule is incorrect.—40. Government may refer such incorrect schedule to the Judge Advocate General, who shall, if he think fit, proceed against the defaulter.—41. The cost of reference and proceedings to be defrayed by the defendants or by the estate, and whenever any costs are recovered from the defendants, they shall be repaid to the estate if in the first instance they have been paid from it.—42. Any orders made by the Supreme Court shall have the same effect and be executed as decretal orders.—43. Whenever any person, other than an Hindoo and Mahomedan, dies, and shall, if a British subject, have left personal assets in any of the presidencies or provinces subject thereto, or shall, if not a British subject, have left personal assets within the local jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, and letters of administration shall not have been taken out for three months after his death, the Administrator General may, if satisfied that such effects do not exceed the value of Rupees 500, grant to any person claiming to be entitled to a principal share thereof certificates under his hand, entitling the claimant to receive the sums or securities for money to the value of Rupees 500.—44. The Administrator General not bound to grant certificate unless satisfied of the exactitude of claimant's demand.—45. Any such certificate with receipt annexed to be a sufficient discharge. This not to preclude any Administrator or executor from recovering from the person receiving the same the amount remaining in his hands, after deducting the amount of all lawful claims paid by him.—46. The Administrator General is not bound to take out administration on account of effects for which he has granted a certificate.—47. The Administrator General entitled to a fee at the rate of three per cent on each certificate.—48. False swearing co amount to perjury.—49. Any Administrator General who trades and traffics for his own benefit, or for that of any other person, except so far as shall appear necessary for the due management of estates, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and be liable to be punished by fine and imprisonment.—50. Accumulation of interest in the hands of the Administrator General Bombay to be transferred to Government.—51. The net proceeds of all estates in charge of the Administrators General of the Madras and Bombay Presidencies, to lapse to Government if not claimed within fifteen years.—52. If any person afterwards claims portion of the estate thus transferred, and prove his claim to the satisfaction of the Accountant and Administrator General, his claim shall be paid. If the claim be not established to the satisfaction of the Accountant General and Administrator General, the claimant may petition the Supreme Court, and the Court shall decide on the validity of the claim.—

53. Section 6, and Regulation 15 of 1806 of Bengal code, and Section 5, Regulation 4 of 1809 of Madras code, repealed.—54. Whenever a British subject shall die within the jurisdiction of a Zillah Judge, and no will shall be found, the Zillah Judge shall take charge of his effects and report the matter to the Administrator General.—55. In the construction of this Act the word "Governor" to mean the Governor General as far as relates Bengal, and the Governors of Bombay and Madras as far as relates to those presidencies.—56. Acts VII of 1849 and II of 1850 are repealed as to all letters of administration.—57. This Act not to apply to administration of estates of soldiers and sailors.—58. This Act to come into operation from 1st March 1855.

ACT XXII of 1855.

[Passed 13th August 1855.]

An Act for the Regulation of Ports and Port Dues.

1. Section 21, of Act I. of 1852, and Schedule C. appended to that Act, are repealed.—2. The operation of Regulation 7, 1801, of the Bengal Code, so much of Regulation 2, of 1810, of Bombay Code, as is still in force; Section 12, Regulation 3, 1833, Bengal Code; Act XIII of 1839, Section 39 of Act I of 1852, and Act XI of 1853, so far as it relates to the removal of any obstructions likely to affect the navigation of the Port of Bombay—shall cease when this Act comes into force.—3. The local Government of any part of the territories of the East India Company, may, with the sanction of the Governor General, declare any Port or any Channel or navigable River leading to such Port, within the territories subject to this Act, all the provisions of which will then apply to such Port &c., except those that are made specially applicable.—4. Every declaration by which any Port &c. shall be made subject to this Act shall define the limits of such Port &c.—5. The local Government may from time to time with the sanction of the Governor General alter the limits of such Port &c.—6. The local Government shall appoint an officer to be Conservator.—In Ports where there is a Master Attendant, he shall be the Conservator. In Ports where there is only a Harbour Master the office shall devolve on him. In Ports where there are both Master Attendant and Harbour Master, the latter and his subordinates shall be subordinate to, and subject to the control of the former. The Conservator himself to be subject to the control of the local Government or of any intermediate authority which that Government may appoint.—7. The local Government may, with the sanction of the Governor General, make Port rules for vessels entering and leaving Port, for regulating their berths in harbour, for striking their yards whenever it may be proper to do so, for the removal of anchors, taking in and discharging ballast, keeping a free passage, regulating the anchoring, moving warps, use of mooring buoys, rates for use of the same, cargo boats, fires and lights in harbour and for signal lights.—8. Every declaration or order of a local Government shall be published in the official Gazette of that Government. A copy will also be conspicuously placed in the office of each Conservator, and in the Custom House, if there be one.—9. Any person disobeying such order is liable to a fine of Rupees 100 for each offence.—10. The Conservator may give directions for carrying into effect any Port rule in force within his own Port.—11. Every person wilfully disobeying any lawful direction of the Conservator after notice shall have been given him, shall, for every such offence forfeit a sum not exceeding Rupees 100, and a further sum not exceeding Rupees 100 for every day on which he shall wilfully continue to disobey such directions. In case of continued disobedience it shall be lawful for the Conservator to cause all acts necessary to be performed, and to hire and employ persons for that purpose, and all reasonable expenses shall be paid by the offending party. Any written notice which shall be left on board a vessel with any person employed thereon, or which shall be affixed on a conspicuous place on board, shall be deemed to have been given to the master.—12. In all Ports it shall be unlawful to move vessels of 200 tons and upwards without a pilot on board, or to move a vessel of any burthen less than 200 tons and exceeding 100 tons without a pilot, unless with the authority in writing of the Conservator, and if any vessel be removed without authority, except in cases of urgent necessity, the master of such vessel shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding Rs. 200, unless on application to the proper officer he was unable to procure a pilot.—13. A master must permit warps to be made fast to his vessel for the purpose of warping any other vessel into Port under a penalty not exceeding 200 Rupees.—14. If a master suffer any hawser to be left out in a Port after sunset, whereby the safety of a boat might be endangered, he shall be liable to a penalty of 200 Rupees.—15. The Conservator may, in cases of urgent necessity, cut any warp or cable that may endanger the safety of any vessel.—16. If any person cause any obstruction or impediment to the navigation of any Port or River, he shall be liable to a penalty of 100 Rupees, and also to pay all reasonable expenses which may be incurred in abating the nuisance.—17. The Conservator may remove any timber or raft floating in a Port which shall impede the free navigation of any such Port, or any thing which shall obstruct any pier, landing place, or quay, and the owner shall be liable to pay all reasonable expenses.—18. If the owner neglect to pay for the removal within one week after demand, or within fourteen days after such removal shall have been notified in the Gazette, the Conservator may cause such timber or raft, or such portion of them as may be necessary to be sold, and the cost of removal shall be paid from the proceeds of sale. The balance of cash or remainder of timber, if any, shall be returned to the owner.—19. If any obstruction lawfully made exist in a port, the Conservator shall report the same for the information of Government, and with the sanction of Government remove such obstruction, making the party who suffers damage by such removal reasonable compensation. If any dispute shall arise it shall be determined according to the laws in force in the Presidency within which such Port is situated, relating to the determination of like disputes in case of land required for public purposes.—20. Any person who shall unlawfully lift, injure, loosen or set adrift any buoy &c., shall, in addition to the cost of damage done, be liable to a penalty of 200 Rupees, or to be imprisoned with or without hard labor for six months.—21. If a vessel gets foul of Government moorings, notice is to be given to the Conservator, and the master must pay such reasonable expense as may be incurred in clearing the same. If any person shall offend against the provisions of this section, he shall be liable to a fine of 100 Rupees for each offence.—22. Any person who shall unlawfully loose a vessel from her moorings without leave or authority from the owner or master, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding 200 Rupees, or at the discretion of the Magistrate be imprisoned with or without hard labor for a term not exceeding six calendar months.—23. Conservator may raise any wreck &c., impeding the navigation of the Port, and unless the expense be paid within one month after completion, may recover the same on behalf of Government as laid down in Section 39.—24. If any ballast or other thing likely to form a bank or shoal be without lawful excuse thrown into any Port, River or Channel, or upon any place ashore from which the same shall be liable to be washed into such Port or River, either by ordinary or by high tides or storms, the person thus throwing or depositing it, and the master of any vessel from which the same shall be thrown, shall pay a fine not exceeding 200 Rupees in addition to the expense incurred in removal.—25. If any person shall grave, beam or smoke a vessel in a Port contrary to the directions of the Conservator, every person and also the master of such vessel shall forfeit a sum not exceeding Rupees 500 for each offence.—26. If any person shall boil or heat any pitch, tar, resin, or other such combustible matter on board any vessel within a Port at a place where such act shall be prohibited by order of the local Government, or contrary to the order of the Conservator, every such person, as also the master of the vessel, on board which such offence shall be committed, shall be liable to a penalty of 200 Rupees.—27. If any person draw off spirits by candle light on board a vessel, every such person, as also the master, shall be liable to a fine of Rs. 200.—28. In every Port to which the provisions of this particular section is specially extended, vessels exceeding the burthen of 200 tons, shall be provided with a proper force pump and hose for the purpose of extinguishing fire, and the master of every vessel, who after having been required by the Conservator, shall without lawful excuse fail to provide one, or refuse to do so for seven days after such requisition, shall be liable to a penalty of Rs. 500.—29. The Government may order and fix the limits within which no vessel shall have on board any quantity of gunpowder, rockets or other combustible ammunition exceeding altogether fifty pounds in weight, whether manifested for delivery or not, and in such case Government shall appoint a proper place for the deposit of the excess, and an officer to receive the same.—30. Government will also fix the time and manner of landing and shipping powder, &c.—31. On such gunpowder &c. being landed the master to make a declaration that there is not then fifty pounds of ammunition on board his ship. Penalty for making false declaration not to exceed Rs. 200.—32. The officer with whom such gunpowder &c. is deposited to give a receipt and be responsible for it.—33. If from stress of weather ammunition cannot be landed, notice to be given to the Conservator.—34. The Government may also fix the time and manner in which vessels outward bound shall take in gunpowder.—35. The master of a vessel having prohibited gunpowder on board is liable to a penalty not exceeding Rs. 200, and the gunpowder may be seized and confiscated by the Conservator or by any Custom House Officer. Nothing in this to extend to any ammunition belonging to Government or carried for the use of Troops.—36. Guns not to be discharged in Port or from landing places, except loaded with powder and then only as signals of distress. Any person infringing this provision liable to the penalty of Rs. 50 for each offence.—37. In every Port to which the provisions of this particular section shall be specially extended, no person, unless duly authorised by the Conservator, shall search for lost anchors or stores under a penalty of Rs. 100.—38. If any anchor or stores be received by any officer employed by the local Government for that purpose, the local Government shall be entitled to receive a reasonable sum for salvage, having regard to the place of recovery. A Register to be kept of all property so recovered.—39. Wrecks or property recovered may be sold six months after recovery, if unclaimed or the owner refuses to pay the salvage.—40. In every Port, River &c., to which the provision of this particular section is specially extended, no person without the permission of the Conservator shall remove any rock, stones &c, from any part of the shore, and no person shall sink or bury any mooring, buoy, anchor or other thing likely to injury or to be used so as to injure such shore, except with the permission of the Conservator, and under the inspection of such person as he may appoint, under a penalty not exceeding Rs. 100 for each offence, in addition to the cost of repairing the injury done to the bank or shore.—41. The dues and fees at present collected at the several Ports may, during the period of one year from the passing of this Act, be still levied. No Port dues or fees shall hereafter be levied except under this Act or an Act hereafter to be passed for fixing the amount thereof. This is not to prevent the levy as heretofore of Light duties under Regulation 6 of 1831 of the Bombay Code, and Act XIII of 1854, or of fines or duties payable under Act XXVII of 1850.—42. Local Governments may from time to time vary Port dues, having regard to the receipts and charges of the particular Port.—43. Governments may also remit or reduce Port dues on any vessels during the period of one year after the passing of this Act.—44. Distinct accounts of Port dues to be kept, and an abstract thereof published annually, as soon after the 1st May as possible.—45. The Collector of Customs at each Port, or such other officer as the local Government may appoint to collect the dues. The officer collecting such Port dues to grant receipts for the same.—46. The master of a vessel to report her arrival to the Conservator within twenty-four hours, and if any master shall fail to do so, without lawful excuse, he shall be liable to a penalty of one hundred Rupees.—47. If any vessel shall be in Port without proper marks for distinguishing her draught of water, the Conservator may, in any case in which it may be necessary, cause the draught to be ascertained by means of hooking, and the master of such vessel is liable to pay the amount of that operation.—48. The tonnage of vessels liable to pay Port dues to be ascertained as follows :—If a British vessel registered or a vessel registered under Act X of 1841, or Act XI of 1850, or under laws for the time being in force, the Conservator may require the master of such vessel or any person having possession of the register of such vessel, to produce the register for inspection under a penalty of Rs. 100. If the master or owner refuse to produce the register or otherwise satisfy the Conservator, it shall be lawful for the Conservator to have the vessel measured and charge the expense thereof to the master or owner. If the vessel be not registered, and the owner or master fail to satisfy the Conservator according to the mode of measurement prescribed by the laws for regulating the measurement of British vessels, the Conservator may cause such vessel to be measured and charge the expense to the master or owner.—49. If the master of any vessel refuse to pay the Port dues, the Collector may seize and detain the vessel or any portion of her tackle, and in case any part of the Port dues, or of the costs of distress, and keeping of the same shall remain unpaid for the space of five days after arrestment, the Collector may cause the vessel and other things so distrained to be sold, and with the proceeds of the sale shall defray all charges, and return the balance, if any, to the master upon demand.—50. No Port clearance to be granted until the Port dues are paid.—51. The Conservator or any of his assistants, or the Collector of Customs may, if they suspect that an offence contrary to this Act is about to be committed, go on board any vessel within the limits of any Port, River and Channel. If the master or any other person in charge of the vessel refuse to allow the Conservator or Collector of Customs on board for the performance of any duty imposed by this Act, he shall, for every such offence, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 200.—52. If any person shall obstruct an officer in the discharge of his duty under this Act, or shall assault or ill-treat him, he shall for every such offence be subject to a penalty of Rs. 200.—53. All acts ordered to be done by this Act by any Conservator may, subject to his control, be done by any Harbour Master or assistant of such Conservator or Harbour Master. All persons authorised to do any thing by this Act may call to his aid such assistance as may be necessary.—54. If a vessel shall hoist unlawful colors in Port, the master of such vessel shall for every offence be liable to a penalty of fifty Rupees. Such penalty to be in addition to any other penalty which may be recoverable under statutes 17 and 18 Victoria Chapter 104, or any other statutes now or hereafter to be in force, and it shall be lawful for any officer of the Indian Navy within the limits of such Port or Channel, or for the Conservator of such Port, to enter such vessel and to seize and to carry away the unlawful color unlawfully worn thereon.—55. All offences against this Act to be punished summarily, and all fines imposed may be recovered by distress.—56. The Magistrate may order a convicted party to pay the costs of such conviction.—57. Damages &c not exceeding one thousand Rupees may be recovered and levied in the same manner as any penalty under this Act.—58. The costs of distress and sale may be levied in addition to such penalty.—59. The Magistrate to determine the amount to be levied in case of dispute.—60. This Act not to be extended to vessels of War, or to affect any private right of property, nor any Custom law or Regulation.—61. The East India Company are not answerable for the acts of the Conservator, Harbour Master, Pilot &c. Nothing in this section to protect the East India Company from an action in respect of act done by the order or with the sanction of Government.—62. The word "Magistrate" to include a Justice of the Peace of the Presidency Towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, or for the Settlement of Prince of Wales' Island, Singapore and Malacca, a Joint Magistrate, or any other person lawfully exercising the powers of a Magistrate.—63. When Ports are situated partly within the jurisdiction of one Magistrate, and partly within that of another, either of the Magistrates may take cognisance of offences against this Act.—64. Conviction to be quashed on merits only.—65. The words "local Government" to mean the person or persons for the time being administering the Executive Government of that part of the Territories of the East India Company in which the Port &c. is situated. The word "vessel" includes any thing made for the conveyance by water of human beings or property. The word "Master" shall mean and include any person having for the time being the charge of such vessel.

ACT No. XXIII of 1855.

[Passed 13th August 1855.]

An Act to amend the Law relating to the Administration of the Estates of Deceased Persons charged with Money by way of Mortgage.

1. If any person shall die possessed of, or entitled to any estate or interest in any land in the Territories of the East India Company, which shall at the time of his death be charged with mortgage debts, and such person shall not have by his Will or Deed signified any other intention, the heir to such lands shall not be entitled to have the mortgage debt discharged out of the personal estate, but the land so charged shall, as between the different persons claiming through or under the deceased person, be primarily liable to the payment of all mortgage debts with which the same shall be charged, every part of the estate, according to its value, bearing a proportionate part of the mortgage debts charged on the whole. Nothing in this to prevent the mortgagee of such lands to obtain full payment or satisfaction of his mortgage debt either out of the personal estate of the deceased or otherwise, or to affect the rights of any person claiming under any Will or Deed made before this Act comes into force.

ACT No. XXIV OF 1855.

[Passed 13th August 1855.]

An Act to substitute Penal Servitude for the Punishment of Transportation in respect of European and American Convicts, and to amend the Law relating to the removal of such Convicts.

1. After the commencement of this Act no European or American to be sentenced to transportation.—2. Instead of the term transportation as at present, the term Penal servitude is to be used, that is to say—Instead of transportation for seven years or not exceeding seven years, penal servitude for the term of four years. Instead of transportation exceeding seven years and not exceeding ten years, penal servitude for not less than four and not exceeding six years. Instead of transportation exceeding fifteen years, penal servitude for not less than six and not exceeding ten years. Instead of transportation for life, penal servitude for life.—3. Nothing contained herein shall interfere with a Court exercising its discretion as to alternative punishments.—4. If the sentence of death be commuted into penal servitude for life, all the provisions of this Act shall be applicable to such offender.—5. The Executive Government may direct Europeans and Americans under sentence of transportation to be kept in penal servitude for the shortest term of penal servitude substituted by this Act for a term of transportation to the same extent as that to which the offender was sentenced, or that portion thereof which he shall not have undergone.—6. Every person who shall be sentenced to be kept in penal servitude may, during the term of sentence, be confined in any prison the Governor General may direct, and may be kept to hard labor, and until he can be conveniently removed to such prison he may be imprisoned with or without hard labor. The time of such intermediate imprisonment and the time of removal from one prison to another to be reckoned in discharge of the term of sentence.—7. All Acts respecting Convicts under sentence of transportation or imprisonment with hard labor made applicable for the purposes of this Act.—8. The Governor of the Presidency in which an European or American is confined, whose term of penal servitude exceeds one year, may, with the consent of the Governor General, order the removal of such prisoner from one prison to another.—9. The Governor General may grant a license to be at large to any Convict under sentence of penal servitude.—10. So long as such license shall continue in force, the holder is not to be imprisoned.—11. In case of a revocation of any license one of the Secretaries to Government to write to a Justice of the Peace who is to apprehend the Convict and commit him to prison.—12. If a Convict to whom a license is granted violate its conditions, he shall be liable upon conviction to be sentenced to penal servitude for a term not exceeding the full term of penal servitude mentioned in the original sentence.—13. This Act not to affect the provisions of 12 & 13 Victoria, Chapter 43, or any Act of Parliament passed since 28th August 1833, or which may hereafter be passed.—14. Any sentence describing a person as an European or American shall for the purposes of this Act be deemed proof that he is one.—15. The word "European" to mean any European British subject.—16. This Act to commence on the 1st November 1855.

ACT No XXV. of 1855.

The principal Sudder Ameen shall commit for trial before the Court of Petty Session for the Zillah of Coimbatore, and shall give immediate notice of commitment to Session Judge.—3. The principal Sudder Ameen to exercise all the powers of a Criminal Court constituted according to Regulation 2, of 1827, and also all the powers of a Joint Magistrate, by appointment of Government Fort St. George.

ACT XXVI of 1855.

[Passed 19th September 1855.]

An Act to facilitate the payment of Small Deposits in Government Savings Banks to the Representatives of deceased Depositors.

1. If a depositor shall die leaving in the Savings Bank a sum of money not exceeding Rs. 500, and no probate of will &c. shall be produced to the Secretary of such Bank within two months from the depositor's death, it shall be lawful for the Secretary to pay the deposit to any person who shall appear to him entitled to receive the same, and such payment to be an indemnity to the Secretary from all further liability, but nothing contained herein is to preclude any executor or creditor from recovering from the party thus receiving.—2. The Secretary may take security from the person for the due distribution and administration of the money paid.—3. For the purpose of ascertaining the right of the claimant, the Secretary may administer an oath or affirmation. Any one giving false testimony wilfully to be deemed guilty of perjury.—4. After the passing of this Act no Administrator General shall grant a certificate under Section 43, of Act No. VIII of 1855, in respect of deposits in Government Savings' Banks. 5. This Act not to apply to money belonging to the estates of European soldiers, sailors, &c.

ACT No. XXVII of 1855.

[Passed 19th September 1855.]

An Act to enable the Banks of Bengal, Madras and Bombay to Transact certain business in respect of Government Securities and Shares in the said Banks.

1. In addition to the kinds of business in which the Banks of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay may be now engaged in, it shall be lawful for them to take charge of any Government securities or shares in any of the said Banks, to receive the interest and dividends on any such Securities or Shares, to invest any money deposited in the purchase of such Securities or Shares, to sell or transfer any such Securities or Shares deposited with them, or to receive any principal money that may become payable thereon, to re-invest the principal, interest, or dividends or the proceeds arising from such sale in Government Securities or Shares in any of the said Banks, or to hold or pay such principal, interest, dividends or proceeds, or according to the instruction of their constituents, and at their risk, to remit the same by Public or Private bills, whether payable in India or not, and to do all acts necessary and proper for the purpose of making such remittances. Provided that if any such remittance be made by Note or Bill of any of the said three Banks, the same must be payable in India on demand.

ACT No. XXVIII of 1855.

[Passed 19th September 1855.]

An Act for the repeal of the Usury Laws.

1. Section 30 of the Act of Parliament passed in the 13th year of the reign of George the Third repealed.—2. In any suit in which interest is recoverable the amount shall be adjudged as agreed upon by the parties, and if no rate shall have been agreed on, the Court shall assign one.—3. Whenever a Court shall decree that a judgment shall bear interest, it may order the interest to be calculated at the rate allowed in the judgment upon the principal sum adjudged, or at such other rate as the Court shall think fit.—4. A mortgage or contract for loan of money, by which it is agreed that the usufruct of any property shall be allowed in lieu of interest, shall be binding.—5. If a conditional sale of land take place under the Regulations of the Bengal Code, and a deposit be made of the principal sum, the amount of interest to be deposited shall be at the rate stipulated in the contract, and if no rate has been stipulated, the interest shall be twelve per cent per annum. In this latter case the amount deposited shall be subject to the decision of the Court, as to the rate at which interest shall be calculated.—6. In any case in which an adjustment of accounts shall take place between lender and borrower upon any conditional sale whatever which may be entered into after the passing of this Act, interest shall be calculated at the rate stipulated therein, and if no rate shall have been stipulated and interest be payable, the Court shall fix the rate.—7. Transactions entered into previously to the passing of this Act not to be affected by it.—8. This Act to come into operation from the 1st January 1856.

ACT No. XXIX of 1855.

(Passed 23d October 1855.)

An Act for amending Act No. XI of 1844.

1. The Board of Revenue may revise the proceedings of all officers employed in collecting Sea and Land Frontier Customs under Act No. XI. of 1844, and may annul or modify their orders.—2. The Board may pass orders in all cases in which, by the proviso in Section 17 Act No. XI. of 1844 relating to baggage, and by Secs. 26 & 61 of the same Act, the proceedings of Collectors of Customs are dependant on the orders of Government.—3. If imported goods are charged by a Collector of Customs with a rate of duty above what they are liable to on the declaration of the importer as the place of production, an appeal shall lie to the Board of Revenue, instead of to the Governor in Council as heretofore.

RULES.

In Cash Credit Accounts and Loans on Security of Deposit.

I.—No Credit or Loan on deposit of Government paper or Goods granted for a less sum than 500 Rupees.

II. No Credit or Loan granted for a longer period than three months.

III.—Credits and Loans exceeding three Lakhs of Rupees are subjects of special agreement.

IV.—Credits for any sum not exceeding three Lakhs of Rupees, are granted on the following terms, viz. If at the expiration of three months, it appears that the average daily debit balance is not equal to one half the Credit granted, Interest will be charged on one half the extent of the Credit ; but if the average daily debit balance is greater than one half the Credit, then Interest will be charged on the balance in the usual manner.

V.—No Credit granted for sums exceeding Fifty Thousand Rupees, except upon the above terms.

VI.—Credits for sums under Fifty Thousand Rupees granted without any stipulation as to the average balance, are charged Interest at 1 per cent. per annum, above the current rate.

* The Accountant General, Civil Auditor, and Secretary to Government Financial Department are ex-officio Directors of the Bank of Bombay.

VII.—In instances of Accounts being required to be closed before maturity, one day's previous notice to be given to the Bank Officers.

VIII.—Application, for Loans or Credits should be made before 3 p. m.

IX.—Goods deposited in the Bank Godowns for advances, are subject to Godown rent.

N. B.—The Bank rules in Current Deposit Accounts (except Nos. 1 and 5) are applicable to Cash Credit Accounts and must be strictly attended to.

In Accounts Current.

I.—No Deposit Account opened for a less sum than 200 Rupees.

II.—No Cash Credit Account opened for a less sum than 500 Rupees.

III.—The Bank furnishes Blank Cheques and Pass Books.

IV.—No money received or paid after 4 p. m.

V.—The Bank charges no commission, and allows no interest on Deposits.

VI.—No Cheque, upon which any alteration or erasure has been made, will be paid.

VII.—No Cheques for sums under Ten (10) Rupees will be paid except in cases where the Bank shall have to pay itself.

VIII.—The Bank does not allow any account to be overdrawn.

IX.—The Bank collects Bills, Cheques, &c., payable in Bombay, taking the notarial step in case of non-acceptance or non-payment. Cheques (excepting those upon the Bank itself) sent in after 3 p. m. for realization will be entered short, and sent out for recovery the following day.

X.—The Bank requires that Bills, Notes, &c., (not being demands at sight) intended for realization by the Bank, be sent in at least one day before the due date.

XI.—The Bank realizes, for Constituents, Interest on Government Securities and Dividends on Bank and other Stock, payable in Bombay.

XII.—The Bank does not correspond on matters relating to Current Accounts or Deposits. Parties are therefore requested to transact their business with the Bank in person, or by their agents.

XIII.—All Pass Books are required to be sent to the Bank at least once every month to be written up and compared with the Bank Ledgers; and on the Pass Books being returned to the Constituents it is particularly requested that all entries of Receipts and Payments will be carefully examined and any error pointed out at once, otherwise the delivery of the Pass Books will be considered a settlement of Account with the Bank as correct to that date.

N. B.—It is requested that parties will refrain from making entries in their Pass Books; all such entries will be made by the Bank on the Pass Books being sent in to be written up.

Actuary and Accountant.—Mr. John Colebrook.

Office Rules of the Government Savings' Bank.

1.—Mr. John Colebrook, the actuary, is authorized to sign all Receipts and Payments.

2.—The Bank opens for the transaction of business at 10 A. M., and closes at 4 to 4 P. M. every day, Sunday and Holidays excepted; on Saturday at 1 P. M.

3.—No deposit will be received of a less amount than one rupee, nor in excess of fifteen hundred.

4.—No copper coins will be received, nor other than Government paper.

5.—The Bank book must be produced whenever any sum is deposited or withdrawn.

6.—Individuals resident out of Bombay at places where there is no public treasury, and females who, according to the manners and custom of the country, do not usually make their appearance in public, are required to appoint (by letter addressed to the secretary) agents to carry on transaction on their behalf. Payments to these agents will only be made on the production of the Pass Books of the Principals (or the persons in whose names the Accounts stand), accompanied by orders signed by the latter, authorizing the payments. These orders, in cases of Native female depositors, are to bear the signatures of two respectable witnesses as to the signature of the drawers being genuine.

7.—Depositors resident at the Presidency, with the exception of the Native females aforesaid, are expected, on making withdrawals, to attend personally at the Bank, in all practicable cases.

8.—It having been observed that many persons deposit money about the beginning of the month, seemingly for safe custody, and then withdraw sums as they are required from time to time in the course of the same month, a practice which, pursued as a system, seems scarcely to come within the legitimate use or proposed ends of a savings' bank, the secretary is therefore empowered to close the account of any depositor who may use the bank as an agency by very frequently withdrawing portion of his deposits.

VII. That no two Members of one firm shall be on the Committee at the same time.

VIII. That all questions before the Committee shall be decided by a majority ; the Chairman having a second or casting vote in case of an equality of votes.

IX. That the Committee shall meet on Friday, or on such other day, as may be found by them most convenient, of every week, to receive and dispose of all communications and references, and to take under their consideration, generally, all matters embraced in the objects of the Chamber, and that their proceedings be laid on the table for the inspection of all Members, subject to such regulations as they may make.

X. That General Meetings of the Chamber be held from time to time as the Committee for the time being shall propose ; that a Special General Meeting shall be called by the Chairman, or by his order, five days after the receipt of a requisition from any three firms—members of the Chamber ; but that a majority of firms, represented by one or more members from each firm, being members of the Chamber, be required to constitute such General Meeting, and that the Annual General Meeting shall be held in the month of September, on such day as the Committee for the time being shall direct. Such Meeting to be convened on a five days' notice.

XI. That the Committee be authorized to provide suitable accommodation for the Meeting of the Chamber ; to pay all expenses of the establishment, and to control, generally, the management of the affairs of the Chamber.

XII. That all monies or funds of the Chamber, as received, be paid into the hands of the Treasurer or Treasurers for the time being, and that the same be available by cheques signed by the Chairman, or in his absence by the Acting Chairman for the time being, and by one other Member of the Committee.

XIII. That a Secretary be appointed by a majority of Members in such way as the Committee for the time being may point out ; that it shall be the duty of such Secretary to keep the records and accounts of the Chamber, to collect subscriptions, handing the same over to the Treasurer, to conduct correspondence, and to act generally under the directions of the Committee.

XIV. That all the proceedings of the Committee be subject to approval, or otherwise, of General Meetings duly convened.

XV. That any stranger engaged or interested in mercantile pursuits visiting the presidency, may be introduced as an Honorary Member, by any member of the Chamber, inserting his name in a book to be kept for that purpose, but that a residence of two months shall subject him to the rule for the admission of members.

XVI. That an annual report of the proceedings be made, and copies sent to similar associations in India, China, and elsewhere.

XVII. That the foregoing rules be added to or altered, only by a majority of Members of the Chamber.

XVIII. That the firms whose signatures are attached be considered as acknowledging the "Bombay Chamber of Commerce" as now constituted to represent their public and united interests.

XIX. That the foregoing rules be copied into a book to be kept with the records of the Chamber, and be signed by all the members, and that copies be printed and delivered to each firm.

TONNAGE SCALE.

At a General Meeting of Merchants, Ship-owners, and others, held in the Office of the Chamber of Commerce, Bombay, on the 16th March, 1852, convened by circular, under the direction of the Committee of the Chamber, to take into consideration a proposed New Tonnage Scale; John Parsons, Esq., Chairman of the Chamber, in the chair; a motion was made by John Smith, MEASUREMENT OF COTTON, WOOL, &C.

Rules and Regulations for the Measurement by Callipers, upon Shipments to Great Britain, of Cotton, Wool, Hemp, and other screwed and pressed Bales at this Port.

I. That Callipers shall from time to time be submitted to the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and, if found correct, shall be branded with a stamp bearing the name of the Chamber to indicate the same.

II. That if from use or otherwise, any Callipers should get out of order and be objected to, the party objecting shall send the Callipers to the Chamber for examination ; and should the objection be valid, the Chamber stamp shall be defaced by the Secretary ;—if, however, the objection is found to be groundless, the Secretary shall give a note to that effect, and the party objecting shall be bound by his decision.

III. That any Calipers found incorrect and on which the stamp has been defaced, may be re-stamped after adjustment.

IV. That no measurements shall be held good, except such as are taken by Callipers bearing the Chamber's Stamp.

V. That Cotton, Hemp, Wool, and other screwed Bales, shall be measured as follows, namely ; the greatest length to be first ascertained, and then the bale to be set on either end, as the shipmaster may wish, and cross measurements to be taken at top over the lashings, excepting the knots, and as near the centre of the bale as possible. That an average of 100 bales be struck by ascertaining the actual measurement of any 10 bales, and proportionately, the Shipper selecting and measuring one half, and the Shipmaster the other half. Should, however, any dispute or difficulty arise in the selection of bales, either party to have the option of measuring the whole quantity.

VI. That all produce subject to measurement be measured within the day on which it has been ordered to be screwed, provided the order has been given by the Shipmaster or Agents of the Vessel ; and that from 1st June to 15th October the same be measured at the Screws ; during the remainder of the year if required, on the Bunder, weather permitting. No Cotton, Wool or other goods to be measured until a Custom House pass has been obtained for the same.

VII. That, in the event of the Shipmaster not attending to measure at such hour as may have been appointed by him, the Agent or Agents of the ship do empower a person to attend on his behalf, whose sanction to the measurement shall be binding upon the Shipmaster.

JOHN PARSONS,—Chairman.

Great irregularity appearing to prevail in the arrangements of the departure of Native Boats from the Harbour of Bombay, the following rules are to be hereafter enforced.

I.—All Arab boats arriving in Bombay, not using a Pilot, shall report their arrival at the Police Office, when the names of the crew and passengers, and any extraordinary occurrence which may have happened, will be taken down, in writing, by the Deputy Superintendent of the Water Division, and a report made to the Senior Magistrate of Police.

II.—Two days previous to the departure of the Vessel, the Nacodah or Tindal shall report to the Police Office any casualty or other peculiar circumstance which may have occurred on board the vessel while it has been in the harbour, together with the names of all passengers proceeding in her; this information is, if necessary, to be verified by a search under the orders of the Deputy Superintendent of the Water Division.

III.—A certificate that this has been duly performed will be given by the Deputy Superintendent of the Water Division, and without which, the certificate from the Senior Magistrate of Police will be withheld.

IV.—All boats shall, one day previous to their departure, anchor as near as possible to the Police Hulk, in order that they may be overhauled, and their crews mustered before leaving the port.

V.—In reference to the embarkation of Pilgrims, the following rules will be in future observed.

VI.—When application for a clearance is made by the Nacodah of the vessel, he will deliver in a list of the intended Pilgrim passengers; an officer of the Water Division will then proceed on board and inspect the vessel, compare the list with the Pilgrims on board, and certify before the Senior Magistrate the state of the vessel, the correctness of the list, &c.

VII.—Until this is done, no certificate will be granted.

VIII.—The officer who proceeds on this duty of inspection should inspect personally the place allotted to each Pilgrim in the vessel, and to each Pilgrim should be allowed a space of five feet in length, and two and a half feet in breadth.

IX.—If the number of Pilgrims be reported by the inspecting officer as too great, steps should be taken to ensure the removal of the extra portion to some other vessel.

X.—Vessels should not be allowed to sail, leaving any of their Pilgrim passengers on shore.

XI.—The freight and passage money should also be ascertained and noted down to prevent imposition, and the food and water provided for the Pilgrims on board should form a subject of proper enquiry to the inspecting officer.

Double Tickets.—First Class will be issued between Bombay or Byculla and Mahim, Coorla, Bhandoop, Tannah, Perseek, Callian, and Wassind, at three-fourths of the ordinary double fare. These Tickets will be available for return the same day, and those issued on Saturdays will be available for return the same day or on the following Sunday or Monday; they are not transferable.

Children.—Infants in arms will not be charged; Children under 10 years of age, half price.

Special Trains may be engaged with one or more Carriages attached. For rates, or any other information, apply to the Traffic Manager.

Luggage.—100 lbs. weight of personal Luggage (not being merchandize, or other articles carried for hire or profit) will be allowed to each First Class Passenger, 40 lbs. to each Second Class Passenger, and 20 lbs. to each Third Class Passenger. All excess over these specified allowances will be charged—for the first 100 lbs., 1 pie per lb.; exceeding the 100 lbs., $\frac{1}{2}$ a pie per lb.; but no less charge than 2 annas in any case. The Company will only hold themselves responsible for Luggage when it is booked, and paid for according to its value; and they recommend Passengers to have their name and destination in all cases distinctly marked thereon, and to satisfy themselves that it is deposited in the Company's Carriages.

Under 10 lbs. Under 25 lbs. Under 55 lbs. Under 112 lbs.

N. B.—Consignments of Goods exceeding 112 lbs. in weight will be charged at these rates, the minimum charge being the highest Parcel Rate.

Parcels must be delivered at the respective Stations, ten minutes before the departure of the Trains by which they are to be forwarded.

Tickets must be shown to the Company's Servants, or delivered up to them when demanded. Parties not producing their Tickets are liable to be charged the fare from the most distant Station from which the Train may have started. They are only available on the day of issue. Any person who shall attempt to defraud the Company by travelling or attempting to travel upon the Railway without having previously paid his fare, or who shall in any other manner attempt to evade the payment thereof, is subject to a penalty not exceeding Fifty Rupees.

Smoking.—No person will be allowed to smoke in or upon the Carriages, or in the Company's Stations (except in places or Carriages which may be specially provided for the purpose), under a penalty not exceeding Twenty Rupees.

Dogs.—A charge will be made for Dogs, but they will on no account be allowed to accompany Passengers in Carriages.

Horses, Carriages and Palanquins, conveyed to and from Bombay, Tannah, Callian, and Wassind Stations. Passengers riding in their own Carriages pay First Class fare. Grooms, having the care of Horses, will be charged according to the Carriage they ride in; but when travelling in the same Box with their Horses, they will be charged Third Class fares. Carriages and Horses must be at the Stations fifteen minutes before the time of starting of the Trains, and if to be sent from Tannah, Callian, or Wassind, a notice of 12 hours is necessary.

Complaints.—The Company's Servants are strictly enjoined, on pain of dismissal, to observe the utmost civility towards Passengers, and any instance to the contrary if mentioned to the Inspector in waiting, or entered in the Complaint Book provided at each station, or addressed to the Traffic Manager of the Company, will be immediately attended to.

CONDITIONS, REGULATIONS, AND GENERAL INFORMATION.

PASSENGERS.

The Rates of Passage Money will be proportionately increased according to the class of accommodation required.

The Rates of Passage Money include Stewards' Fees, Table, Wines, &c., for First-class Passengers. Bedding, Linen, and all requisite Cabin Furniture are provided in the Steamers at the Company's expense, together with the attendance of experienced male and female Servants.

The expense of Transit through Egypt is also included in the Rates of Passage Money to India and China, with the exception of Hotel expenses, and also of Extra Baggage, Wines, Spirits, Beer, and Soda Water, all of which the Egyptian Transit Administration charge for separately.

Servants soliciting gratuities will be dismissed from the Company's service.

Passengers booked for places beyond Gibraltar desirous of visiting the ports of Spain and Portugal on their way, can do so without any additional expense, on pre-payment of the whole of the Passage Money, by leaving Southampton in the Company's Steamers on the 7th 17th, and 27th of every month, touching at Vigo, off Oporto, at Lisbon, Cadiz, and Gibraltar; and joining, at the last-named port, the Steamer for Malta and Alexandria, touching at Gibraltar. Any or all of the Peninsular ports may therefore be visited by staying ten days or more at each, and proceeding by successive Steamers, previous to joining the main line at Gibraltar. An opportunity is thus afforded to Passengers of visiting these interesting localities, without an additional expense on account of Passage Money.

Half the amount of Passage Money, when the passage exceeds £20, is required to be paid on securing passage, the balance a fortnight before embarkation.

Passengers not embarking after engaging passage, to forfeit the deposit of half the amount of Passage Money.

In case, however, of a Passenger being unavoidably prevented from availing himself of a passage at the period for which it is taken, a transfer of the passage can be effected to a subsequent Steamer, on due notice being given, without forfeiture of any portion of the deposit paid, and accommodation will be allotted as similar as circumstances will permit.

In remitting a sum of Money to the Company on account of passage, if by Cheque it is recommended, for the sake of security, to write across the Cheque the name of the Company's Bankers, "Messrs. Williams, Deacon and Co.;" if by order, Letter of Credit, or otherwise, it should be in favour of the "Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company."

The Company's Steamers sail from and return to Southampton.

Passengers should embark at Southampton not later than noon on the day of sailing.

Passengers must comply with the regulations established on board the Steamers for general comfort and safety.

No Berth or Cabin is to be occupied by a Passenger without application to the Agent on shore, or to the Purser on board. It is to be understood that a Passenger occupying a Cabin of two or more berths, on the departure of the Vessel (unless he shall have paid an additional sum for its exclusive occupation), is not to object to the vacant Berth or Berths being filled up at the intermediate Ports, if required.

Railway Trains from the Waterloo Bridge Station, to Southampton, in the Morning, at 7.0, (7.15 Parl.), 9.40, (10.15 mail), (11 o'clock Express). Afternoon, 1, 3 (Express), 4 & 5 o'clock. Evening, 30 minutes past 8 o'clock—mail. Sunday Trains, morning, at 9.15, and 10.15. Afternoon, 5 o'clock. Evening, 30 minutes past 8 o'clock—mail. Passengers should be at the Station at least a quarter of an hour before the Trains start.

First-class Passengers are allowed, in the Company's Steamers only, on either side of the Istmus, 3 cwt. of personal Baggage free of Freight, and Children and Servants 1½ cwt. each.

A Passenger taking a whole Cabin will be entitled to take in the Steamers, free of Freight, one-half more Baggage than the regulated allowance.

The charge for conveyance of extra Baggage, should there be room in the Vessel, will be at the rate of £1 per cwt. between England and Malta, or Alexandria; £2 per cwt. between Suez and India, and £3 per cwt. between Suez, the Straits, and China.

Passengers for India and China will have to pay the Egyptian Transit Administration in Egypt 14s. per cwt. for conveyance of Baggage through, should it exceed, for First-class Passengers, 2 cwt. each, and Children and Servants 1 cwt. each.

The Egyptian Transit Administration have given notice that they will not forward any Package of Baggage exceeding 80 lbs. weight, and measuring more than length 3 ft.—breadth 1 ft. 3 in.—depth 1 ft. 2 in. with the Passengers to Suez. A departure from this regulation will cause a detention in Egypt to such Packages of a fortnight.

All Baggage intended for Transit through Egypt should be packed in strong and well-secured packages, in order to avoid breakage or damage en route.

The Company cannot engage to take any excess of Baggage over the regulated allowance, unless shipped at Southampton three days before sailing, and Freight paid thereon.

All Baggage for the Ports of the Mediterranean, India, and China, must be shipped not later than noon on the day previous to sailing, except Carpet Bags or Hat Boxes. All other Baggage received on board on the day of sailing will be considered as extra Baggage, and charged Freight as such.

The Insurance of Baggage can be effected on very moderate terms.

Passengers embarking at Marseilles for India and China, can have their Baggage conveyed by the Steamer from Southampton free of charge.

Passages embarking at Marseilles for Malta and Alexandria can have their Baggage conveyed by the Steamer from Southampton at the rate of 10s. per cwt.

Passengers outwards, proceeding via Trieste, and joining the Steamers of the Peninsular and Oriental Company at Suez, and Passengers homewards who have been conveyed to Suez in the Peninsular and Oriental Company's Steamers, can ship their Baggage by the Company's vessels from Southampton to Alexandria, and vice versa, subject to the following charge, payable in advance :—

For the regulated allowance of 3 cwt., 10s. per cwt.	} Exclusive of the charge for transport made by the Transit Administration of Egypt
For any excess over 3 cwt., 20s. per cwt.

N. B.—The Baggage of Passengers proceeding via Trieste must be shipped at Southampton so as to ensure its arrival at Alexandria a fortnight in advance of the Passengers to whom it may belong. Non-compliance with this regulation is likely to involve loss or detention of the Baggage in Egypt.

Passengers taking parcels or articles of merchandise in their Baggage will incur the risk of seizure by the Customs' Authorities, and of detention for Freight by the Company's Agents. Every package of Baggage should have the owner's name and place of destination distinctly painted upon it.

Baggage can be occasionally had up from the baggage-room during the passage by application to the Captain.

No Trunks or Boxes allowed in the Saloon or Cabins.

INDIA, &c.

Passengers leaving Southampton by the Company's Steamers on the 4th and 20th of the month, for Aden, Bombay, Ceylon, Madras, and Calcutta, arrive at Gibraltar about the 9th and 25th of the month, and, after staying there, say twelve hours, proceed to Malta, at which port they await the arrival of the Company's Steamers from Marseilles, with the London Mail of the 10th and 26th; after receipt of which they sail at once for Alexandria, arriving there, under ordinary circumstances, in about fourteen days from Southampton.

BOMBAY.

Passengers for Bombay are now conveyed throughout by the Steamers of the Peninsular and Oriental Company, a Line of Steam Vessels having been established between Bombay and Aden by this Company. These Vessels will leave Bombay for Aden on the 3rd and 17th, and Aden for Bombay about the 26th and 12th of every month. The passage between these ports will occupy seven days under ordinary circumstances.

STRAITS AND CHINA.

Passengers for the Straits and China are conveyed only by the Steamers leaving Southampton on the 4th, and Marseilles on the 11th of the month.

At Point de Galle (Ceylon) they are transferred into a Steamer leaving for China about the 7th, and arriving at Penang about the 12th, Singapore the 14th, and Hong Kong the 22nd of the subsequent month.

The Company having established a communication between Hong Kong and Shanghai, Passengers can now be booked throughout to the latter Port.

The expenses of Transit through Egypt, paid by the Company to the Egyptian Government are included in the Company's rates of Passage Money.

At Suez, Passengers embark, by Steam Tender, on board one of the Company's Steamers, which leave about the 20th and 6th of the month, arriving at Aden about the 25th and 11th; (Passengers for Bombay are here transferred into one of the Steamers on the Bombay and Aden Line), Point de Galle, Ceylon, about the 6th and 23rd, (Passengers for the Straits and China are here transferred into one of the Steamers on the Bombay and China Line), Madras about the 10th and 27th, and finally at Calcutta about the 14th and 3rd of the month.

TRANSIT THROUGH EGYPT.

Passengers are conveyed through Egypt by the Transit Administration of his Highness the Pacha.

The mode of transit is as follows:—1st, Alexandria to Caffer-el-esh on the Nile, a distance of 60 miles, by Railway.

2nd, Thence to Boulac (the port of Cairo), a distance of 80 miles, by the river Nile, in Steamers.

3rd, Cairo to Suez, a distance of about 80 miles, across the Desert; this part of the journey is performed in carriages.

The entire journey from Alexandria to Suez is performed with ease in about sixty hours, including a night's rest at Cairo, and a sufficient time for refreshment and repose at the central station between Cairo and Suez.

The following are extracts from the Tariff of the Transit Administration:—

"Passengers are furnished with three meals per diem, during the time they are en route; free of charge; but their expenses at Hotels must be defrayed by themselves, as also Wines, Beer, &c., during their entire transit.

"The Portmanteaux, Trunks, Carpet Bags, &c., of the Passengers, must bear the name and destination of the owners; such inscription to be legible and well secured.

"On the arrival of each Steamer the Officer of the Administration will attend to receive the Luggage of Passengers

"The Administration will not be responsible for any loss or damage of Luggage, nor for unavoidable detention.

"The Administration will at all times endeavour to employ the easiest means of conveyance, such as Donkey Chairs, &c., for invalids and sick person."

REGULATIONS.

OBJECTS.

I. The encouragement of the cultivation of Medical Science and its collateral branches, by discussion at periodical meetings, and by the publication of original communications.

CONSTITUTION.

II. The Society is composed of Ordinary, Corresponding, and Honorary Members.

ORDINARY MEMBERS.

III. Under the head of Ordinary Members are to be classed all who contribute to the funds of the Society, and all who are admitted in accordance with Regulation VII.

IV. All Medical men residing in India, who can produce certificates of a regular medical education, are eligible as Ordinary Members.

V. Medical Officers of Her Majesty's or the Honorable Company's Service are elected Ordinary Members of the Society, on application by letter addressed to the Secretary.

VI. Qualified Medical Practitioners, not belonging to Her Majesty's or the Honorable Company's Service, are elected by ballot at the ordinary meetings of the Society, and a majority of three-fourths of the Members present is necessary to secure the election.

VII. Assistant Surgeons, on first entering the Bombay Medical Service, are considered Ordinary Members of the Society, free of the payment of admission fee and annual subscription, and continue so for a period of two years, after which should they not intimate their wish to be considered Ordinary Members by payment of the regulated admission fee and annual subscription they are considered to have withdrawn from the Society.

PAYMENTS.

VIII. Ordinary Members pay an admission fee of Rs. 5, and an annual subscription of Rs. 12, payable in advance in the month of January of each year.

IX. Ordinary Members, absent from India, are not chargeable with subscriptions for the period of their absence.

X. Ordinary Members, neglecting to pay their annual subscription for two successive years, are considered to have withdrawn from the Society, and are liable to have their names erased from the list of Members, under a resolution passed to that effect at an ordinary meeting of the Society.

CORRESPONDING MEMBERS.

XI. Ordinary Members, on retiring from service in India, on being proposed and seconded at an ordinary meeting of the Society, are eligible, by ballot, as Corresponding Members. A majority of four-fifths of the Members present is necessary to secure their election.

HONORARY MEMBERS.

XII. Medical men of celebrity, not residing in India, are eligible as Honorary Members. On being proposed and seconded at an ordinary meeting of the Society, they may be elected at the next meeting by the unanimous consent of the Members present.

ELECTION OF OFFICE-BEARERS.

XIII. The Committee of Management of the Society consists of eight Members, elected annually from among the Ordinary Members resident in Bombay, by the general vote of the Ordinary Members residing under the Government of Bombay.

XIV. The Voting Lists are circulated in the first week of November of each year, and the result of the election is declared at the annual meeting of the Society.

XV. In the event of vacancies occurring in the Committee between the periods of election, such vacancies to be filled up in rotation by the individuals who commanded the number of votes next to those of the Members returned at the last election.

XVI. A President and two Vice-Presidents of the Society are elected annually from among the Members of the Committee of Management by the Members of the Society present at the meeting at which the annual election of the Committee is declared.

XVII. The Secretary of the Society is elected biennially from amongst the Ordinary Members resident in Bombay at the annual meeting held in the month of January of alternate years, or, on the occurrence of a vacancy, at any other ordinary meeting of the Society.

COMMITTEE OF MANAGEMENT.

XVIII. The Committee of Management have the general direction of the affairs of the Society, and decide on what communications are to be published in the Transactions of the Society. They keep minutes of all their proceedings which are entered into the Minute-book of the Society, and read at the following ordinary meeting.

XIX. When questions of importance to the stability and interests of the Society arise, they shall be submitted by the Committee for decision to the Ordinary Members residing under the Government of Bombay. The majority of votes necessary to decide any question, to be determined according to its importance, and fixed at the time by the Committee.

XX. It shall form part of the duty of the Committee to give due consideration to all suggestions offered by Members of the Society.

PRESIDENT AND VICE-PRESIDENTS.

XXI. The President shall take the Chair, and conduct the business at all meetings of the Society.

XXII. In the absence of the President, one of the Vice-Presidents shall take the chair, and conduct the business of the meeting; and in case neither be present, the senior Member at the meeting shall preside.

SECRETARY.

XXIII. The Secretary is a Member of the Committee of Management ex officio.

XXIV. It shall be his duty to enter into the Minute-book of the Society minutes of the proceedings of all meetings and transactions of the Society, and, in communication with the Committee of Management, to conduct the details of business, and carry on the correspondence of the Society.

XXV. The Secretary shall prepare an annual statement of the receipts and disbursements of the Society, to be laid before the annual meeting in the month of January of each year.

XXVI. To enable the Secretary to perform these duties, a suitable establishment is entertained, under the sanction of the Committee of Management, confirmed at an ordinary meeting of the Society.

MEETINGS.

XXVII. Ordinary meetings of the Society are held in Bombay on the first Saturday of every month, except in April, May, and June.

XXVIII. The chair being taken, the order of business shall be as follows :—

1. The minutes of the last meeting, and those of subsequent Committee meetings, to be read and confirmed.
2. The announcement and election of new Members, in accordance with Regulations V. VI. and VII.
3. The election of Corresponding and Honorary Members.
4. The reading of letters, and the discussion of any ordinary business of the Society which may be before the meeting.
5. The announcement of presents and donations.
6. That of papers and dissertations received since the last meeting.

XXIX. After the announcement of the papers and dissertations, the President shall call upon the Secretary to read one or more of them, and shall subsequently invite the Members to discuss any particular part of them which they may consider deserving of remark.

XXX. No new business shall be introduced until that which is before the meeting has been concluded.

PAPERS AND DISSERTATIONS.

XXXI. All papers and dissertations presented to the Society to be considered the property of the Society.

XXXII. The Transactions of the Society are published by the Secretary in communication with the Committee as often as circumstances will admit.

XXXIII. A copy of each publication is presented to the Honorary and Corresponding Members of the Society, and to every Ordinary Member who, at the time of publication, is a contributor to the funds of the Society.

N. B.—All communications addressed to the Secretary or Treasurers must be prepaid.

Members are requested to pay the amount of their subscriptions to Messrs. LECKIE and Co., Treasurers to the Society.

RULES AND REGULATIONS.

1st.—This Society, established for the purpose of encouraging and instituting geographical researches in Western Asia, and the country contiguous, is denominated the Bombay Geographical Society.

2d.—The Society shall consist of Honorary and Ordinary Members.

3d.—Every candidate for admission, whether as an ordinary or honorary Member, must be proposed, and seconded at one Meeting of the Society, and balloted for at the next.

4th.—No person shall be considered duly elected, unless he unite in his favour the votes of three-fourths of the members present.

5th.—An annual subscription, amounting to Rs. 15, to be paid by all members in advance, on the 1st of April of each year.

6th.—Members may compromise, by a single payment of Rs. 100, instead of a payment of Rs. 15 annually.

7th.—Of the Office-Bearers and Committee.—The Office-bearers shall consist of a President, a Secretary, and Treasurer, permanent—three Vice-Presidents, and a General Committee of Management (consisting of 20 Members,) to be chosen annually.

8th.—That the Committee of Management and other Office-Bearers of the Society, eligible annually, shall be chosen by general vote of the ordinary Members, to whom voting lists shall be forwarded three months previous to the Anniversary Meeting, at which the returns shall be scrutinized and announced.

9th.—Two Sub-Committees, consisting of six Members each, shall be annually selected from among the Resident Members of the General Committee, at the first meeting after the annual election of the latter. The Sub-Committees having the superintendence of all the internal management, account, &c., of the Society, shall be denominated the "Sub-Committee of Accounts": the other shall conduct the correspondence of the Society, and suggest plans for attaining its scientific objects—to be called "The Sub-Committee of Correspondence."

10th.—The Secretary shall be a Member of the Committee of Management ex-officio.

11th.—Each Sub-Committee can meet independently of the other for the purpose of discharging business especially entrusted to it, and the meeting shall be summoned by a Circular from the Secretary.

12th.—The Sub-Committee of Accounts shall lay before the Annual General Meeting, to be held in May or April of each year, the state of the Society's Funds. The Sub-Committee of Correspondence shall lay before the same meeting a list of the scientific contributions made to the Society during the year.

13th.—Each Sub-Committee shall elect, from among its members, a President to preside at its meetings.

14th.—The President shall preside at the General Meetings of the Society, to conduct the proceedings, and give effect to the resolutions.

15th.—The Vice-Presidents shall preside at the General Meetings in the absence of the President, and in rotation at Meetings of the General Committee of Management.

16th.—The Secretary shall attend the meetings of the Society and those of the Committee, to record their proceedings and conduct the correspondence. He shall also superintend the persons employed by the Society, and under the control of the Committee for managing the accounts, shall superintend the expenditure of the establishment.

17th.—The Treasurer will receive, through the Secretary, all monies due to the Society, and make payments out of the funds of the Society, according to the directions of the Secretary.

18th. The Society shall meet on the 3rd Thursday of every month, at 4 P.M.

19th.—The Notice shall be given either at a previous Meeting or to the Secretary, of any motion or subject of discussion intended to be brought before the Meeting at least one week before hand, and all matters of business &c., intended to be brought before the Society, shall be notified to the members by printed circulars.

20th.—Each member may introduce a friend to all ordinary meetings of the Society.

21st.—The Society shall present copies of its transactions to the principal Public Libraries in India, Europe, and America, and exchange them with Societies and with such authors or publishers as are disposed to bestow works of equivalent value, or nearly so, on the Library of the Society.

THE LIBRARY.

The following are the rules in force for the management of the Library.—

1.—The Books of the Geographical Society's Library may be taken out by Members, subject to the following exceptions and restrictions.

2.—No Book shall be delivered out by the Librarian, unless the Member requiring it shall either sign the entry in the Register, or send a receipt to him.

3.—No Member shall keep any Book longer than fourteen days.

4.—Any Member requiring a Book which has been delivered out, may insert, or cause to be inserted, his name in a Register kept for that purpose, and it shall be the duty of the Librarian to apply for it as soon as the period specified in the above rule has expired, and on receipt, to forward it to the first on the list of applicants if there be more than one.

5.—Not more than three volumes to be taken out at one time by any Member.

6.—The Librarian shall inspect carefully every Book at the time it is returned, and if damaged, shall report the circumstance to the Secretary.

7.—Any book lost or damaged, shall be charged to the Member in whose name it stood in the Register, at the invoice price, or such price as shall be fixed by the Committee of Management.

8.—Members leaving Bombay, are required to return before their departure, to the Library, all Books belonging to it in their possession,—and no Book shall be carried out of Bombay.

9.—No Map, Chart, Atlas, or Book of reference, shall be taken out, without express permission from the Committee of Management, except Book of reference for 48 hours, on the order of the Secretary to that effect.

10.—Any Member may propose Books, Charts, Maps, Atlases, to be added to the Library, by inserting their names in a Register kept for that purpose, and they will be ordered or not as the Committee may deem expedient.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.

The Right Honorable the Governor in Council is pleased to publish for general information the following Despatch from the Honorable the Court of Directors, and its accompaniments :—

PUBLIC DEPARTMENT.

No. 57 OF 1854.

OUR GOVERNOR IN COUNCIL AT BOMBAY.

We have much satisfaction in transmitting to you the accompanying copy of a letter from the Secretary to the Royal College of Surgeons, announcing the resolution of the Court of Examiners to place the Grant Medical College at Bombay on the list of Colonial Colleges and Schools recognized by the Royal College of Surgeons.

We are, &c.

(Signed) J. OLIPHANT,

„ E. MACNAGHTEN,

And other Directors.

London, 20th December, 1854.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF SURGEONS OF ENGLAND,

23rd November 1854.

SIR,—In reply to your letter dated the 8th of August last, upon the question of the recognition by this College of the Grant Medical College at Bombay as a School of Medicine and Surgery, I am desired to acquaint you that the Court of Examiners of this College, having taken the subject into further consideration, have resolved that the Grant Medical College at Bombay be added to the List of Colonial Hospitals and Schools recognized by this College ; and that accordingly Certificates of attendance upon the Hospital Practice thereof, and of attendance upon the Lectures of the several Professors in the Medical School of the said College, will be received, upon the conditions of the enclosed Regulations relating to Colonial Hospitals and Schools.

I am, Sir

Your most obedient Servant,

(Signed) EDMUND BALFOUR,

Secretary.

SIR JAMES C. MELVILL, K.C.B.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF SURGEONS OF ENGLAND.

Regulations of the Council respecting the Professional Education of Candidates for the Diploma of Member of the College.

- I. Candidates will be required to produce the following Certificates, viz:—
 1. Of being twenty-one years of age.
 2. Of having been engaged during four years in the acquirement of professional knowledge.
 3. Of having studied Practical Pharmacy during six months.
 4. Of having studied Anatomy and Physiology, by attendance on Lectures and Demonstrations, and by Dissections, during three Winter Sessions.
 5. Of having attended, during two Winter Sessions, Lectures on the Principles and Practice of Surgery.
 6. Of having attended, during one Summer Session, Lectures on Materia Medica, and Lectures on Midwifery ; Practical Midwifery to be attended at any time after the conclusion of the Session.
 7. Of having attended at least one Course of Lectures on the Practice of Physic and one Course on Chemistry.

8. Of having attended at a recognised Hospital or Hospitals in the United Kingdom the Practice of Physic during one Winter* and one Summer† Session.
9. And of having attended, during three Winter and two Summer Sessions, the Practice of Surgery at a recognised Hospital or Hospitals in the United Kingdom.
10. And of having attended Clinical Lectures on Medicine and Surgery in conformity with the following Regulations of the Council :—

The Certificates of attendance on the Medical Practice of a Hospital, commencing on or after the 1st of October 1854, must be accompanied by Certificates of attendance on Clinical Lectures on Medicine during such attendance :—and the Certificates of attendance on the Surgical Practice of a Hospital, commencing on or after the said 1st of October 1854, must be accompanied by Certificates of attendance on Clinical Lectures on Surgery during such attendance.

Such Courses of Clinical Lectures shall, in England and in the Colonies, consist of not less than one Lecture on Medicine and one Lecture on Surgery in each week during the Summer and Winter Sessions ; and in Scotland and Ireland shall consist of such number of Lectures as may be respectively required by the Royal Colleges of Surgeons of Edinburgh and Ireland.

These Lectures shall be additional to Clinical Instruction given in the Wards, and shall have especial reference to cases at the time, or previously under observation in the Hospital.

The course of study hereby prescribed is required to be observed by Candidates who shall have pursued their studies in Hospitals and Schools in England. Those Candidates who shall have studied in Scotland are required to bring Certificates of having attended Lectures on the Institutes of Medicine during one Winter Session, and on Anatomy during two other Winter Sessions, and on Demonstrations and Dissections during three Winter Sessions (The foregoing Regulations being in all other respects observed). Candidates who shall have attended Lectures on Materia Medica in the University of Dublin will be allowed to bring Certificates of such attendance during the Winter Session.

II. Members or Licentiates of any legally constituted College of Surgeons in the United Kingdom, and Graduates in Surgery of any University requiring residence to obtain Degrees, will be admitted for examination on producing their Diploma, Licence, or Degree, together with proof of being twenty-one years of age, and of having been occupied at least four years in the acquirement of professional knowledge.

III. Graduates in Medicine of any legally constituted College or University requiring residence to obtain Degrees, will be admitted for examination on adducing, together with their Diploma or Degree, proof of having completed the Anatomical and Surgical Education required by the foregoing Regulations, either at the School and Hospital of the University where they shall have graduated, or at one or more of the recognised Schools and Hospitals in the United Kingdom.

* The Winter Session comprises a period of six months, and, in England, commences on the 1st of October and terminates on the 31st of March.

† The Summer Session comprises a period of three months, and, in England, commences on the 1st of May and terminates on the 31st of July.

No Provincial Hospital will be recognised by this College which contains less than 100 Patients, and no Metropolitan Hospital which contains less than 150 Patients.

IV. Candidates who shall have attended at recognised Colonial Hospitals and Schools,* the Medical and Surgical Practice and the several Courses of Lectures, with the Demonstrations and Dissections required by the foregoing Regulations, will be admitted for examination upon producing Certificates of such attendance, together with Certificates of having attended in London, during one Winter Session, the Surgical Practice of a recognised Hospital, and Lectures on Anatomy, Physiology and Surgery, with Demonstrations and Dissections.

V. Certificates will not be recognised from any Hospital unless the Surgeons thereto be Members of one of the legally constituted Colleges of Surgeons in the United Kingdom; nor from any School of Anatomy and Physiology or Midwifery, unless the Teachers in such School be Members of some legally constituted College of Physicians or Surgeons in the United Kingdom, nor from any School of Surgery, unless the Teachers in such School be Members of one of the legally constituted Colleges of Surgeons in the United Kingdom.

VI. Certificates will not be received on more than one branch of Science from one and the same Lecturer: but Anatomy and Physiology—Demonstrations and Dissections—will be respectively considered as one branch of science; and in those Schools in Scotland or Ireland in which such division of those subjects is sanctioned by the College of Surgeons in each Kingdom, the Institutes of Medicine,—Anatomy, Demonstrations, and Dissections,—may be separately certified.

VII. Certificates will not be received from Candidates who have studied in London, unless they shall have registered their Tickets at the College, as required by the Regulations, during the last ten days of January, March, and October, in each year; nor from Candidates who have studied elsewhere, unless their names shall duly appear in the Registers transmitted during such studies from their respective Schools.

By Order of the Council,
(Signed) EDMUND BALFOUR,
Secretary.

N. B.—In the Certificates of attendance on Hospital Practice and on Lectures, it is required that the dates of commencement and termination be clearly expressed; and no interlineation, erasure, or alteration will be allowed.

Blank Forms of the required Certificates may be obtained on application to the Secretary, to whom they must be delivered, properly filled up, ten days before the Candidate can be admitted to examination; and all such Certificates are retained at the College.

By Order of the Right Honorable the Governor in Council,
W. HART,
Bombay Castle, 31st January 1855. Secretary to Government.

* The recognition of Colonial Hospitals and Schools is governed by the same Regulation with respect to number of Patients, to Courses of Lectures, and to Physicians, Surgeons, and Lecturers, as apply to the recognition of Provincial Hospitals and Schools in England.

Hours for opening and closing the House.—The Club House shall be open for the reception of Members at 6 o'clock in the morning, and closed at 12 o'clock at night, after which hours the lights in the sitting rooms are not to be kept burning.

No Supper will be furnished after 12 o'clock.

The lights in the Billiard Rooms are not to be kept burning after 12 o'clock at night.

No play of any kind shall be allowed on Sunday.

Smoking is allowed at half past 8 o'clock P M from 1st October to 31st March, and from 1st April to 30 September at 9 o'clock, in the new dining-room.

RULES FOR THE ADMISSION OF GUESTS.

1. That every Member shall be at liberty to entertain one or more Guests every evening at the Club, provided he has given notice on the previous day to the Steward of the number of the Visitors he is about to introduce.

2. That every Member entertaining a Guest at the Club shall be responsible for the supplies furnished to him and for all damages done by him.

3. No Stranger, unless he has dined at the Club, shall be admitted to the Billiard Room, nor will any Stranger be allowed to engage the Billiard Table, except through his Host, or some other Member of the Club.

4. It shall be competent for the Committee, from time to time, to refuse the admission of persons not fitted to be admitted as Guests, or who have misconducted themselves as such.

5. It shall be competent for the Committee, from time to time, by a written order to the Steward, to refuse the right of introducing Guests to any Member in arrears to the Club, or who shall have refused to conform to these Rules, or have introduced improper persons, or otherwise have abused the privilege of introducing Guests.

6. A Book shall be kept to be called the Visitors' Book, in which the name of the Visitors each day shall be entered, and of the Members introducing them respectively, and the Book shall be taken to every Member introducing a Guest, and such Member shall sign his name opposite to that of his Guest.

The Managing Committee consider that the Rule requiring the previous notice is one which it is absolutely necessary to preserve; for otherwise the Members of the Club may be put to the greatest inconvenience by an unforeseen number of Guests coming to share in supplies procured for Members only.

The Managing Committee are anxious, however, to press the Rule no further than the necessity which led to its existence requires, and the Steward has accordingly received orders to inform any Member introducing a Guest without the notice required by Rule 1, whether the Guest can be provided with dinner or not, it being understood that the right of a Guest so introduced to dine at the Club must be subordinate to that of all the Members present that evening to have their tables in the first instance properly supplied.

SAILING REGULATIONS.

I. No Yacht to be allowed to put out, or take in, ballast during the Race.

II. Any Yacht going on shore, or otherwise in difficulty, must be got off by means actually on board ; any assistance forfeits all claim to prize.

III. No Yacht to use oars, sculls, or poles.

IV. Each Yacht must go fairly round the Course ; and in the event of not doing so, or touching any Boat, Buoy, or Flag, used to mark out the course, or running foul of any another Yacht wrongfully, will forfeit all claim to the prize.

V. Yachts on the Port tack must invariably give way to those on the Starboard ; and in all cases where a doubt shall exist of the Yachts on the Port tack weathering the one on the Starboard, the Yacht on the Port tack shall give way ; if not, and the one on the Port tack runs into the other, the owner shall forfeit all claim to prize, and be compelled to pay damages.

VI. Yachts going free must invariably give way to those by the wind on either tack.

VII. When two Yachts by the wind approach danger so close to each other that the leewardmost cannot tack clear of the weathermost, and by standing on might foul or go on shore, such weathermost Yacht must, on being requested to put about, do so immediately ; the leewardmost vessel must, however, in this case, tack at the same time as the one she hails.

VIII. Each Yacht must carry her Distinguishing Flag, which must not be hauled down except when she gives up the Race :—the Flag must be clearly distinguishable.

K.T.S., Knight of the Portuguese Order of the Tower and Sword.
K.C.T.S., Knight Commander of the Portuguese Order of the Tower and Sword.
K.S.F., Knight of the National and Military Order of St. Ferdinand of Spain.
K.L.S., Knight of the Persian Order of the Lion and Sun.
G.C.H., Knight Grand Cross of the Royal Hanoverian Guelphic Order.
K.C.H., Knight Commander of ditto ditto.
K.H., Knight of ditto ditto.

The letters H., M., G., P., C., S., A., and P.U., affixed to Officers' names, signify that they have passed an Examination in the Hindoostanee, Mahrattée, Guzerattee, Persian, Canarese, Scindee, Arabic, and Punjabee languages. H.H. affixed to Officers' names signify that they have passed Examinations in the Hindoostanee and Hindée languages.

Sur. denotes Officers qualified as Surveyors.

C. Eng. denotes Officers qualified as Civil Engineers.

Assa. denotes that Medical Officers have studied the art of Assaying Precious Metals, and have furnished Certificates of Qualification for conducting the duties of the Assay Department.

Pas. denotes Medical Warrant Officers who have passed the Examination prescribed in Articles 25 and 35 of the Rules relative to the Subordinate Medical Department.

The following marks indicate the Commissioned and Warrant Officers entitled to wear Medals for the several Battles and Engagements below particularized:—

≡ Burmah. () Cabul. □ Candahar. ○ Candahar, Ghuznee, and Cabul. ● China. Ghuznee. ∞ Ghuznee and Afghanistan. = Ghuznee and Cabul.	[] Hydrabad. € India. ○ Khelat-i-Ghilzee. ‡ Meeanee. § Meeanee and Hydrabad. + Mooltan. ++ Mooltan and Goozerat. ¶ Persia (Gold).
--	--

All Officers are accounted for in their respective Regiments; and the absence of Staff Officers is more particularly explained in the Departments to which they belong.

The Lace of the Cavalry is "Silver," and of the Artillery, Engineers, and Infantry (with the exception of the 4th Rifles), "Gold."

GRADATION LIST

OF THE

HON'BLE EAST INDIA COMPANY'S COVENANTED CIVIL SERVANTS
ON THEIR BOMBAY ESTABLISHMENT,

As the same stood on the 1st January 1856.

The Rank of Civil Servants commences from the date of arrival at Bombay of the first Writer appointed in Europe, of the same season of which they are Writers; and, being thus determined, all Civil Servants belong, during the first four years, to Class VI.;—from the fifth to the end of the eighth year, to Class V.;—from the ninth to the end of the twelfth year, to Class IV.;—from the thirteenth to the end of the twentieth year, to Class III.;—from the twenty-first to the end of the thirty-fifth year, to Class II.;—and from and after the thirty-fifth year, to Class I.

The date of commencement of service is that of the Covenant, or of the appointment by the Court of Directors, whichever may be the earlier. This is denoted by the letters c or a in the fourth column.

The letters A, C, G, H, M, P, or S, prefixed to the names, signify that the parties have passed an examination in the Arabic, Canarese, Guzerattee, Hindoostanee, Murathee, Persian, or Sindee Languages.

* The Superintending Surgeon of Guzerat draws the same, under special sanction of the Honble Court.

* * A Brigadier commanding a Division, while the Incumbent is employed on Field service, receives Rs. 500 per mensem, in addition to his salary as Brigadier.

Queen's Officers, on the Personal Staff of the Governor the Commander-in-Chief, or General Officers, are not entitled to Indian allowances when they do not belong to Regiments in India.

All Staff Officers, whose stations are 200 miles from Bombay, receive Field allowances.

(a) These officers, if at Bombay, on duty, receive Presidency House-rent, (which includes Regimental House-rent and Tentage to those entitled to that allowance,) viz. Field Officer Rs. 160 per mensem, Captain or Surgeon Rs. 125, Subaltern or Assistant Surgeon Rs. 90.

Commissioned Officers stationed in Bombay and the Remount Agent receive half tentage in addition to Presidency House-rent.

Field Officers on the staff at the Presidency, who draw only Half Batta with Tentage and Regimental House-rent, and whose allowances would be reduced by their being placed on Superior House rent continue to draw their allowance as heretofore.

(b) These Officers receive Ordinary House rent in lieu of Regimental House-rent, or Tentage or both, as per G. G. O 29th October 1839. Those incumbents on that date, who would suffer a loss thereby, continue to draw Regimental House rent with Tentage.

Ordinary House-rent for a field Officer, Rs. 120 per mensem; Captain and Surgeon, Rs. 90; Subaltern and Assistant Surgeon Rs. 60.

SIXTH BOMBAY LAUDABLE SOCIETY.

AT a General Meeting of the Subscribers to the Fifth Bombay Laudable Society, held on the 15th instant, at the office of the Secretaries, it was determined to establish a Sixth Society in succession to the Fifth, which closes on the 31st instant.

The Sixth Bombay Laudable Society will commence on 1st January 1854, and the following regulations are published for general information :—

REGULATIONS OF THE SIXTH BOMBAY LAUDABLE SOCIETY.

Article 1st. The object of this Association is to provide a fund for the Insurance of Lives. This fund is to be porportioned into Shares, and an individual may subscribe for a certain number of shares, either on his or her own life, or on the life of any other individual. In the former case, the general estate of the deceased, or such person or persons as he, or she may, by will or assignment, have appointed, shall benefit in the event of a lapse; in the latter, the person who may have subscribed on the life of the deceased shall benefit to the extent of the shares subscribed for, unless in either case such shares be especially declared at the time of subscription, to be for the benefit of any other person or persons, or be subsequently made over, according to the form hereafter prescribed, for the benefit of any other person or persons, in which case such person or persons shall be entitled to benefit in the event of a lapse and no other.

2nd. In the case of a person subscribing on the life of another, the party subscribing and not the party on whose life the subscription is made, shall be considered a Member of the Society, and have a voice in the management of its concerns. Co-partners or other bodies of individuals may hold one or more shares jointly on any given life, either for their own benefit or for that of others; but in such case the parties uniting in the subscription, shall not be entitled each to a separate voice in the concerns of the Society, but must vote collectively, or by the deputation of one of their number, on all matters thereto relating.

3rd. The great principle of this Society is the equal division of its accumulated funds among the parties entitled to benefit by lapse of lives subscribed on, according to the number of shares which those parties may respectively hold.

4th. The Sixth Laudable Society shall commence on the 1st January 1854, and shall close on the 31st December 1858, at midnight.

5th. Not more than four shares can be subscribed for on any one life, whether those shares be held by one or more individuals.

6th. Persons shall be at liberty to subscribe for half, quarter, or eighth shares either on their own lives or on the lives of others, and in case of lapse the estate of the deceased, or the parties for whose advantage the subscription is declared to be, or who may have become entitled to such advantages by will or assignment, shall benefit by the fund in a like fractional proportion.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

7th. The following are the rates of subscription to be paid half-yearly on each share, half, quarter and eighth share, according to the ages of the parties whose lives are subscribed on, at the time of admission into the Society, viz.—

8th. All persons entering the Society between the 1st January and the 30th of June in the year 1854, shall pay on admission, their half year's subscription in advance, or for the remaining part thereof, computing the same from the date of their becoming Members, until the 1st July 1854, and paying for any number of days less than a month, one whole month's subscription. The subsequent half-yearly subscription shall be payable on the 1st July and 1st January in each year, commencing with the 1st July 1854.

9th. All persons who may be admitted into the Society subsequent to the 30th June 1854, shall in the first place pay their proportion of the current half-yearly subscription, to be calculated agreeably to the above rule from the first day of the month of their admission, until the next following period of payment, and in the second place, shall pay a Premium of admission, to be regulated agreeably to the following scale viz:—

ADVERTISEMENTS.

For admission during the second half { A premium equal to 25 per cent on of the first year of the Society. { one half year's subscription.

During the 2nd year	50 per cent on ditto
" 3rd year	72 per cent on ditto
" 4th year	84 per cent on ditto
" 5th year	60 per cent on ditto

10. Five persons residing in Bombay shall be nominated Directors of the Sixth Laudable Society, whose business it shall be to superintend and control the management of the funds, to examine the accounts, to decide on all applications for admission, and generally to transact the current business of the Society. The concurrent opinion of three of the five Directors shall be decisive on all matters relating to the concerns of the Society, not at variance with these fundamental Regulations, which can be altered only by a majority of the Members residing in Bombay. No question, however, shall be proposed to the Members at large without the concurrence of the whole of the Directors. In case of the death or removal from Bombay of any of the Directors, another or others shall be chosen by a majority of the members of the Society then residing in Bombay, or by a majority of such members residing in Bombay, as may attend at a general meeting to be convened for that purpose. The sum of Fifteen hundred Rupees annually shall be set apart from the Funds of the Society for distribution among the Directors.

11th. A meeting of the Directors of the Society shall be convened annually between the 1st of January and 30th April in each year, when a Statement of the Accounts of the Society shall be laid before them by the Secretaries, and no account which shall once have been submitted to and passed by the Directors at such meeting, not less than three then attending, shall afterwards be called in question, unless for some special and manifest error to the amount of five hundred Rupees or upwards.

12th. In the election of Directors, as well as on all other questions relative to the concerns of the Society which may be proposed for the decision of the Members at large, a Member holding four shares on any one Life shall be entitled to three votes, one holding three shares to two votes, and one holding any number of shares less than three to one vote only. Members holding shares on different lives, shall be entitled to the number of votes proportioned to the number of shares which they hold on each life.

13th. Messrs W Nicol and Co shall officiate as Secretaries and Treasurers to the Society, and shall charge a Commission of Five per cent on all receipts of subscriptions to be paid out of the funds of the Society, and they shall charge a fee of one Company's Rupee on each certificate of admission and one Rupee for the Register of each assignment of shares, or reduction of interest.

14th. The Secretaries and Treasurers shall act in all cases according to the orders of the Directors.

15th. All applications for admission into the Society from persons residing at any of the Queen's or Company's settlements, shall be made by letter to the Secretaries, and shall be accompanied by a Certificate of Health, (signed by a Medical Gentleman in the Queen's or Company's Service, a member of the Royal College of Surgeons, or by a Medical Gentleman to the satisfaction of the Directors,) and by a Declaration made and signed by the individual on whose Life the shares are applied for, such Letter, Certificate, and Declaration to be according to the following forms, printed copies of which may be had on application to the Secretaries, viz:—

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Form of Letter for persons subscribing on their own lives.

(Place and date.)

To Messrs. W. Nicol and Co.,

Secretaries to the Sixth Bombay Laudable Society.

Gentlemen,

I request to be admitted to hold———Shares in the Sixth Laudable Society on my own Life for the benefit of my Estate after my death, or such person or persons as I may hereafter appoint by Will or Assignment, for which purpose the prescribed Certificate and Declaration of Health are herewith transmitted.

I am, Gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

Form of Letter subscribing on the lives of others.

(Place and date.)

To Messrs. W. Nicol and Co.,

Secretaries to the Sixth Bombay Laudable Society.

Gentlemen,

I request to be admitted to hold———Shares in the Sixth Laudable Society, on the life of _____ for the benefit of _____ for which purpose the prescribed Certificate and Declaration of Health are herewith transmitted.

I am, Gentlemen,

Your obedient servant.

Form of Certificate of Health.

This is to certify that to the best of my knowledge and belief _____ is at this date free from any dangerous malady whatever, and that _____ from my acquaintance with his constitution and general state of health for _____ and also from the result of the enquires which I have this day made of him in person, I consider him to be a good life.

I further declare that the said _____ is unacquainted with the nature of the above report, which I have sealed before delivering. Given under my hand this——day of——one thousand eight hundred and——

Form of Declaration of Health.

I———do solemnly and sincerely declare, that I have this day presented myself for medical examination to———Surgeon; that I have truly and faithfully answered all questions put to me by him; that I have not wilfully or designedly concealed any circumstance relative to my health, habits, or constitution, and that I am unacquainted with the contents of the Sealed Report which he has made regarding my health to the Secretaries of the Sixth Bombay Laudable Society.

I further declare that I have not since my infancy been subject to Fits, and that I have had the Small or (Cow) Pox; that my age does not at this time exceed——years and——months; that I have been about——years and no more resident in India; that my present rank, occupation or profession is that of _____, and that my usual place of abode is _____, and I make this solemn Declaration conscientiously, believing the same to be true, and by virtue of the provisions of an Act made and passed in the sixth year of the reign of His late Majesty King William the Fourth, intituled "An act to repeal an Act of the present Session of Parliament intituled an Act for the more effectual abolition of Oaths and Affirmations taken and made in various departments of the State and to substitute Declarations in lieu thereof, and for the more entire suppression of voluntary and extrajudicial Oaths and Affidavits, and to make other Provisions for the abolition of unnecessary Oaths."

The above Declaration must be declared to before a Magistrate or Notary Public, who shall attest the same by his countersignature, or if the party be residing at a station where there is no Magistrate, it may then be attested by the principal Civil or Military Officer of the Station. In case of an application for shares on the life of a Minor under fourteen years of age, a Declaration to the same effect as above, must be produced from the Parent, Guardian, or next of kin of the party or the person under whose protection he or she may be residing.

17th. In all cases it shall rest with the Committed to judge whether, with reference to the circumstances of situation and distance the interval which may have elapsed between the date of any Certificate and Declaration of Health, and the time of their presentment be reasonable or otherwise, and to admit or reject such Certificate and Declaration accordingly. In no case, however, is the party subscribing to have any claim on the funds of the late Society in the event of life lapsing between the date of the certificate and the date on which the applicant may be admitted a Member, unless where the Directors may at the instance of such applicant have originally permitted the subscription to take effect from the date of the Certificate and Declaration of Health, which it shall at all times be in their discretion to do, on the arrears of subscription being paid up. In the event, however, of a person dying between the dates of his Certificate and Declaration of Health and his admission, and the Insurance on his life was not effected from the date of Certificate and Declaration, the amount of premium paid for such Insurance shall be refunded.

19th. All subscriptions (except the first, which is to be paid on admission) shall be paid within one month of the time at which they become due. If not paid within that time, a penalty of two per cent, on the amount of the instalment shall be added, and any Member who shall not have paid his subscription (together with the said penalty) within two months of the day on which his subscription shall have become due, shall be considered to have absolutely and entirely forfeited his share or shares.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

21st. No subsequent increase of shares on any life shall be allowed, except on fresh application to be again approved of by the Directors and accompanied by a Certificate and Declaration as above. The subscription on the additional shares to be according to the age of the party at the time of making the new application.

22nd. Any member desiring to transfer his interest in any share, or shares, which he may hold in the Society, shall be at liberty to do so by an endorsement to be written on the original certificate; which endorsement shall not be valid until the certificate bearing the same shall have been produced to the Secretaries, and the transfer duly registered by them in a general book of registry to be kept in the office of the Society.

23rd. As often as a sum exceeding Rupees four thousand shall be collected, it shall be laid out in the purchase of Government paper, Bank shares, or in Loans secured by a deposit of Government paper to be granted under the control and authority of the Directors, it being clearly understood that in all cases of Loan the saleable value of the Deposit shall be more than sufficient to cover the sum lent. All public securities purchased for the Society shall be especially endorsed to two or more of the Directors, and the interest only shall be made payable to the Secretaries and Treasurers.

24th. The person or persons entitled to benefit by the lapse of a Life in the Society shall, in making application to the Secretaries, in writing, accompanied by such proof of the casualty as may be satisfactory to a majority of the Directors, receive instalments as follows:—At or after the expiration of the first year from the commencement of the Society at the rate of one thousand rupees on each share:—At or after the expiration of the second year from the commencement of the Society at the rate of one thousand Rupees on each share:—At or after the expiration of the third year from the commencement of the Society at the rate of two thousand rupees on each share; which he or they may have held, or be entitled to on the lapsed Life, provided that, in the opinion of the Directors, the state of the Funds of the Society will admit of so large payments being made. Should the Directors think, however, that the Funds will not allow of immediate payments of these amounts, then such sum or sums only shall be advanced as they may deem proper, and the balance of the prescribed advance or advances shall be paid so soon as the Directors shall be of opinion that the Funds will safely admit of it.

25th. Arrears of subscription or any other sum due to the Society by the holders of any share or shares on a lapsed Life shall be deducted from the amount of the advance.

26th. At the expiration of this Society on the 31st December 1838, it is proposed that a new Society, on a similar plan, but subject to such alterations as experience may suggest, shall be immediately instituted, into which Society all members then holding shares on unexpired Lives in the Sixth Laudable Society shall be at liberty to transfer those shares without any renewed certificate of health, in consideration of a sum of money to be paid to such new Society out of the Funds of the Sixth Laudable Society, and without taking into account any proportion of the advances previously paid by the Society on account of the lapsed Lives. To entitle Members of the Sixth Laudable Society to transfer the shares held by them in the ensuing or Seventh Laudable Society, no regular form of application shall be necessary, but a Certificate of admission into the new Society shall be immediately issued to them on the simple payment of the usual half year's subscription in advance, subject, however, to the established penalty of two per cent. in the event of the payment being delayed beyond the term of one month, from the commencement of the new Society, and to the entire forfeiture of the privilege of transfer (excepting on a new application to the Directors, accompanied by the regular Certificate of Health, &c.) if not made good within the second month from that period. The rates of subscription for Members transferring their shares from the Sixth to the Seventh Laudable Society shall be according to the respective ages of the parties on whose Lives the shares are held on the first January 1859.

27th. It is proposed to render the institution of the Laudable Society permanent by establishing a new Society, in succession to each Society, as it expires.

28th. Upon the transfer to the Seventh Laudable Society of any share or shares in the Sixth Laudable Society, which may stand assigned by endorsement or otherwise, for the benefit of any other person or persons than the person or persons originally interested therein, or upon any subsequent transfer of any share or shares so assigned from the Seventh or any succeeding Society to the Society next ensuing, such share or shares shall continue in all respects subject to the lien of the Assignee, and shall be declared to stand for the benefit of such Assignee in the Certificate of admission to be issued from the new Society.

29th. Within one month and fifteen days after its termination, the accounts of the Sixth Laudable Society shall be made up, and the balance of Funds actually on hand, after deducting for the new Society 12 per cent. on the amount of subscriptions received during the term of the Society, be divided by the number of shares held on Lives subscribed upon in this Society, which may have lapsed between its commencement and its close, and the parties entitled to benefit by such lapses shall each receive his or their proportion of the said Funds, according to the number of shares respectively held by them on the several lapsed Lives, the holders of half, quarter or eighth shares divided according to those fractional proportions. The sum of Rupees 10,000 shall be considered as the maximum payable on any one lapsed share, and any surplus shall be carried to the credit of the new Society.

30th. With respect to any lapses of Lives in this Society, which may not be ascertained on or prior to the 15th of February 1859, such lapses shall be at the risk of the next ensuing or Seventh Laudable Society, and the advances of Dividends to which the parties claiming to benefit by such lapses may be entitled, shall be paid out of the Funds, and agreeably to the Regulations of the said ensuing Society on the lapses being ascertained; but it is hereby expressly provided, that notice of such lapses, accompanied by satisfactory proof of the same, must be given to the Secretaries of the Seventh Laudable Society within one year from the expiration of the Sixth Society on the 31st December 1858: and that in the event of the party or parties interested neglecting to prefer his or their claim on account of any such lapse within the period here prescribed, he or they shall entirely forfeit all right and title to any benefit whatever, by reason of such lapse from the funds of the Seventh or any succeeding Society.

31st. The following Gentlemen have this day been nominated Directors of the Sixth Laudable Society, viz.—

RICHARD WILLIS, Esq.

T. S. COWIE, Esq.

W. F. HUNTER, Esq.

ROBERT STRONG, Esq.

FRAMJEE NUSSERWANJEE, Esq.

Any mis-statement in the Declaration of Health makes the Policy void, as does suicide, in cases where a person effects an Insurance on his own life (unless the Certificate be specially endorsed over for the benefit of a Creditor or Creditors and duly registered) but not so in case of Creditors effecting an Insurance on the lives of their debtors.

With similar attempts at deception, other Individuals style themselves "Sole Successors to Price & Gosnell," "Sole Manufacturers of Price & Gosnell's celebrated Perfumery," &c. &c. to deceive and to kidnap the unwary, well knowing they never were Partners in, nor in any way whatever connected with, the firm of PRICE & GOSNELL, otherwise than as servants. NAPOLEON PRICE & Co. feel bound in justice to themselves and the Public, to publish the following DECLARATION, MADE BEFORE THE LORD MAYOR AT THE MANSION HOUSE. BY MR. REES PRICE, THE SURVIVINE PARTNER OF THE LATE FIRM OF PRICE & GOSNELL.

I, REES PRICE, the Surviving Partner of the LATE firm of PRICE & GOSNELL, do hereby declare that during the partnership of PRICE & GOSNELL, I was the Sole Manufacturer of those articles of Perfumery which were so much approved of by the Public; MR. GOSNELL attended only to the books and accounts. And I further declare that my son, NAPOLEON PRICE, has been, from the age of thirteen years, practically instructed by me in the compounding and manufacture of all those Perfumes, Soaps, &c., known as 'PRICE & GOSNELL's,' and that he is the only person in England capable of producing them in every respect, exactly as if they were made by myself; and I further declare that my Son, NAPOLEON PRICE, having acquired a thorough knowledge of Chymistry, at the Royal College of Chymistry, London and at the College de France, Paris, has made of late years, many valuable improvements in all the branches of his Profession, particularly his new method of Soap-making. And I make this solemn Declaration, conscientiously believing the same to be true, and by virtue of the provisions of an Act, made and passed in the fifth and sixth years of the reign of his late Majesty, King William the Fourth, for the abolition of unnecessary Oaths, and to substitute Declarations in lieu thereof.

Declared at the Mansion House, in the City of London, this sixth day of March, 1854, before me,

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

ASTONISHING CURE OF ERYSIPELAS.

Copy of a Letter from Henry Brooks, Esq., of Simla, dated the 22nd of March, 1854.

To Professor HOLLOWAY,

SIR,—Having been almost a martyr from the effects of Erysipelas, and tried every remedy likely to benefit me, without success; I determined to make use of your invaluable Ointment and Pills, although when I commenced with them I certainly was in a most deplorable state, the whole of my body being covered with large purple blotches, quite unsightly, in addition to the unpleasant feeling of itching and burning which affected me both night and day, rendering my life a misery to me, as well as all around, so severe was the attack. After taking your Pills and using your Ointment for a few weeks, a visible improvement took place, and I felt considerably better, at the lapse of three months every symptom of my disorder disappeared, and I now enjoy the best of health, thanks to you and your medicines.

I remain, Sir, your most obedient Servant,
(Signed) HENRY BROOKS.

THE FRIEND OF ALL. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

MIRACULOUS CURE OF GENERAL DEBILITY.

Translation of a letter from Baboo Sorabjee Chetty, of Allahabad, dated 17th October, 1854.

To Professor HOLLOWAY,

SIR,—For a number of years I suffered most intensely from general debility, disordered state of the liver, together with melancholy and drowsy feelings, which were horrible in the extreme. I had advice from some of the most clever native physicians, but strange to state, my malady only increased. Being a strict Mussulman, I knew not what to do, (as the preparations of Europeans are forbidden by our holy religion,) but after wavering between two opinions for some time, I determined to try your Pills, and by the grace of Allah, they have been the means of my restoration to health. Although fifty-eight years of age, I am now as agile as a boy, and have renewed vigor in every sense of the word.

Accept my Salams, and believe me, years' till death,
(Signed) BABOO SORABJEE CHETTY,

OFFICE IN MADRAS.

Bentinck's Buildings, 1st Line Beach.

The Directors have much pleasure in announcing to Policy Holders and the Public in India, that the operations of this Branch of the Society continue to be attended with remarkable success.

At the date of the Balance Sheet under observation for the year ending the 30th June 1855, less than four years had elapsed since this Company issued their first prospectus in India. During that period Assurances have been effected for Rs. 1,46,64,616, or nearly One million and a half Sterling, upon which the Annual Premiums amount to Rs. 6,99,440-2-0, or about £79,000 Sterling.

The annals of Life Offices, whether Indian or English, do not furnish another instance of the establishment of so large a business within the same space of time.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

ABSTRACT OF INDIAN PROSPECTUS.

SECURITY.

The Capital of the Society is half a million Sterling, fully subscribed by an influential body of proprietors, in Ten Thousand shares of Fifty Pounds Sterling each.

THE PREMIUMS.

The circumstances under which the Premiums for India were computed are these :—
Under authority from the Court of Directors of the Honorable East India Company of date September 1847, Mr. Neison, the Resident Actuary of the Society, was permitted to examine the records of the India House with a view to his completion of a Report on the state of the Bengal Military Fund. The Premiums of this Society were computed from the date thereby afforded. No other Life Assurance Company has enjoyed similar advantages in this respect. The following are the rates of this Company for Assurance of Rs. 1,000, or £100 Sterling :—

Rates for India.										Rates for Europe, or other climates equally healthy.

Rates of premium for intermediate ages ascertained on application to the Agents.

THE PROFITS

are ascertained at regular intervals of five years, and an entire two-thirds divided amongst policy holders on the participating scale.

At the twelfth Annual General Meeting of the Society, held in the Offices in London on 24th November 1853, the first Bonus on Indian policies arising out of the profits up to the 30th June 1853, was declared, and nearly two per cent per annum was added to the amount assured by policies effected on the participating scale.

The following example will illustrate the effect of the Bonus on Indian policies :—

Age.	Date of Policy.	Original sum assured.	Bonus given.			Sum now assured under policy.
		Rs.	Rs.	s.	p.	Rs.	s.	p.
49	31st October 1851,	10,000	385	14	8	10,385	14	8
44	4th May 1852,	10,000	385	12	0	10,385	12	0
27	30th Dec. 1852,	10,000	141	4	8	10,141	4	8

When it is considered that at the date of the last division of profits on policies effected at this Branch, the Society had been less than two years established in India, that the rates of the Company for the whole term of life on the participating scale are lower than those of any other office, in some cases actually 25 per cent below what is exacted, these results cannot be considered as other than satisfactory. The next division of profits will be made in 1858.

THE GENERAL ADVANTAGES

Afforded by the Society, not already noticed, may be briefly enumerated as follows :—

Policies issued for any amount from Rs. 500 to Rs. 50,000

Policies held by parties on their own lives indisputable on any grounds whatever, except fraud or non-payment of the premiums, but subject to forfeiture during the period of twelve months from their date in the event of the life assured dying by his own hands, or by duelling, or by the hands of justice.

Assignment of Policies registered without charge, and from the date of such registration, the Assurance not subject to forfeiture on any ground whatever, except fraud or non-payment of the due premiums.

Age and interest admitted on the policies in all cases where satisfactory proof is given.

Assurances may be revived within three months of the date on which the premium became due, on satisfactory proof of health and payment of moderate fine.

Policies on which five annual premiums have been paid purchased at a fair value.

Two-thirds of the estimated value will be advanced on the security of policies on which at least five years' premiums have been paid.

Civil rates charged on the lives of Military Officers holding civil appointments, for the term of such appointments.

Immediate reduction to English rates on the Assured proceeding to Europe or any other part of the world, which the Directors may consider equally healthy, there permanently to reside; and if such residence be temporary only, the said reduction to take effect after one year's residence.

The whole of the funds of the Indian Branch invested in Government real and Indian securities.

Claims paid three months after proof of death, or discounted immediately after such proof, if preferred.

Policies may, at the time of being effected, be made payable in London at the rate of two shillings sterling per Company's Rupee.

The following is a summary of what are more particularly the advantages to European residents in India.

Notwithstanding the material modifications which have been made in the terms of other offices since this Society commenced operations in India, the rates of premium which remain unaltered will be found generally lower than those of any other Company, and especially favourable for Military men.

There is no charge for entry money, policy, or medical fees, nor any expense whatever beyond the premium, in obtaining policies.

Premiums may be paid in one sum, or by yearly, half yearly, quarterly, or monthly payments.

Fifteen days of grace allowed for payment of premiums; and in the event of death taking place during the currency of these days, the risk binding on the Company if payment of the premium be made before the days of grace expire.

Where the Proposal is for not less than Rs. 2,500, this Company pays the medical examiner a gold mohur for his report.

Persons assured with the Society through the Indian Branch, have permission to proceed to and reside in any part of the world, except the west Coast of Africa, without prejudice to the assurance, so long as they continue to pay the original rate of premium applicable to India, stipulated in their policies.

ASSURANCE OF DISEASED LIVES.

The Directors of the Indian Branch have at present no authority to issue policies on invalid lives, but proposals for assurance, of this character, will be received for transmission to the Society's Office in London, and the decision thereon communicated to applicants with all possible expedition.

This Company transacts, generally every description of business involved in the contingencies of European life in India, including the granting of deferred annuities and endowments. Every information as to the constitution, terms and conditions of the Society, not afforded by this prospectus, will be promptly supplied, and forms and instructions to parties wishing to effect assurance, will be forwarded free, on application being made to any of the Agents, or to the Secretary of the Indian Branch in Calcutta.

NEW LABEL.

In consequence of the great variety of Counterfeit Labels of "ROWLAND'S MACASSAROIL" now in circulation, and which so nearly resemble the Original as frequently to deceive the unwary, the Proprietors acting under a sense of duty, and regardless of expense in the attainment of their object, the protection of the public from fraud and imposition, have employed those celebrated artists, Messrs. Perkins, Bacon, & Co., who have succeeded in producing from steel a "NEW LABEL." The subjoined is a small copy of a portion of the Label.

Another portion contains the signature of the Proprietors in red ink,

"A. ROWLAND & SONS."

This celebrated Oil is universally in high repute for its successful results during the last half century in
